New U.K. Anti-Pollution Act Permits Sinking of Tankers

DEATHS BLAMED ON SEVERE FLU

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Three persons have died at the Royal Columbian Hospital from complications arising from a severe type of influenza.

Dr. Alan Grant, a hospital pathologist, said the flu is "unexpectedly vicious, unlike the usual flu bug."

He said the virus is seriously affecting the lungs of older persons already weakened by other illnesses.

"This type of flu is endemic in the area, not like the Asian flu which comes in waves every few years."

A Vancouver city health official, A. D. Mackie, described the outbreak as "powerful" but not widespread.

Spokesmen at Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals in Victoria said today they knew of no recent deaths in which influenza was a factor.

He represents the Mouvement Anti-Feministe Quebecois, and he went on to describe feminist-movement girls as "corpulent, big, ugly, fat, masculine and vociferous." (CP Wirephoto.)

Oil Spill Prompts Hard Line

LONDON (UPI) — Parliament today passed legislation giving the government sweeping powers to seize or sink foreign ships, even outside British territorial waters, that threaten to pollute this country's beaches with oil.

The new legislation was given royal assent and became law just before parliament recessed for Easter.

Parliament acted as the navy and local government authorities worked feverishly to break up massive oil slicks in the English Channel that threatened to pollute south coast vacation beaches.

Anthony Grant, undersecretary for trade and industry, told Parliament hundreds of tons of oil caused the slicks. He said they may have seeped from the crippled Liberian tanker Panther which grounded for five days last week on the Goodwin Sands off the south east coast of England, spewing out parts of a cargo of 25,000 tons of crude oil.

British authorities had to stand idly by while tug captains from several countries wrangled over salvage

MEN PAID $250,000 FOR NOT WORKING

HALIFAX — The Michelin Tire Corp. has agreed to pay millwrights a total of $250,000 for not working in the construction of two tire manufacturing plants in Nova Scotia.

The payment, clearing the way for Michelin employees to do the work, was agreed upon by the company to eliminate the possibility of strikes which would mean opening dates for the plants could be "pushed back many months." Details on Page 2.

Nixon Avoids War Deadline

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon refused to bow to mounting pressure to set a date for complete U.S. withdrawal from the Vietnam war, but did announce Wednesday night the pullback of another 100,000 servicemen by Dec. 1.

In rejecting demands from the peace movement to call a halt to American troop involvement in the war, the president said such a move would mean surrender to the Communists.

Speaking in an earnest, sometimes emotional manner, he told a television audience that he was disengaging in a way which would lead to a generation of peace, avoid a precipitious retreat and would leave the South vietnamese strong enough to defend themselves.

The speech was widely viewed in the United States as a display of political courage as it contained no dramatic measures to offset his failing popularity in public opinion polls.

The speed-up in the troop withdrawal schedule, however, fell short of predictions that he would increase the average rate of withdrawal up to perhaps 20,000 men a month.

NEW RATE HIGHER

The new rate will average almost 14,300 men a month, compared with the 12,500 a month during the last year or so. Under the new program, the number of American servicemen in Vietnam will drop to 184,000 by Dec. 1, compared with the high point of 535,000 in mid-1969.

This would leave the president free to order a significant acceleration in the withdrawal rate in the spring of 1972, just before the presidential election campaign starts to gather steam, observers said.

The president again put his political future on the line, telling the American people "you should hold me accountable if I fail."

North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris peace talks said Nixon once again showed he had not ceased lying to the American people.

"That is why he has changed black into white, defeats into victories, and talked of peace while making war instead," a delegation statement said.

DOVES ATTACK SPEECH

Democratic doves were quick to attack the speech as not going anywhere near enough to meet the national yearning for peace.

Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, the only announced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, dismissed the speech as "more of the same."

Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, who might be the president's opponent in 1972, expressed disappointment that Nixon had refused to set a date for ending American involvement in the war.

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts also expressed deep disappointment and said the South Vietnamese and American people could no longer bear the war.

But Senator Robert Byrd of West Virginia, assistant Democratic leader in the Senate, said the speech gave him the distinct impression that Nixon has a definite date in mind for a complete withdrawal from Vietnam.

Senator Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, Republican party leader in the Senate, also commented: "I know he has a timetable, but for obvious

Indian Forces Poised For Attack—Pakistan

From Reuter—AP

Pakistan charged today that Indian armed forces were poised for possible intervention in East Pakistan after announcing that air force planes went into action in four areas of East Pakistan.

Radio Pakistan said information reaching Rawalpindi, the central government capital in the western province, indicated Indian air force bases around the western and northern borders of East Pakistan had been issued combat readiness orders. It said Indian border security force battalions around East Pakistan had been deployed for infiltration operations and charged that four other such units already were engaged in East Pakistan.

There was no confirmation of the report.

East Pakistan is bounded on three sides by Indian territory and the other by the Bay of Bengal.

Official Indian sources had no comment on the latest Pakistani allegations.

However, a senior Indian official on Tuesday categorically denied at a news briefing that India was massing troops along the border with East Pakistan.

The radio, in what was believed to be the first Pakistani confirmation of other reports, said Pakistani air force planes had gone into action in Sylhet, Rajshahi, Mymensingh and Rangpur.

Previous reports by the radio said the situation in East Pakistan was "calm" and "under control."

NEW ORDERS ENFORCED

Today, the central government broadcast fresh martial law orders prohibiting East Pakistanis from carrying any weapons, including iron rods and staves, Indian monitors reported.

"According to these orders, all firearms are required to be deposited at the nearest police station, and no person is allowed to keep in his possession even an iron rod or lathi," the Indian government radio said, quoting the Radio Pakistan broadcast.

The Indian radio said that East Pakistanis also were barred from joining any paramilitary organization or volunteer corps.

The Pakistan reports came as Indian news media said the Pakistan air force had carried out heavy retaliatory bombing strikes after a string of successes by the rebellious Bengalis of the east.

B.C. Man Gets Tip Of $5.5 Million

Special to The Times

VANCOUVER — The head of a tiny Vancouver air charter company was told today he has inherited $5.5 million.

Leonard Wilson, president of Wilson Air Company Ltd., a two-man, two-aircraft company operating out of Vancouver, received a telegram from the British Honduras Wednesday. It said "You have inherited $5.5 million. Money in trust Royal Bank of Canada, Belize City, British Honduras. Contact Courtenay and Company, Belize City."

After six hours of vain effort to phone the bank, Wilson went home to suburban Richmond, convinced it was a hoax.

Today an associate said Wilson had received confirmation that the report was correct. The associate said Wilson had spoken to a Mr. Courtenay, whom he identified as the speaker of the British Honduras legislature and a lawyer.

Wilson could not be reached for comment today. He had said earlier that he was in British Honduras two years ago flying charter flights for wealthy clients.

"I got along with people and I knew plenty of them but no one well enough to tip me $5.5 million."

Winds Pummel City, Ferries Turn Back

Another storm pummelled the Greater Victoria area this morning reaching its highest fury at 6:30 a.m. when southeasterlies were registered at 40 miles an hour, gusting to 63.

Because of the gale-force winds the B.C. ferry Queen of Esquimalt on her 8 a.m. run across the Gulf of Georgia from Swartz Bay, instead of docking at Tsawwassen, turned back with her passenger load to Swartz Bay.

The brisk winds also caused ferry officials to cancel the morning run to Otter Bay on North Pender.

WINDS VEER

The winds veered to the west this afternoon, bringing drenching rain. Friday's outlook is sombre — generally cloudy, showers and cooler temperatures.

At least nine Victoria boats are entered in the annual Strait of Georgia race, due to get the start gun off West Vancouver Friday at 10:30 a.m.

RACE ABANDONED

Several of them left Tsehum Haven early this morning, facing conditions similar to those last year when more than half the fleet were forced to abandon the race because of gale-force winds.

Winds are expected to ease to between 15 and 20 miles an hour Friday.

Skies should begin clearing Saturday and by Sunday provide weather suitable for an Easter Parade.

Further Pollution Will Shut Coal Mine

Mines Minister Frank Richter said today that Kaiser Resources Ltd. has agreed to shut down its Natal-Michel hydraulic coal mining operation if there are any more discharges of coal slurry.

Richter said the company is co-operating well with the government and is taking steps to overcome the problems which led to discharges in recent days.

Richter said reports from inspectors of the mines and conservation departments indicated that publicity about the discharges has been "expanded" far out of proportion.

FREEZING WEATHER

But he indicated there is a problem at the hydraulic coal operation where freezing weather forced the company to put slurry coal into ponds constructed without mines department permission.

These proved unable to hold all the material and there was some leakage into a nearby gravel pit and from there into watercourses, but by this time the coal had been filtered out by natural process, Richter suggested.

The freezing problem will have to be solved before next winter, Richter said.

Meanwhile, Liberal leader Pat McGeer said in Vancouver Wednesday that it isn't correct to say that the Pollution Control Act doesn't provide the power to take action against Kaiser.

He said Section 5, Subsection 1 makes it an offence to discharge effluent without a permit and fines of up to $500 a day are provided.

TURNED DOWN

Pollution control branch officials earlier had explained that Kaiser had applied for permits but had been turned down for technical and legal reasons. In the meantime, they said, the act did not permit prosecution.

The act as amended in 1970 required all existing polluters of land and water to register by the first of this year and to apply for a permit within 60 days of being ordered to do so.

This requirement appears to exempt from prosecution all pollution in existence prior to Jan. 1, 1970 when the section referred to by McGeer took effect.

EX-SOLDIERS SAFE FROM CHARGES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department announced today the government has found no legal way to prosecute former United States soldiers involved in the alleged 1968 massacre of civilians at My Lai, South Vietnam.

Defence department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said lawyers for the U.S. Army and the justice department gave the problem exhaustive study and were unable to resolve it.

This apparently means that Paul Meadlo and other former soldiers at My Lai on March 16, 1968, will not be prosecuted now that they have returned to civilian life.

Rebels Bombed

COLOMBO (AP) — Ceylon air force planes bombed insurgent groups holed up in a school and a factory, the government announced today.

A government bulletin said the school and factory were 40 miles from Colombo, the capital.

Government troop reinforcements were being deployed in southern Ceylon, where regular police were reported hanging on grimly against heavy insurgent activity.

The government had claimed that the insurgents were incapable of launching group attacks and an army spokesman maintained the insurgents' attacks were "scattered and sporadic."

The radio said today that armored units were busy flushing out insurgents on the main trunk road connecting the capital with central Ceylon.

Colombo remained under heavy guard.

The city was still gripped in a 3 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew.

Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike announced the rebellion Tuesday and blamed it on an organization of young leftist militants known as Che Guevarists after the Latin-American revolutionary.

Laos Coup Foiled

VIENTIANE (Reuter) — Eight persons, including several former high-ranking military officers, are under arrest for their part in a proposed coup against the Laotian government that was apparently called off at the last minute.

Informed sources said today the plot against the government of Prince Souvanna Phouma was masterminded by a former friend, Amphon Souvannabon, who now lives in Thailand after spending a number of years in Peking.

They said the plan had been for a number of commando troops to infiltrate Vientiane from Thailand across the Mekong River Tuesday night. But they said the coup was apparently called off at the last minute because the plotters spotted police checkpoints being set up in the city and on the road leading to the cross-river ferry.

Jet Overhaul Contract Ends

OTTAWA (CP) — CAE Aircraft Ltd. said today it has been advised by the government that a contract to overhaul T-39 Sabreliner jet transports for the United States Air Force has been terminated.

Loss of the contract would mean gradual reduction of some 300 jobs connected with the T-39 program in Winnipeg during the next three or four months.

Exact number of layoffs couldn't immediately be determined, CAE said.

Camosun Fees, Schedule Set

Camosun College began to take firmer shape Wednesday night as councillors considered policies covering staff hiring, admission requirements and fees.

For the most part they supported the ideas proposed by principal Grant Fisher. A radical departure on admission requirements suggested by councillor Phillip Ney ran into heavy weather.

Ney proposed that in April each year college instructors present introductory lectures open to the public which would outline the courses they would be teaching in September.

Each teacher would also indicate the level of knowledge a student needs to start the course. In September there would then be some form of testing of college applicants to ensure they were ready to start the course.

REFRESHER COURSES

Between April and September there could be refresher courses without entrance requirements, enabling college applicants to ready themselves.

Ney said such a policy would make a clean break with tradition, putting the emphasis on passing into rather than out of the college.

Students would be there with the best of motivation, desire to learn and a demonstrated capability in the courses they were studying.

The system would also keep teachers on their toes. Their effectiveness would be reflected by enrolment in their courses.

The idea and the mechanics of testing for college entrance troubled other councillors and senior administrators.

TESTING DIFFICULT

Fisher said many students will enrol at the last minute and may well have been away from school for some time, making accurate testing difficult.

He saw entrance testing as a narrowing rather than a broadening of opportunity for students.

Council chairman Carron Jameson said the council had to deal with the immediate concern of admission requirements for September.

Ney's suggestion drew support only from councillor Walter Donald, who suggested too narrow an interpretation was being put on the form testing could take. He advocated Grade 12 standing be sufficient to meet entrance requirements.

The proposal will be discussed again when the council meets next month.

OPEN DOOR POLICY

Ney and Donald were the only two opposed to the admission requirements which were approved.

Termed "an open door policy," they provide for admission to university transfer and technology programs on the basis of:

- B.C. secondary graduation (or the equivalent) in an appropriate program, or
- For applicants under 19 short not more than two Grade 12 courses, a superior record in Grade 12 courses completed and a principal's recommendation.
- A recommendation of the admissions committee.

The latter would normally be limited to students over 19 who have been away from secondary school for at least a year. They would have to demonstrate maturity, ability and motivation in one of a combination of ways.

Admission requirements for other programs will vary, depending on the nature of the program, but the general principle of allowing applicants to demonstrate admissibility in a number of ways will apply.

TWO SEMESTERS

Other aspects of the college operation considered in the meeting, which lasted over four hours:

The school year would be divided into two semesters and two short summer terms, with no restriction on the number of credits a student would earn in a year.

Fisher said that in his view university division of time was archaic. College students should be encouraged to take some break during the year but not five months (as at university) unless they need that time to earn money.

The most important of criteria in selecting staff will be demonstrated teaching ability or a number of reliable predictors of ability to teach.

RATIFY CHOICES

While Fisher sought the ultimate authority on academic appointments, councillors insisted on the right to ratify his choices.

They also turned down his recommendation that salary categories set out for the college be increased by $500 to bring them close to an average of salary schedules at three other colleges.

Camosun's salary schedule for teachers in the academic year beginning in September provide:

A minimum of $8,500 and a maximum of $13,000 for those with high school level teaching qualifications.

A minimum of $9,500 and a maximum of $14,500 for teachers with a masters degree of two professional or honors degrees. (The majority of an anticipated teaching staff of 65 to 70 will be in this category.)

A minimum of $11,000 and a maximum of $16,500 for teachers with a doctorate or two masters degrees.

FEES $200

Full-time student fees will be $200 for a school year plus a $10 registration fee the first year. Decision on a proposed $5 student activities fee was postponed for further consideration.

Part-time and summer term fees will be $10 per semester hour, with an initial $10 registration fee.

Fees for community service courses will vary with programs.

Library Pioneer Dies

Funeral services were scheduled in Vancouver today for Helen Gordon Steward, a pioneer librarian in Victoria, the Fraser Valley, West Indies and the southern United States and a Red Cross volunteer in France during the First World War. She was 91.

Dr. Stewart reorganized the Victoria Public Library during her stay from 1910 to 1924, with time out for war service. In her time here she initiated the Dewey Decimal System and open stacking of books.

She helped found the library association and Fraser Valley Regional Library, which served as a prototype for the province, and was a prime mover in achieving passage of the Public Libraries Act in 1919.

Dr. Stewart headed a library school for two years in Louisiana before retiring in 1938, then came out of retirement to organize a library service similar to the Fraser Valley project. She retired again in 1949.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Anna Killican of Ottawa, and in Vancouver by a niece and nephew, Mrs. W. S. Madden and Dr. W. D. Stewart.

rights. The Goodwin Sands are just outside Britain's three mile territorial waters.

The new legislation was designed to avoid a repetition of such incidents.

The new legislation was tacked hurriedly by the government on to a bill for control of oil in navigable waters as it neared the end of its final parliamentary stages.

The legislation provided for fines up to 50,000 pounds ($120,000) on such summary conviction and unlimited fines on conviction after indictment of persons guilty of causing oil pollution of British beaches and coastal water.

Grant told Parliament in the event of a disaster involving a major oil pollution threat the government first would consult with the owners of the ship and with salvage organizations.

'ANY ACTION'

But he said in case of refusal to co-operate, the government would have authority to take "any kind of action whatsoever" about the stricken ship or its cargo, including operations for seizing, sinking or otherwise destroying it.

Later, Capt. Thomas Fields, head of the Emergency Anti-Pollution Centre at Dover, said the danger of massive pollution from the oil slicks in the English Channel appears to have receded.

"We are confident we have dealt with the oil threat and we feel we can deal with any new emergency that may arise, he said.

Fields' team was helped by gale force winds which whipped up high seas and broke up the oil slick along a 40-mile stretch of the Kent county coast.

HEAVY SEAS

Salvage officials said the oil sank in the heavy seas, which did more in a few yours to break up the slicks than the fleet of anti-pollution vessels could achieve in several days.

Fields and aides said the waves cut into small strips the oil carpet which had stretched from Dungeness Point to North Foreland headland.

Local authorities said there still were large quantities of oil on beaches at Walmer, Deal, Kingsdown and St. Margarets Bay. But beaches at the big seaside resorts of Margate, Ramsgate, Broadstairs and Folkestone were reported clear.

The department of Trade in London said "the pollution position looks much happier."

reasons he cannot tip his hand to the enemy."

Speaking over the heads of his congressional critics, the president asked the American people to believe he was keeping his pledge to end U.S. participation in the war, but in a way that would not leave South Vietnam deserted and would not destroy the credibility of the United States throughout the world.

Rejecting demands that he set a terminal date for ending the U.S. role in Vietnam, the president declared:

"If the United States should announce that we will quit regardless of what the enemy does, we would have thrown away our principal bargaining counter to win release of American prisoners-of-war, we would remove the enemy's strongest incentive to end the war sooner by negotiations, and we will have given enemy commanders the exact information they need to marshal their attacks against our remaining forces at their most vulnerable time."

Nixon made another appeal for a political settlement in Vietnam, urging Hanoi to engage in serious negotiations in Paris to speed the end of the war.

The president said he was announcing an increase in the U.S. withdrawal "because of the increased strength of the South Vietnamese, because of the success of the Cambodian operation; and because of the achievements of the South Vietnamese operation in Laos."

DOUBTS RAISED

Critics raised doubts about the fighting qualities of the South Vietnamese army after it cut short its ground campaign against the Ho Chi Minh trail and some of its units retreated out of Laos in apparent disarray.

But Nixon rated the operation a plus. Nixon outlined these conclusions based on what he said was his assessment:

"First, the South Vietnamese demonstrated that without American advisers they could fight effectively against the best troops North Vietnam could put in the field.

"Second, the South Vietnamese suffered heavy casualties. But, by the most conservative estimates the casualties suffered by the enemy were far heavier." He gave no figures.

"Third, and most important, the disruption of enemy supply lines and the consumption of ammunition and arms in the battle has been even more damaging to the capability of the North Vietnamese to sustain major offensives in South Vietnam than were the operations in Cambodia 10 months ago."

Union Bought Off For $250,000

HALIFAX (CP) — The Michelin Tire Corp. has agreed to pay millwrights a total of $250,000 for not performing certain work in the construction of two tire manufacturing plants in Nova Scotia.

A company statement today said the $250,000 covers payment for the estimated man hours which the millwrights would have worked on the assembly of tire-making machinery in the Michelin plants at Granton and Bridgewater, N.S.

The company said the agreement clears the way for Michelin's own employees to do the work and eliminates the possibility of strikes by unions claiming jurisdiction for the work.

The statement said that had the agreement not been signed the opening dates for the two plants, being built at a cost of $100 million, would have been "pushed back many months."

The union involved is Local 1178 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

Allan Rogers, business agent for the local, said today the agreement covers about three months and provides for the millwrights to be paid at an hourly rate of $5.40. It also provides that any overtime work done by the Michelin workers will be covered, with the millwrights receiving overtime pay.

Mr. Rogers said about 60 of the local's 102 men would be involved. Asked how the 60 were chosen, he said, "I'd rather not comment."

The work apparently involves secret equipment which Michelin closely guards.

10 MEN INVOLVED

The money will be paid to the millwrights union which in turn will pay it out to about 60 men, none of whom is expected to be required to report for any work.

"None of the construction millwrights are expected to be required to report to either of the two Michelin job sites while receiving payments handled by union officials," Michelin said.

Michelin is building its Nova Scotia plants with financial assistance from Industrial Estates Ltd., the provincial industry-promoting agency. The two plants are expected to employ about 1,860 when they reach full production.

TREE THIEF FINED $500

NANAIMO (CP) — Michael Terrance Gogo of Nanaimo was fined $500 and sentenced to one day in jail in county court Wednesday after pleading guilty to theft of Christmas trees from Crown Zellerbach Ltd.

The court was told Gogo operated a tree farm about six miles from the company property where 589 trees went missing.

Carrots, Lettuce and Cabbage Spell Death to Brer Rabbit!

By PAT DUFOUR

Cuddling and colic may be the fate of another crop of Easter bunnies Sunday.

It's all because their tiny delighted owners never learned the lesson taught by Peter Rabbit.

Why did the precocious Pierre collapse on a sickbed after escaping from Mr. MacGregor's garden?

TRUTH OF MATTER . . .

The truth of the matter is he was probably fighting off diarrhea!

Cartoons to the contrary, carrots, lettuce and cabbage spell the kiss of death to any rabbit that hasn't reached the ripe old age of four or five months.

After that the odd leaf of lettuce, perhaps half a carrot or half an apple — but never cabbage, unless you want him to break out into a terminal cole slaw!

All a bunny needs, says the American Rabbit Breeders' Association, Inc., if you want him to still be around next Easter, is rabbit pellets — carried at feed stores and pet shops — and clean water.

PELLETS

Give him four or five ounces of pellets a day — preferably in the evening — and he'll be whisking his whiskers with happiness. A used tuna fish can makes a good measuring cup.

Set his table with crocks or metal dishes, fastened down with wire. Never use plastic — he'll eat it. A one-pound coffee can makes a good feeding dish.

He'll also enjoy the occasional helping of grain, dry bread, rolled oats and hay.

Innocent though he may look, that Easter pet, when well treated, will show the virility that has seen his forbears survive:

- Being eaten as food in Asia for 3,000 years, being enjoyed by diners of every continent.
- Providing fur for most felt hats.
- Making the star billing on more than 300 recipes.
- Acting as a "dead ringer" for more than 85 per cent of today's furs.
- Sacrificing their paws for good luck talismans or cosmetic brushes of women in the mode.
- Giving their all to nourish the nation's rose beds.
- Serving science — especially in pregnancy testing — and knowing all the time that pregnancy, for them, could call for computers.

Stray Feathers

By HAROLD HOSFORD

Sure as the sun rises tomorrow, someone, somewhere, will bring up the question of how do robins find worms. Do they see them or hear them.

Don't scoff, you who are in on the secret. Remember when you used to watch the antics of one of our familiar big red-breasted thrushes and wondered just what was going on as he cocked his head first one way then the other. Sure he was listening. Or was he?

That habit the robins have — and most other birds for that matter — of cocking their heads to one side as they search for food has a lot of people fooled. Despite appearances, the cocked head doesn't mean he's listening. It means he's looking.

SEE WORMS

In other words, robins don't hear worms — they see them. The explanation lies in the robins' eyes, at least in their position in the birds' head.

Compare your own eyes with those of a robin. Probably the first difference you'll notice is that the eyes of a robin are located on the side of its head, looking to left and right. Yours — and mine for that matter — are side by side looking forward. And therein lies the secret.

Because our eyes face forward, both can be brought to bear on an object at the same time. We can not only measure an object's lateral position but its distance from us as well. This is stereoscopic vision — the only aspect of sight in which man outdoes the birds.

SIDE VISION

Robins' eyes — located on the side of the head — give them excellent side-vision. They are also able to see a certain amount of what is going on behind them.

This is important to birds and animals which are so-called prey species — species which are regularly preyed upon by other species. Since the main threat usually lies in an attack from the rear, a certain amount of vision in that direction is an advantage. After all, if you can see danger coming, you may be able to do something about avoiding it.

But what a robin makes up in rear-vision he lacks in front-vision. Those two outward-looking eyes do give a slight overlap in front but they are so located that there is also a blind zone immediately in front of and below the bird.

Therefore the robin cocks its head, brings one eye to bear on the worm and zeros in on it. But immediately the bird turns its head to peck at the worm it loses sight of it in the blind zone. This is the reason robins sometimes have to make several passes at a worm before coming up with it. It also accounts for what appears to be digging, which has helped to support the erroneous idea that the robin hears the worm.

Mind you, all this head-cocking for worms is contingent on the worms being either at the surface or very near it. Worms deeper than that are just as invisible to the robins as they are to us. Many of the tidbits gleaned by robins from our lawns and gardens are species like the cut-worm which work just below the surface of the soil.

STEREO VISION

Hawks and owls — and most other raptors — have eyes set to look forward, like us, and therefore have a certain amount of stereoscopic vision; very important for an animal whose existence depends on being able to judge distance precisely.

Vultures have raised another question about bird senses. Do these big, soaring, carrion eaters find their food by smell or by sight. The highly-scented, well-putrified carcass of a deer will attract turkey vultures from miles around, not because they smell it but, once again, because they see it.

One vulture will spot the carcass, the others, having seen the first drop suddenly from the sky will glide over to investigate and voila! Dinner is served.

INSECT EGGS

Birds, on the whole, probably have the most acute vision of all animals. Their eyes must be such that they can pick out a minute object such as an insect egg, within a few inches of them. These are the same eyes that can also adjust to the panoramic vision needed for those long migratory journeys.

The size alone of a bird's eyes give some idea of their importance, often occupying as much space in the skull as the brain does.

Bill Would Crack Down On Bank Price-Fixing

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation introduced in the Senate Wednesday would outlaw collusion in price-setting by chartered banks.

At the same time, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said it is clear that service charges by the banks should be regulated.

The minister was commenting on a special report by the federal prices and incomes commission that criticizes the banks for raising cheque-writing and other service charges simultaneously last Thursday. The commission noted the action came at a time of healthy bank profits.

The report, presented in the Commons Wednesday, observes that there is no legal or competitive restraint on the banks that would protect the public against collusion in price fixing or stimulate low-cost efficiences.

Shortly afterwards in the upper chamber, Senator William Benidickson (L—Ontario) introduced a private bill prepared previously that would place banking services under the legal restrictions of the Combines Investigation Act. The Senate gave the bill routine first reading without comment.

The combines act prohibits actions that would prevent or diminish competition in the production, supply, sale of rental of goods or in the price of insurance. The Senate bill would place the same structures on banking charges.

REGULATE INCREASES

Basford, whose department administers the combines act, said outside the Commons that the report of the prices commission makes it clear that increases in service charges should be regulated.

"I think it is really quite immaterial whether they are regulated under the Bank Act or the combines act."

He added that the Economic Council of Canada had recommended regulation more than a year ago, "and we have been revising he combines act in the light of those recommendations."

Gas Price Probe Sought By Senators

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate was given notice Wednesday that a number of members want a special Senate inquiry into the gasoline price increase announced a few hours earlier by Imperial Oil Ltd.

Senator J. Harper Prowse (L — Alberta) gave notice of a motion to establish a special committee to examine pricing intentions of oil companies and the possibilities of extending the pipeline from Western Canada to the Montreal area refineries.

Senator Prowse said outside the chamber the argument against extending the pipeline east of Clarkson, Ont., has been that it would cost an extra cent a gallon to users of petroleum products from the Montreal refineries.

"Now," he said, "the companies are going to add up to three cents a gallon to the fuel bills of the same users for products refined from imported oil."

The former Alberta Liberal party leader said it is time the government re-examined the decision not to permit extension of the western pipeline on economic grounds.

Boosting the Parks Fee

THE CABINET'S DECISION TO double overnight camping fees in an increased number of parks marks a trend to which there is no foreseeable end. If the charge is now $2 against last year's $1, what is to stop it from escalating annually until the rate for the province's outdoor accommodation becomes the maximum the traffic will bear?

The argument is advanced, in justification of the raise, that those who use the parks should pay a higher contribution than ordinary taxpayers for their upkeep. This is a thesis which campers seem to have accepted, although parks have been established and developed to their present standards at the expense of the provincial citizens at large. In other words, the British Columbian using the parks is paying twice — once through taxes and once through the newly increased fee.

There is no attempt now to justify the increase on the basis of the original sophistry introduced when charges were first levied. At that time, the authorities explained, the fee was initiated after a brief free sojourn to hit the "campsite hog" who squatted on a particular location for an unwarranted period of time. Obviously, that situation could have been corrected by setting a limit to the time that one individual or family group could use one campsite. Now the fee is a straight, uncamouflaged revenue producer for the government.

It can be argued, of course, that recent developments have increased the financial demands on parks maintenance. More people are using the available spaces; the growth in parks visiting runs to about 10 per cent a year. Furthermore, rowdyism in a number of parks in recent years has necessitated more supervision, with corresponding wage costs.

The higher charge effective this year will not, however, provide more sophisticated amenities in provincial parks, according to present planning. The users of these tracts, it has been found, have preferred the appeal of simple, unnatural surroundings, without special services such as electricity, hot water and connections for trailers — a materialistic trend notable in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

According to British Columbia's current parks philosophy, these are extras which so-called "campers" should find in commercial establishments, not in natural parklands devoted to encouragement of simple, outdoors holidays.

At a time when there is a growing need for people of all ages to turn to the wilderness for necessary relief from the urban grind, it is difficult to justify a rising charge for parks use. The net effect can only be to deter families of modest income whose use of our parklands is most to be encouraged.

"... then how about making an oil castle ..."

'The Truth for Me Today'

THE DEATH OF IGOR STRAvinsky in New York City this week at the age of 88 brought the great composer's musical output to a stop but it will not dim the brilliance of his life's repertoire and his incomparable influence on twentieth century music.

Stravinsky was born into a musical environment and it is not surprising that although he planned a legal career in St. Petersburg (Leningrad) he came under the influence of Rimsky-Korsakov, to whom he submitted some musical work, and under whom he subsequently studied. With the premiere of "The Firebird" in 1910 Stravinsky, at the age of 28, became famous. "Petrushka" followed and then "The Rite of Spring", a work so novel and audacious that it caused a riot at its Paris opening in 1913. Stravinsky's revolutionary period ended with his emigration to Switzerland.

The ballet spectacles of Diaghilev were not possible during the First World War, and the composer began a progression towards neoclassicism which he followed for the rest of his life. Stravinsky once said: "The more art is controlled, limited, worked over, the more it is free," and it was this approach to composition which now dominated him. Music became for him a "problem" to be solved.

Stravinsky settled in France after the First World War and turned away from the Russian themes of his early works to a French-international style, although it has been argued that Stravinsky has only one style with different manners.

He entered upon a neo-classical period which reached its peak ten years before he moved to the United States in 1939. He continued composing and was a vigorous producer of notable works well into his 70s. On the eve of his eightieth birthday he presented a television opera, "The Flood".

Igor Stravinsky embodied an age in music and his love of musical tradition never obscured his incredibly modern sense of rhythm and vivacity. "I live," he said in his autobiography, "neither in the past nor in the future. I am in the present. I cannot know what tomorrow may bring forth. I can only know what the truth is for me today. This is what I am called upon to serve, and I serve it in all lucidity."

A Mellowing Process?

ACCORDING TO THE YUGOslav critic, Milovan Djilas: "China is still so poor that ideology continues to be its major weapon in establishing internal cohesion and in spreading influence in the world." China may be progressing to a new stage of development as it moves to establish further diplomatic contacts in Latin America.

China has relations with Cuba, it established relations with the new Marxist regime of Salvador Allende in Chile, and now there are reports that China and Peru will set up diplomatic missions late this year. Ideology remains important in Chinese efforts, and Peking has expressed support for left-wing guerrilla movements in Latin America. But signs indicate that China is moving toward the use of more respectable means to increase its influence in the world.

The leftward trend in Latin America, the exploding population and the growth of new markets make that part of the hemisphere particularly attractive to China.

External trade and diplomacy are traditional means of bringing about the liberalization of a regime. China's emergence from historic isolation should be as much a cause for hope as anxiety. The western hemisphere could well become the catalyst of a mellowing process in the evolution of China.

A GIANT AMONG PYGMIES — By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Inflating the Diefenbaker Myth

IN Canada, it is often said, we suffer from a lack of heroes and heroic myths. If so, we cannot blame Dr. James Johnston, formerly director of the Progressive Conservative party. In the most appalling book ever written about Canadian politics he has hatched a myth that should long outlast its hero, John Diefenbaker. Dr. Johnston's book, The Party's Over, (Longman, Canada) is appalling in the literal sense of the word. It appals the reader. Nevertheless, every Canadian should read it if he wants to know how the Conservative party operated in the Diefenbaker epoch and, amazingly, survived its operators. It is probably durable enough even to survive Dr. Johnston's attempt to save it. But he doesn't seem to be very sure about that.

Hutchison

The work of reviewing this excellent work of secret history must be left to the reviewers. Sufficient to say here that Mr. Diefenbaker emerges not only as a hero, a martyr, almost a saint, but as a giant pinioned, like Gulliver, by pygmies. Every prominent Conservative except Mr. Diefenbaker's tiny band of faithful friends turns out to be a pygmy, and most of them villains as well. The adventure ends like the last scene in Hamlet with the whole cast dead on the floor from wounds or poison, in gaudy technicolor.

Dr. Johnston, a scholarly and, I would suppose, a fine man, writes lively and literate prose, but he has to follow the stage directions prescribed in advance by fate or, more likely, by a mad script writer in Hollywood for the guidance of the late Keystone Cops. So the chase proceeds from comedy to tragedy, from triumph to disaster through countless instalments like the movies of our distant youth. The reader is left breathless and exhausted, wondering if all this can possibly be true.

In a factual sense I presume it is true. Dr. Johnston supports his case against the betrayers of his hero with ample documents, letters, telegrams and conversations that raise the quills of the least fretful porpentine.

Villain-in-Chief

The villain-in-chief, as you would expect, is Dalton Camp, cast in the role of Iago, with touches of Macbeth, Walter Mitty and Lucrezia Borgia, far beyond life size. Mr. Camp can write his own books and look after himself. The lesser victims, including Davie Fulton, George Hees, Duff Roblin, Leon Balcer and many others, all good Conservatives but, alas, not worshippers of the single hero, must answer Dr. Johnston, as they please, with indignation or laughter.

What puzzles the innocent spectator is the truth behind the facts, and I suspect that it has escaped Dr. Johnston who, for all his inside knowledge and mechanical expertise, turns out to be an innocent himself.

Thus he is willing to believe, for instance, that Mr. Diefenbaker came within some 11,000 votes of winning the 1965 election and lost it by a cruel whim of arithmetic. If only those votes had been distributed in the right places all our history would have been different. No doubt this is true, and has been true in many elections, but the votes seldom fall where they are needed.

Again, we are told that Mr. Diefenbaker could have destroyed the Pearson government quite easily in a national railway strike but refused to do so because he put the nation's welfare ahead of his own ambition. This may be true also but I doubt that Mr. Pearson is innocent enough to believe it.

The final truth which escapes Dr. Johnston, as an outsider will see it, is that he gave the Conservative party devoted service and efficient organization but he and Mr. Diefenbaker combined could not give it a Conservative policy understandable to the public. Conservatism, a highly respectable doctrine needed to preserve a balance in all societies, got lost in the rush, not by accident but mainly because Mr. Diefenbaker was not a real Conservative — another obvious fact which seems to have escaped his brilliant organizer.

Such policies as the two men put together with scissors and paste were extracted from old speeches, obscure caucus resolutions, parliamentary records and other oddments from the scrap book and solemnly issued on the eve of an election as a Conservative policy in caricature. Even then, Mr. Diefenbaker often changed them, without notice, from speech to speech, making and unmaking policy as he went along.

The only man who had any original ideas, so far as the reader can see, was Alvin Hamilton, and he, like policy, got lost in the rush, though one can guess that he will re-emerge later on because he still has ideas and knows what Conservatism means.

Liberal Trouble Different

All this is not to say that the Liberal party did any better behind the scenes, while doing much better in elections. Certainly it is not to say that Liberalsim is solving any great national problem today. But the current and growing troubles of the Trudeau government are a different matter, too complicated for discussion here.

As for Dr. Johnston's testimony, we must conclude that the Conservative party was a ghastly shambles after Mr. Camp had arranged the destruction of Mr. Diefenbaker. The deep damnation of his taking off is a terrible story, as the author tells it, the pygmies rejoicing in the ruin of the only giant.

Even if Dr. Johnston exaggerates the stature of the giant and unfairly diminishes his enemies, he has contributed something useful to Canada's chronicle. For the first time the insides of a great political party are exposed by a sharp scalpel on an operating table. The sight is not pleasant but I dare say the Conservative party is strong enough to endure it and may be further strengthened by a candid look at itself.

Anyhow, the lay reader must feel a new sympathy with Robert Stanfield, who inherited, according to Dr. Johnston, an utterly bankrupt estate, a Byzantine court full of conspirators, assassins and poisoners and, without Mr. Diefenbaker, a lost cause.

This I don't believe for a moment. Conservatism, as a doctrine, a philosophy and a power throughout human events, will survive, if not under Mr. Stanfield then under some different leader, possibly under a different name. Meanwhile it is good that at last a measure of justice has been accorded Mr. Diefenbaker who, whatever else he may be, must remain a formidable figure in our history, a myth already much larger than the fact. And, contrary to the title of Dr. Johnston's book, the party is not over.

FROM FIERY RUN, Va. — By JAMES RESTON

Ideals Lost in the Fight for Them

FOR a while it almost looked as if somebody were going to propose giving Lieutenant Calley the Congressional Medal of Honor. Not since firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur during the Korean war has there been such an outburst of sympathy for an American soldier. So at last Vietnam has produced an officer everybody recognizes — an anti-hero for a war without glory or nobility and a symbol for a time of moral confusion.

Reston

The popular reaction to Calley's conviction is more interesting than Calley himself. No doubt, a lot of people simply thought the penalty was too severe, and many more thought it was wrong to convict him without even taking testimony from his superior officers, let alone not putting them on trial. But beyond this, the sworn testimony on what happened at My Lai is almost too savage and pitiless to believe, and even those who believe it find it hard to blame Calley without blaming the architects and commanders of the war — and themselves for not knowing what was going on.

It is easy to overdo this theme of common or general guilt. Nobody, as Burke said, can fairly indict a whole nation. Also, it is a brutal libel on the American armed forces to suggest that Calley at My Lai was somehow typical of his fellow soldiers.

Comparison Unavoidable

Yet comparisons between Calley and the American policy in Indochina, though imprecise and distasteful, are almost unavoidable. Calley was undoubtedly pitiless, but the U.S. bombing policy in Indochina is also pitiless and even premeditated.

This is being done in the name of the American people, who are supposed to be sovereign. It is done, to be sure, under the provocation of a cunning and brutal enemy.

"Nobody in the military system," said Lieutenant Calley, "ever described them as anything other than Communists. They didn't give it a race, they didn't give it a sex, they didn't give it an age. . . . If I've committed a crime, the only crime I've committed is in judgment of my values."

There is the deadly parallel between Calley and the war policy, nothing wrong but our values!

"Democracies," said Herbert Butterfield, "sometimes hate to have to think of war, but when they do turn to the idea they have shown more than once in the twentieth century that they quickly become headstrong, forgetting the limits of what power can actually achieve. Our great danger is that we might lose our ideals in the process of having to fight for them, or we might allow that process to make us become more and more like the very thing we first set out to destroy."

We have, however, been on this very path in Vietnam for quite a while, and the Calley incident at least indicates that we have been corrupted in the process. Yet he has at least provoked some thought in the country about the even larger crimes that are being committed in the name of peace and moraltiy.

The elemental and premeditated crime is clearly the continuation of the war itself. Compared even with Calley's brutality, the dead, wounded and homeless have long since outrun any goal that can be accomplished.

It is not the reputation of Calley that is at issue now but the reputation of the nation. His crimes will soon be forgotten, but the crime of "winding down" the war — at the expesne of God knows how many lives — is likely to be remembered to our disgrace for a long time to come.

"Even in time of war," said Butterfield, "when passions can hardly be kept from rising high, all sanity depends on our keeping, deep at the bottom of everything, some remembrance of that humanity which we have in common with our bitterest enemies."

Letters

Proud of a Second Tongue

Cheers to Mr. Jack Scott for slapping Mr. Arthur Mayse's wrist for his narrow little piece about the letter in French. I heartily agree with everything Mr. Scott says.

How many English-speaking Canadians write their letters in French when dealing with Quebec businesses? Yet we expect them to write to us in English!

Mr. Scott mentions the several languages spoken by people in other countries. Right here in Canada our native Indians and most of our non-British immigrants have several languages. Are we intellectually inferior—or just conceited enough to think that if we speak English "we know it all"! We should be proud and happy to have a second language. Individually the gains would be amazing and as a country we would be happy and united.

French, I am told, is not a difficult language to learn. Let's try it — and be thankful that Canada's first settlers were neither Russian nor Chinese! — D. M. Marryatt, 1334 Wood.

Bravo!

Re Jack Scott's column of April 5 — Bravo! He has somewhat restored my faith in English Canada. — S. A. Blair, 3839 Rowland.

Language Issue

Thank you Jack Scott for putting our language problem in such beautiful focus.

How many thousands of such form letters in English must have gone out to Quebecers over the years?

Won't it be sad if we founder as a nation because we are too mean spirited to embrace the free expression — anywhere — anytime — of a second language. — C. A. Perkins, 7188 West Coast Road.

Compulsory Reading

Congratulations to Jack Scott for his superb column on understanding French Canada. It was a masterpiece and should be compulsory reading for every Canadian. Is there a chance it may be syndicated? It should be.—Canadian.

Liquor Mark-Up

Noting in the press the squawks made by some concerning the "mark-up" in prices on liquor (which is not one of life's necessities), they should investigate the mark-up on the prices of other commodities, such as men's and women's clothing, on the watches that come from Switzerland, and many other items.

Also it should be remarked, mark-up does not mean profit; there are many expenses in operating any retail business, and in the case of the liquor sales, the profit goes to the government, covering outlays that otherwise would need to be made up by taxes on the general public.

Also, newspapers could well be better employed than continually sniping at the present government, unless they could demonstrate their ability to provide a better one.—C.K.W.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"THAT'S SOME FRIEND OF THE FAMILY WHO LOST ALL HER CLOTHES IN A FIRE."

Looking Back

From the Times of April 8, 1911:

Evidencing a strength which surprised even the most sanguine of his supporters, Alfred J. Morley was victorious over his opponent, A. M. Bannerman. It was with ringing cheers that a hundred or more of Mayor Morley's supporters who had awaited the result of the counting of the ballots rushed into the police court chamber when the official announcement was made. Then ensued an exciting scene of handshaking, the victor for several minutes being pulled about by those eager to offer him congratulations.

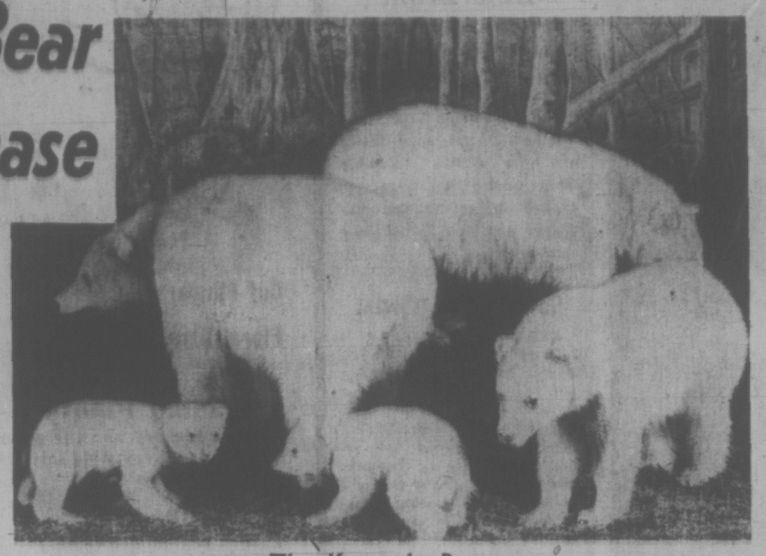
Our 'White' Bear Just Color Phase

By C. J. GUIGUET

(This is the second in a series of articles on B.C. ecology by staff members of the Provincial Museum. Guiguet is curator of birds and mammals.)

The Kermode bear is a subspecies of the American black bear which ranges west of the summit of the coastal mountains from north of the Nass River south to Burke Channel. It occurs also on some of the islands off that stretch of coastline.

The bear was described by Dr. W. T. Hornady of the American Museum in 1905 and given full specific status. It was named after the late Francis Kermode, then Director of the Provincial Museum, who was instrumental in securing three of the four white specimens in the original description.



The Kermode Bear

Unfortunately Hornaday himself did not visit this animal's range and collect a random sample, otherwise he would have used black individuals as well as white ones in the original description, and this would have eliminated a lot of confusion.

Although critical work is required, there is little doubt that the white color phase apparent in these bears is just that, a "color" phase, in counterpart similar to the brown or cinnamon color phase found in black bears of the interior.

The color, or lack of it, is unique and lends a flare of the bizarre to that portion of British Columbia's black bear population — would you believe a white black bear?

Some very basic research could be, and no doubt will be, done to learn more about the genetics of these animals. For example, no one knows what percentage of the Kermode bear population has white pelage, except that it is very small and probably localized.

I've been told that black females have been seen with white cubs and black cubs with white females, which is to be expected, but it would be interesting to pin such things down. I've been on this bear's range on several occasions and have seen only the black color phase.

From early reports, the original description, and some "popular" articles, one gets the impression that all of the bears inhabiting the range of this subspecies are white, when quite the opposite is true — most are black.

When adequate research has been done it may, and probably will, be found that the tendency to white pelage, latent in the black phase, can be manipulated by selective breeding to produce a larger percentage of white phase individuals in the population.

This would greatly enhance the species as a trophy animal, and ensure also that the rare white phase would not disappear entirely.

Lifting Secrecy Lid From FBI Operations

THE WASHINGTON POST
An Editorial

With due deliberation and with considerate regard for the attorney-general's objections, the Post published the substance of some FBI records —stolen by unknown persons from the FBI's office in Media, Pa., and sent to the Post anonymously by mail.

The attorney-general, naturally, would have preferred no account at all of the records and, indeed, no mention of the theft. Because he asserted that "these records include information which would disclose the identity of sources and information relating to the national defence," this newspaper carefully refrained from any facsimile reproduction of the documents sent to it and from any disclosure of the various FBI codes on the records, including identification numbers and names of agents and of persons under surveillance. We reported the substance of the records, however, because we were convinced that it served the public interest to do so.

★ ★ ★

The records afford a glimpse, not often granted to the general public or even to committees of Congress, of some of the ways in which the FBI works and of some part of its concept of internal security. They indicate that the bureau focussed a good deal of attention on college campuses and particularly on black student groups which, according to a memorandum issued by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, "pose a definite threat to the nation's stability and security" and that on the college campus in the Philadelphia area the bureau enlisted the services of the local police chief, the local postmaster, a campus security officer and a college switchboard operator to maintain surveillance on a professor regarded as a "radical." Other documents indicated that students were used, sometimes on a paid basis, as informers.

This lifting of a corner of the curtain on FBI activity in the name of internal security seems to us extremely disquieting. Granted that it by no means presents a complete picture, it nevertheless suggests strongly that an appropriate committee of the United States Congress ought to look much more thoroughly at what the bureau is doing.

Disorder on college campuses undoubtedly presents a problem to the colleges concerned and perhaps to the communities where they are situated as well. But it does not rise to the level of a threat to the internal security of the United States.

Moreover, the intrusion of undercover operatives and student informers into the life of an institution which has the interchange of ideas and the conflict of opinion as its very raison d'etre introduces a disruptive element more deadly than disorder.

The FBI has never shown much sensitivity to the poisonous effect which its surveillance, and especially its reliance on faceless informers, has upon the democratic process and upon the practice of free speech.

But it must be self-evident that discussion and controversy respecting governmental policies and programs are bound to be inhibited if it is known that big brother, under disguise, is listening to them and reporting them.

The FBI is not only insensitive on this score; it is shown by these records to be callous and, indeed, deliberately corrupting. One of the documents encourages agents to step up interviews with dissenters "for plenty of reasons, chief of which are it will enhance the paranoia endemic in these circles and will further serve to get the point across there is an FBI agent behind every mailbox.

"In addition, some will be overcome by the overwhelming personalities of the contacting agent and volunteer to tell all — perhaps on a continuing basis."

That is a concept of internal security appropriate, perhaps, for the secret police of the Soviet Union but wholly inconsonant with the idea of a Federal Bureau of Investigation in the United States. A government of snoopers in a nation of informers was hardly the vision in the minds of those who established the American republic.

We believe the American public needs to know what the FBI is doing. We believe the American public needs to think long and hard about whether internal security rests essentially upon official surveillance and the suppression of dissent or upon the traditional freedom of every citizen to speak his mind on any subject, whether others consider what he says wise or foolish, patriotic or subversive, conservative or radical. That is why we published the substance of the stolen FBI records.

'Yamashita an Asian and His Crime Success'

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

SINGAPORE — A curious little plan of the local tourist promotion board has set Singapore babbling like a schizophrenic on a couch, and it is as if the subconscious of Southeast Asia had been unlocked.

The board, it was reported last month, was proposing to build a waxworks museum on the site of the British surrender to the Japanese in 1942 and the central figure was to be the man who took it — General Tomoyuki Yamashita, "The Tiger of Malaya."

Western veterans of World War II, who quite wrongly see the Japanese as fixed forever in the role of bloodthirsty villain, quite rightly predicted an outburst of indignation. In parliament, a government supporter described as "an insult to the people of Singapore" this move to erect a memorial to "the misdeeds of Japanese militarists" and damned it as a stunt to attract tourists from Tokyo.

The secretary of the appeal committee for Singapore Chinese massacred by the Japanese led an attack in the press to safeguard the honor of his ex-comrades in the anti-Japanese resistance "and many fellow-countrymen who were mercilessly massacred."

'Utterly Obscene, Disgraceful'

Other opponents of the proposal denounced it as "utterly obscene" and a "disgraceful project" and suggested that the board might just as well erect a statue to Chin Peng, secretary-general of the outlawed Malayan Communist party, who master-minded the 12-year-long terrorist campaign in Malaya in the 1950s.

The relevant facts are that when General Yamashita reached Singapore after advancing 400 miles through the "impenetrable" jungles of Malaya, he wrote Lieutenant General Arthur Ernest Percival, the weak-chinned, iron-willed British commander, a letter that was a model of courtesy and consideration, calling upon him to surrender and so save the lives of "thousands of non-combatants living in the city."

But the British prime minister, Winston Churchill, had ordered: "There must be no thought of sparing the troops or the civil population." Percival therefore declined and Yamashita's aircraft began bombing the "non-combatants living in the city" in earnest, thereafter inflicting on the civil population the heaviest casualties of the whole episode.

Harbor Fringed With Corpses

Churchill, meanwhile, bowed to military reality and the Japanese occupation followed. Lorryloads of local people, mainly Chinese rounded up at random, were butchered in batches, the harbor was soon fringed with corpses and after a preliminary burst of untidy savagery the dread Kempetai settled down methodically to their tasks of torture and execution.

It is estimated that up to 50,000 perished in these 225 square miles and many more — Chinese, Eurasian, Indian, British — were sent off to work on the "death railway" in Siam, never to return.

Toward the end of the war Yamashita conducted an equally brilliant defence of Manila, which left the Philippine capital in ruins. When all was over he was tried as a war criminal for the atrocities committed by those under his command and executed.

'A Travesty Of Justice'

There is more than one side to the modern Singapore, however, and a vocal citizen has protested that Yamashita was no war criminal and that his conviction was a "travesty of justice." His "masterful" defence of The Philippines would have earned him a memorial had he been an American.

"Yamashita was, however, and Asian and his crime was that he succeeded where he should have failed and, what is worse, succeeded against the colonial powers and their ilk." Every Asian country that he "liberated" from colonialism should put up a statue to him.

The writer, seemingly an Indian, is closely supported by an equally eloquent Singapore Chinese: "Yamashita rendered Asians a great service. He destroyed the concept of the white man's invincibility, his belief in his divine right to rule and in the divine obligation of the Chinese to serve and to be exploited by him."

The brutal bombing of Singapore's Chinatown is blamed on Percival for his failure to surrender promptly, not on Yamashita for ordering the bombers up. Yamashita's failure to surrender doomed Manila, on the other hand, becomes "epic" defiance of the destructive Americans. "Luckily for us," however, the British warships Repulse and Prince of Wales were sunk and that hastened the end of the agony in Singapore.

Furthermore, it is argued, it is highly debatable whether Yamashita should be held responsible for "the activities of some of his sadistic foot soldiers." And why not a statue of Chin Peng? "Remember he held the British and Australian armies at bay for 10 years."

From beneath these instructive reminders that even the victorious Anglo-Saxon allies of the 1940s were not "the good buys" to all the world there emerges a more elusive psychological trait among Asians, who are basically insecure, in search of identity.

Is not the whole project "an unconscious attempt to glorify imperialism?", one Chinese asks uneasily. The tourist is going to be led into thinking that the surrender of Percival to Yamashita was one of the proudest moments in the history of the island. But the people of Singapore were simply pawns who owed their suffering to both British and Japanese, and fundamentally neutral.

A Sideshow For Trippers

A leader-writer remarks that Singaporeans had "lived in a history which others made." To erect a monument to a Japanese victory over Britain would be "to display a weird historical masochism."

Here is the real core of resentment: That history should have put this ex-colonial micro-republic of native Malays and immigrant Chinese and Indians into so false a position that a world-shattering event for which it provided the miniature stage and the bloody crowd scenes should be a source neither of pride nor shame, and all it can do with it is to turn it into a sideshow for trippers.

Singapore Must Discover Itself

A money-conscious Singapore may make its millions, but there is always a haunting suspicion that unless it can somehow discover itself, find its place in the pattern of world society, others will always run the universe around it. And this mirrors the deep frustrations of many Asian countries which can make their reaction to a given international situation so unpredictable.

One of the most illuminating aspects of the whole Yamashita story is that all the wranglers apparently flung themselves into the debate without bothering to find out what the tourist board really planned.

It is not erecting a heroic statue to Yamashita. It simply wants to include him among a display of effigies and historical tableaux much as Madame Tussaud's in London may put an image of Hitler on show without fear that someone will threaten to blow it up.

Autos Our Last Refuge?

By RUSSELL BAKER

In the beginning a car was a sporting implement. Then came Henry Ford, turning it into a farm tool, and farmers discovered it could, in its spare time, take you to town. The car as a form of transportation device was born with that discovery.

For a while the car as shortest distance between two points flourished, but soon other uses began to overshadow it.

In the 1930s it began to double as a courting chamber.

In the 1940s — the motel had by the time developed respectability and ended the automobile role as trysting place — the automobile began to be a badge. Many persons believed that the car they parked in their garages (the cars were still not too obese to fit into garages, as they now are) was examined by the great world as a statement of a man's wealth, standing and personality.

★ ★ ★

With the 1950s, the manufacturers in Detroit decided that a car was really a sex symbol, which was very silly indeed. So silly, in fact, that it encouraged critics of the automobile to speak more forcefully.

Under the spew of criticism, we discovered that the car was a gasoline guzzler, a polluter, a death trap and a sinister tool of the slicksters who were out to kill cities in order to line the pockets of concrete, cement, asphalt and rubber czars. It is obvious that the car is no longer of much use as transportation, at least in cities, and yet we cannot give it up.

Why do we insist on nosing our gasoline guzzlers into those barely moving streams of traffic, there to sit, dumb starers into vacant space, as the engine consumes ever more expensive fuel?

★ ★ ★

The question is a puzzler. To come to grips with it, we will probably catch ourselves wandering out to our cars, turning the key, moving into traffic. A place where a man can think.

Think about it a moment as we sit here, frozen almost immobile in a sluggish river of cars. With the windows rolled up, we are a long way from the world. Ahead of us, perhaps, some fool half-mad with the need to perforate his ulcer curses the air and threatens the fenders of the harmless to gain a single car length, but for most of these machines give peace, calm, serenity.

Here, and here alone of all the places we may be this day, our long thoughts cannot be interrupted by the telephone — unless, of course, we are among the minuscule minority who have insisted that life is juiceless without a jangler of the highway. If we tune out the constant-stream-of-news station and tune in the Mozart station on the radio, bad news cannot reach us.

We are out of touch with bill collectors, deliverers of coded punch cards, children who need coaching in the multiplication tables. If we have clearly foreseen the proper function of cars when we purchased, we can adjust the interior temperature to satisfy our whims.

The car nowadays, in short, is everyman's green island in the sea. The rich can flee, in their need for peace, to islands in seas of water, where telephones can be made to never ring and television to never come romping head-on into you, shouting about tooth decay.

Most of us can't get to those wonderful islands in seas of water. There are too many of us nowadays. We have had to create artificial seas of traffic, and there we put our islands, those retreats from life's ugly press, the last places to which most of us can go and be absolutely alone.

★ ★ ★

We know that mass transportation is far more sensible for getting to work. But we also know, though we would not dare breathe it aloud, that there are no islands on subway lines. As the population continues its insane increase, we will eventually have to abandon the cars, of course, and take the bus, the subway, the trolly. It is probably inevitable.

That will be a great day for mass planners, but a bad one for most of us.

Soft Terms Given

NEW DELHI (AP) — Canada gave India two interest-free loans totalling $40 million on the softest terms available. The loans, repayable in 50 years with a 10-year grace period, bear no interest, service or commitment charges. The money will be used for purchasing industrial commodities, fertilizers and oil exploration materials. Canadian aid since 1953 has totalled $261 million for the purchase of commodities and fertilizers.

Next My Lai Trial Will Star Generals

FT. MEADE, Md. (WP) — The defence Tuesday said it will reach up into the army hierarchy by "very probably" calling Gen. William Westmoreland and "definitely" summoning Maj.-Gen. Samuel Koster to testify here in the trial of Col. Oran Henderson on My Lai cover-up charges.

Henry Rothblatt, Henderson's civilian counsel, stated that intent as the colonel's preliminary hearing went into its second day at this army base.

Besides Westmoreland and Koster, Rothblatt said Brig.-Gen. George Young Jr. will be called by the defence and predicted that Lt.-Gen. William Peers would appear for the prosecution once the Henderson trial gets going.

This case thus promises to glitter more brightly with generals' stars than did the murder trial of Lt. William Calley at Ft. Benning, Ga. Calley himself is not expected to testify, but Rosenblatt termed Capt. Ernest Medina an "essential" witness for the defence.

Westmoreland, now army chief of staff, was U.S. field commander in Vietnam on March 16, 1968, when Calley and other American troops swept through My Lai and at least 102 inhabitants were killed; Koster was commander and Young his deputy of the American division in which Calley served as a platoon leader; Peers headed the army's inquiry into the My Lai massacre; Henderson, as commander of the 11th brigade, made the post audit of the My Lai raids; and Medina was a company commander Henderson questioned during his My Lai field investigation.

School Shift System Possible

Sangster and Colwood elementary schools may have to go on a shift system next fall if two new elementary schools aren't ready by then.

Construction must begin by May 1 if the new buildings are to be ready for school opening, Sooke district superintendent E. E. Hyndman told the school board Tuesday.

The calling of tenders on a four-room school at Colwood Lake has been held up pending clarification from B.C. Hydro on power installations to the site.

Another four-room building at the corner of Wishart and Metchosin has been held up because the school board still is not sure whether the land is available. The defence department land was originally sought by the Sooke fire deparment for a firehall site, but the fire department decided it was unsuitable.

City Dancers Victorious

Victoria girls won the aggregate trophies award and two special awards — a set of swords — in Saturday's North Island Highland Dancing competition in Courtenay.

Shannon Woodburn, 1745 Feltham Road, got the highest mark in the under 13 class, and Carol Avison was tops in the under 15.

Shannon placed first in the Highland Fling and the Sailor's Hornpipe and second in the Seann Truibhas.

Carol was first in the Fling and the Sailor's Hornpipe in her group.

Other Victoria girls who brought home awards were Arleen Sheppard, 999 Thomas Street, who placed first in the Strathspey and Highland Reel and third in the Sailor's Hornpipe, in the under 15 category; Shelley Petrie, 6783 Central Saanich Road, second in the Strathspey and Highland Reel and third in the Flora McDonald, in the over 15 class and Laurie Lewis, 3958 Marjean Place, first in the Seann Truibhas and second in the Sword dance in the over 15 class.

The girls competed with 190 dancers from the mainland, Victoria and upper island.

Crash Total $2,700

A pickup truck, three cars and a cement wall received a total of $2,700 damages in a spectacular chain-reaction accident at Quadra and Tolmie Tuesday afternoon.

City police said the truck, driven by Raymond H. Ford, 7234 Veyaness, travelling north on Quadra struck a car driven by John R. Abbott, 588 Birch, Sidney, going in the same direction about 4 p.m.

The force of the impact sent the Abbott car into a parked car which went over the sidewalk, hit the wall and bounced off into another car parked in a nearby driveway.

Police said the truck had about $200 damage, the Abbott vehicle $1,000, the first parked car $900 and the second parked car $300 and the wall at 3185 Quadra $300.

Pay Hike 'Falls Short'

VANCOUVER — The provincial government is failing to live up to its obligation to be a good employer, the B.C. Government Employees' Union charged today.

BCGEU general secretary John Fryer said wage increases announced by the government Monday fall considerably short of parity with those in industry and other public services in the province.

"As the largest employer in B.C. the government is obligated to maintain pay scales broadly comparable to wages paid by other good employers in B.C." Fryer said.

The new wage rates give provincial employees increases averaging 6½ per cent effective April 1. Fryer said that collective agreements signed last year by workers in industry and in the federal and municipal governments resulted in pay increases averaging more than nine per cent.

"Wage surveys established that provincial employees deserved at least nine per cent this year to catch up to what other groups got last year," Fryer said.

In wage discussions with the civil service commission earlier this year BCGEU negotiating committees pressed for increases averaging about nine per cent.

Branches and locals of the 15,000-member union will conduct ratification meetings later this month at which occupational groups will vote acceptance or rejection of their 1971 pay increases. Further wage discussions with the civil service commission will be arranged on behalf of occupational groups voting to reject their increases, Fryer said.

12,000-Ton Sale Of Pulp to China

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Forest Products Ltd. of Vancouver has sold 12,000 tons of sulphate pulp to mainland China in a one-delivery order estimated by industry experts to be worth between $1.8 million and $2 million.

Announcement of the sale was made Wednesday by company president L. L. G. Bentley who would not reveal the value of the transaction.

Mr. Bentley said as far as he knows it is the first shipment of wood pulp to China from Canada. The product is to be both bleached and unbleached.

Mr. Bentley said the pulp was sold to a Chincse state trading agency directly, with the help of the Canadian trade commissioner in Peking. No export credits or financial assistance was involved.

Pulp for the order will be produced at the company's Howe Sound pulp mill at Port Mellon and at Prince George Pulp and Paper Ltd. at Prince George. CFP is a 50-50 partner with the Reed Group of London in the interior mill.

Mr. Bentley said of the order: "We have been trying hard in this area for a number of years and have had our own representatives there several times. It should be a growing market. After all, we are a most natural connection for them to deal with."

Tax Line Held At N. Cowichan

NORTH COWICHAN — There will be no increase in the North Cowichan mill rate this year.

Aldermen Wednesday approved the 1971 budget which is $225,292 over 1970's.

★ ★ ★

Finance chairman Don Morton said a substantial increase in assessment due to new houses and industry enabled council to hold the line.

The $3,002,675 budget is broken down into $2,429,870 for general purposes, $572,805 for utilities and special areas. The amount for "other governing bodies" is still undetermined.

'Sneaky' Move On Hunt Ban Approved

NORTH COWICHAN — What some aldermen termed a "sneaky" amendment to the discharge of firearms on Somenos Lake bylaw was approved by council Wednesday.

Although they had recently agreed to ban hunting on the surface of Somenos Lake, leaving only a few properties open on the north end, council changed the bylaw to close all areas on and around the lake.

Ald Dennis Hogan said he seconded the amendment submitted by Ald. Tom Burge because "I am against the idea of private hunting grounds for some people."

Mayor Gerry Smith, Aldermen George Whittaker and Jim Roome voted against the amendment.

Smith said he voted against it because he thought the amendment was "sneaky."

The public had been led to believe the north end of the lake would be open he said.

Third reading will be given to the bylaw on April 21.

Pioneer Rust Researcher Margaret Newton, 83, Dies

Funeral services were held here today for Dr. Margaret Newton, a pioneer wheat rust researcher, who died Monday at the age of 83.

She was the first woman in Canada to receive the Flavelle Medal of the Royal Society for outstanding research in biological sciences.

Dr. Newton, who retired to Victoria in 1945, made a major contribution to agriculture in Canada when she discovered that there are many races of rust and her work in this filed resulted in saving billions of bushels of wheat and millions of dollars.

The Margaret Newton Hall for women at the University of Victoria was named in her honor.

WON GOLD MEDAL

Dr. Newton attended Macdonald College, Quebec, and in 1915 won the Governor-General's medal. When she graduated in 1918, she also won the gold medal, then took her master's degree.

While still at college, she was awarded a studentship to work on rusts.

Meanwhile, research scientist Dr. W. P. Thompson of Saskatoon was worried about some rust idiosyncrasies. A wheat strain he had developed was resistant to rust at Saskatoon but susceptible at Rosthern, a few miles north.

Dr. Newton received permission to spend part time at Saskatoon and the remainder at Minneapolis while studying for a Phd. on a research council scholarship at the University of Minnesota. While in Saskatoon she discovered 14 races of stem rust, thus pioneering in overcoming one of the grain growers' greatest problem.

In 1925, she joined the group of specialist at the Dominion rust research laboratory in Winnipeg. She and Dr. T. Johnson isolated some 65 races of wheat-stem rust. They also demonstrated that all known rust races in Canada mutate and hydridize with each other to create new races.

She retired in 1945 — not because she had found out all she wanted to know about cereal rusts, but because the greenhouses, full of rust spores, gave her an asthmatic condition which was getting worse.

Miss Newton, in 1930 at the invitation of the Russina government, gave a series of lectures at the Leningrad and Moscow universities. She later represented Canada at a number of international conferences on plant pathology.

Dr. Newton is survived by a sister, Dr. Dorothy Swales, a botanist at Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., and three brothers, Dr. William Newton, North Saanich, former dierector of the Domino Experimental Farm in Saanichton, Dr. Robert Newton, former president of the University of Alberta, now living in Ventura, Calif., and Dr. John Newton of Vancouver.

She was a member of the Victoria Natural History Society and the Thetis Lake Nature Sanctuary Association.

Septic Tank Disposal Unit To Be Studied

NORTH COWICHAN — The pollution control committee is studying a septic tank disposal unit at the corner of Drinkwater and North Road, Ald. Tom Burge told council Wednesday.

Burge said he wanted people in the area to be advised of the investigation because they had previously protested the dumping of septic tank sludge in the open.

"This was happening about three years ago," he said. "I don't know where they have been dumping it since then and I don't care to know."

Television in 3-D for Everyone by 1990?

By BOB DOUGLAS

OTTAWA (CP) — Three-dimensional television for everyone?

Well, three-dimensional TV is unlikely to hit the market until 1990, but if Communications Minister Eric Kierans has his way it will be available to everyone.

He threw his weight Wednesday behind the principle of universal access to telecommunications facilities expressed in a special report he had just tabled in the Commons.

"The name of the game is that all Canadians are going to have access, not just to telephone service but to all services such as television," he told reporters.

This takes planning and co-operation among all levels of government and the special report on telecommunications had a good deal to say about that.

It could mean a shake-up in the federal government itself with responsibility for regulating telecommunications carriers transferred to the Canadian Radio-Television Commission from the Canadian transport commission.

KIERANS
. . . futuristic ideas

This was one of several proposals for re-organizing federal duties contained in the 256-page report prepared by a government-appointed body.

Mr. Kierans told the Commons the report contains no official recommendations. The government would be consulting with provincial governments, private firms and individuals before presenting a white paper probably in September.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said they would not comment until they had a chance to study it more closely. Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) said the government is turning out research studies as an excuse for inaction.

The report bulges with futuristic ideas like three-dimensional television through use of lasers and electronic roads which would include fully automatic driving and traffic control.

There could be immense benefits for Canadians but there are dangers as well, says the report.

It adds that "without orderly planning the vision may turn into a nightmare, the wired city into an electronic spaghetti factory."

One of these dangers is the intrusion on individual privacy threatened by computers.

PART OF RESEARCH

Mr. Kierans told a news conference Wednesday the communications and justice departments are spending $125,000 on 11 different studies of the impact of computers on individual privacy.

The studies are a part of research being carried out by a computer communications study group appointed by Mr. Kierans, and whose recommendations will be tabled in the Commons later this year.

Mr. Kierans said that whatever agency is made responsible for telecommunications should be allowed to carry out research and planning as well as set rates.

The transport commission now only deals with rates charged by the telecommunications carriers.

The report also:

1. Suggests creating a nationwide digital data communications network, preferably run by a co-ordinating body. Mr. Kierans said this organization could be entirely run by private companies or a mix of government and industry.

2. Urges a strong research and development program in Canada to enable Canadian telecommunications manufacturers to meet foreign competition.

3. Says that better broadcasting and two-way voice communication services are essential in the north.

4. Recommends consideration of a Canadian network of libraries where information in books would be stored in computers or video-cassettes and sent out electronically to distant readers.

Sweater Seller Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alma Diebolt, who began a personal shopping service in 1945 with a borrowed typewriter and $40 capital, and who sold everything from Eskimo soapstone carvings to fire engines, has died at age 72.

Her celebrity clients — personalities looking for offbeat gifts — included Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Allan Jones and Jimmy Durante.

She was one of the first people to find a market for Eskimo carvings and she helped make the Cowichan Indian sweaters an international in-gift.

In 1948, she obtained the Canadian agency for Ward La France fire equipment and added fire trucks to her inventory.

FIRE HAZARD CITED

Import Curbs for Bedding

OTTAWA (CP) — All blankets, sheets and other bedding produced in or imported into Canada will have to meet standards for inflammability starting March 31, 1972, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford announced today.

The effective date for the new requirement, being made under the Hazardous Products Act, was being delayed to allow manufacturers to meet the increased safety standards.

Mr. Basford said in a news release that some types of bedding which do not meet the new safety standards have been on the market for a number of years.

For more than a year the department's standards branch had been conducting tests which showed a clear need for basic safety standards in bedding, "particularly as a significant number of house fires are known to start in the bedrooms."

The standard performance test involved measuring the burning rate of a five-inch strip of material under specified conditions. A burning rate of less than four seconds was considered dangerously inflammable in products having raised fibre surfaces.

"It is the minimum rate that has been set for a number of textile products in Canada and the United States," Mr. Basford said. "However, to provide an extra safety factor in this type of bedding in Canada, the decision has been made to move directly to a seven-second standard."

Drinks To Go Up

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada said today it plans to follow CP Air and increase the price of in-flight drinks on domestic flights to $1.50 from $1 April 25, when new summer schedules take effect.

The increase in liquor and wine prices does not apply to overseas flights.

An Air Canada spokesman said cost pressures made the increase necessary. "We haven't been making any money on the service."

He noted that U.S. airlines introduced similar price increases for in-flight drinks during the winter.

In Vancouver, a CP Air spokesman said costs are rising so rapidly that Canadian airlines "have to seek every means of increasing revenues."

THIS IS HYDRO'S ATTITUDE

Rights of Some Must Be Secondary For the Good of People at Large

B.C. Hydro is forced to make the rights of some residents a secondary consideration in some cases for the good of the people at large, a Hydro official said Wednesday night.

"In certain cases, the rights of some people must be subjected for the good of the community," Charles W. Nash, manager of Hydro's corporate services, told Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce.

"The people create the demand for electricity, and B.C. Hydro, as a utility, supplies that demand. It makes no demands itself."

The utility has come under repeated fire for its methods of acquiring land and rights-of-way in the Munn and Glen Lake Road areas. Leading residents in these battles are Pat Codyre and Malcolm McSorley of Munn Road and Aubrey Jenkins of Glen Lake Road.

Nash also told the meeting the Island will be using existing electrical supply to capacity before 1975, and said Hydro is considering a thermal power plant using coal or oil.

He said a nuclear plant is a future possibility, but that Hydro wanted to "buy time" until nuclear power development is perfected.

In regard to the Munn and Glen Lake properties, Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan has promised to investigate charges that personal and private property has been violated by Hydro.

* * *

Kiernan, as a director of hydro, conferred Wednesday with Jenkins and Robert Brotherson, spokesmen for nine landowners who have complained about land acquisition policies in their area.

The complaints submitted to Kiernan were that Hydro violated the privacy of one member by using his driveway for their trucks instead of going through their own easement.

It abused its authority when it cut down trees in the path of a survey line without first contacting the landowner.

'Proof' of Funding Attacked by Pollen

The federal government is giving Victoria a "damned good deal" with its offer to finance Cool Aid's proposed youth resources centre, city council was told today.

The remark was made by a Cool Aid spokesman, lawyer Alan Donaldson, who went before an informal meeting of council to defend the proposal to convert Emmanuel Baptist Church, 1900 Fernwood, into a youth hostel.

The required rezoning public hearing was scheduled for 2 p.m. today.

The method of planning the centre came under heavy criticism from four aldermen, who concentrated on the federal promise to grant a low-interest, long term mortgage and grant Cool Aid $1,600 a month.

Ald. Peter Pollen ridiculed the "two silly little telexes" that had been offered as proof of the federal funding.

The telegrams came from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and an officer of the citizenship branch of the Secretary of State Department.

Terms of the mortgage were a $61,000 purchase, paid at 7½ per cent over 50 years.

'INCONSISTENT'

Ald. Harold Olafson called the federal agreement "absolutely inconsistent" and said the property was worth no more than $25,000.

However, Donaldson said council should not lose sight of the fact the Pacific Community Self Development Society would own the building, and if the federal funding was cut off, the mortgage would be foreclosed.

For the federal government to provide a $1,600 a month grant and a 7½ per cent mortgage for a social facility normally within the city's responsibility, he said, is a "damned good deal."

Funding of the proposal is conditional on council's decision to rezone the property for a youth hostel use.

Pollen said that an information sheet provided today was the first indication that the youth hostel was not to include space for the Pacific Drug Dependency Centre. He had earlier questioned the compatibility of a youth hostel with a drug counselling centre.

WIND-SWEPT LOOK was common today as a southeasterly gale brought rain and gusts to over 60 miles an hour. But Sandra Taylor, 11, of 1083 Joan Crescent didn't mind a bit. She's a Grade 5 student at Sir James Douglas School. Forecast is for more clouds Friday but the weather is expected to clear for Easter Sunday and all those new bonnets. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Teacher Association Votes Against Blacklisting 110

An attempt to blacklist 110 teachers who either reported for work or reported sick March 19 was foiled when the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association met behind closed doors Wednesday afternoon.

The number of teachers not observing the strike represented eight per cent of the district.

Resolutions calling for the blacklisting were submitted by the teaching staffs of five schools — S. J. Willis junior high, Lansdowne junior high, Oak Bay junior high, Monterey elementary and McKenzie elementary.

Although the resolutions were defeated a warning was issued that no such leniency can be expected if a strike is called in the future after membership in the B.C. Teachers' Federation becomes voluntary.

Non-observance of strike action will be one of the topics discussed at the BCTF's convention, to be held at the Hotel Vancouver April 12 to 15.

The March 19 strike was called to back up demands for higher pensions for teachers who have already retired.

GVTA president Les Isaacson, reported after the meeting that delegates had approved by a four-to-one majority that no action be taken to list names of those who did or did not protest March 19. The meeting also decided that any GVTA official who had such a list should destroy it.

'OWN CONSCIENCE'

"Greater Victoria teachers decided this was a question of individual conscience," said Isaacson, "and we don't feel any action should be taken against those who didn't go on strike that day."

Two other resolutions were defeated during the meeting. One called for the resignation of any executive member or persons holding representative positions that did not strike March 19. The other sought a vote of non-confidence in such individuals.

The only person who would have been affected, had the resolutions been passed, would have been a past president, Kory Reagan, who did not strike because she felt the strike action constituted a breach of contract.

Uvic Faculty Ballots Ordered Destroyed

Ballots cast in a faculty vote on the question of confidence or non-confidence in University of Victoria President Bruce Partridge have been ordered destroyed unopened because of "impossible conditions" imposed by registrar Ron Ferry, said Faculty Association president Don Harvey.

Harvey said Thursday, that after ballots had been collected, Ferry suddenly imposed a set of regulations the faculty had never heard of before.

The regulations called for the presence during the ballot-count of those who voted, and there was a stipulation that names of all who voted be "announced one at a time."

The ballots were distributed Monday and were to be counted Wednesday in a vote similar to that conducted by students. The students voted overwhelmingly for a non-confidence motion in Partridge.

"The constraint placed on the counting of votes by the regulations makes if virtually impossible to consider having that vote counted now," Harvey said.

NO COMMENT

Ferry, who informed the faculty of the regulations governing the vote in a confidential letter, said he had no comment on the situation.

"I'm not conducting the vote, that's all I am saying."

A statement from the majority of the Faculty Association executive released this morning said Ferry threatened to return ballots to voting faculty members if challenged in writing.

This was done, said the statement, "on the grounds that he had not known the nature of the issue to be voted upon and that some faculty members had expressed concern about the authority under which the ballots were being circulated."

'... IN GOOD FAITH'

"This was unacceptable to the executive."

The statement said that while the 10 stipulations by Ferry were "individually innocuous" their ad hoc basis was also unacceptable.

"The executive acted in good faith ... and in the belief that the issue of confidence in the president was one which should be settled by the faculty at this time in the best interests of the university."

The vote was called on the basis of a 37-name petition to the Faculty Association executive.

The blocking of the faculty vote was expected to have effects on a joint faculties meeting scheduled today for 3:30, and at least one faculty member said "feelings of indignation" were being expressed.

A meeting of students in the graduating class was scheduled for today at noon, and main item on the agenda was to be a discussion of whether graduating students want Partridge's signature on their degrees.

Hospital Union Wants Loffmark To Check Books

A union official Wednesday night challenged the operators of the struck Sandringham Private Hospital to permit an "impartial observer," perhaps Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, to examine the company books.

Ray Mercer, assistant western regional director of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, issued the challenge at a meeting of the Victoria Labor Council.

The hospital administrators, National Nursing Homes of Vancouver, have said the hospital is losing money and can't afford the demands of 28 employees, on strike at the hospital six months for a first CUPE contract.

Mercer also said the hospital is paying a higher hourly rate to guard dogs used on the grounds since the strike began than was being paid the 28 strikers. The employees were being paid the minimum $1.50 hourly wage before they struck Sept. 30.

Transfer Program Affects 12 Principals

About a dozen principals and vice-principals will move to different schools within the Greater Victoria school district this fall, superintendent A. J. Longmore said today.

He said it was a continuation of an accelerated transfer program begun last year. There are 57 schools in the district.

Asked the reasoning behind more transfers, Longmore said the school board believes there are some education benefits to be gathered from periodic changes.

Principals and vice-principals, like anyone else moved in industry, are challenged by a new environment which often moves them to reassess their approaches and the approach of the school they move to.

Gunman Gets $302

City police are looking for a lone gunman who escaped with $302 from the Pay-N-Save gas station, 212 Esquimalt Road, late Wednesday evening.

A police spokesman said the man appeared in the office about 11:15 p.m. wearing a stocking over his head and holding a small gun in his right hand.

He told attendant, Danny Allen, "don't move," grabbed a green canvas bag with the money from a desk and fled on foot west through Victoria West park.

VMD AWARDED EAST CONTRACT

Victoria Machinery Depot has been awarded a contract worth about $300,000 to build a pressure vessel for Petrofina Canada Ltd. refinery at Point-aux-Trembles, near Montreal.

The unit, called a high pressure separator for the refinery's hydrocracking plant, will separate liquids from gasses and is expected to be delivered in the fall.

VMD said it will have walls 7¼ inches thick and its engineered design is of a category more critical than any previously built by the Victoria plant.

Arthur Mayse . . .

ABOUT THIS TIME IN the burgeoning year, an editor I worked with in other pastures would look out from our shared cubicle at swelling bud and greening grass. He would then take a bottle of Ireland's best from his disorderly desk and pour three-finger libations in paper cups filched from the office water cooler.

Thus primed, he would salute the vernal explosion in verse of Elizabethan courtliness and flavor.

"Our lady spring hath burst her bodice," he would declaim. "The season's ripe, and so's the goddess!"

I never did get to hear more of this rhyme, because the editor would then rise from his chair, shrug into his jacket, and amble off for a beer chaser.

Another spring has burst her bodice, and though our office rules prevent me from celebrating the fact with the juice of the barley, there are other ways of observing it.

One is to sit at this desk in a state of blissful idleness while thoughts that have nothing to do with the workday take shape.

Right now, I'm thinking about two boats. One of them is overdue for the rites of spring. The other lacks what every honest craft deserves. This is a formal christening.

Our big boat — a term I apply only to distinguish it from its peewee fleet-mate — is now so old that I can't remember which year in the early 1950's it entered our lives. We bought it second-hand from the carpenter who built it of marine plywood and yellow cedar. If he's still in these parts, I'd like him to know that it remains sturdy and sea-kind.

My wife insists that it's 13 feet long. By centre-line measurement, with the tape permitted to sag a little, I make it a few inches shorter than that ill-omened figure. Our first launching, a wet and back-straining struggle, was on a morning of flat calm that deteriorated into the sort of afternoon that shouldn't happen in summer.

We got a snootful of weather, but our boat behaved like a lady when the swells became cresters, and brought us in with bailing can still dry.

It was a performance that inspired trust: It also taught us that these are tricky waters, and that weather forecasts should be heeded.

There are plenty of jobs that could stand doing, this first long weekend of spring. Digging and raking. Cutting grass and sweeping blacktop. But April is the month when a wooden hulf needs painting, and there's also the matter of a christening for our new little boat.

No wood in that one except for the rowlock blocks! Its chubby seven feet are moulded of tough plastic that requires no maintenance beyond an occasional sluicing with a garden hose. We chose it for the coves and the trout lakes because of its lightness coupled with stability, and a trouting it will take us before the weekend's done.

I should report that its twin keels have already taken a trial dousing in the Gorge, but that was done on impulse and doesn't really count. We merely happened to be passing by, with bathtub-shaped junior perched virgin on the cartop bars, when temptation beckoned.

We unloaded, with dubious glances at the "Water Polluted. No Bathing" sign handy-by. Then we shoved off, my dear one grasshoppered in the bow and me rowing longshore style from the stern.

Our fears were groundless. Junior rode like a swan. As a matter of fact, her plump little white hull attracted the attention of several Gorge swans paddling in the vicinity.

The noble but outsized birds kept edging closer, and we had business elsewhere. So we left them in possession.

But Saturday, rain or shine, we'll launch her on other waters well christened in a manner that the spring-halling editor at the start of this ramble would approve!

'EASTER SURPRISE' FOR CITY

Bunnies, Bunnies Everywhere

The Easter bunny came to life today as he and six assistants hopped around the city tossing easter eggs from an old paint pail to smiling Victorians.

Members of Victoria Senior Secondary's cabinet (the elected student body) decided to give their classmates an "Easter surprise" at this morning's assembly. It went over so well, principal J. D. Lorimer allowed them to spread their good cheer elsewhere in the city.

Before they bounded into the Times newsroom, with their shiny little eggs, they had been to the children's ward at Royal Jubilee Hospital and to Glenwarren Private Hospital. They said they had stopped men working on the road and given them eggs.

"We're off to hit an elementary school, to see what that's like," said one as they skedaddled out the door.

Bruins Lose Target But Still Nip Habs

BILL WALKER

Horse racing anyone? The B.C. Jockey Club is back in business, or will be, starting April 14. And the hot news at the moment is that Court Clown, the $15,000 claim by the Jawl Bros., already has paid off. Two victories in two starts is the record, the latest being in a $25,000 race at San Francisco. The horse, which ran six furlongs in 1:08 2/5 will stay in the south for a time because of its good fortune, natch, and the fact that the purses are better. Later in the season, he will race at Exhibition Park. So bring money.

The social note is that jockey Brian Swatuk is returning and bringing with him a bride. Swatuk, who began his riding career at Ex-Park in 1967, then went on to become Canada's leading rider the next season while campaigning in Ontario, is married to Staff Smythe's daughter. Meanwhile, back in Ontario, the bettors are having their problems with the new "No-Show" wagering, and not spending as much either. The new betting is confusing, in that in a field of eight or less, a place ticket can be cashed only if the horse finishes first or second. In a field of nine, or more, however, a place ticket can be cashed if the horse finishes first, second, or THIRD. Which is where the "Stoopers" come in, and are having a field day. A stooper is a fellow who stoops to pick up uncashed mutuel tickets. It is not unusual for bettors to throw money away in this fashion.

Incidentally, show betting is out at Ex-Park. Two additional quinella pools have been added. Quinella bets will now be $3 and $5, exactos $2 and $5.

●

There was the item, too, that once the trap is sprung, hockey won't be that soon forgotten, either. Two of the young crowd running at Ex-Park won't let the fans forget. One of the two-year-olds is named Ferguson's Goal, the other the Gumper. Oh yes, the real John Ferguson has a half interest in both. And now that Hoist the Flag had had his career ended by a broken leg, will be the choice for the Kentucky Derby? Opinion is deeply divided at the moment, but the likely choice derby day will be Eastern Fleet. He has twice beaten Jim French, who knocked off the west coast pride and joy, Unconscious, in the Santa Anita Derby last Saturday.

It's not often that one professional golfer suggests the other fellow has the style the ordinary weekend duffer should copy. But Arnold Palmer is that gracious. In a rare tribute, Palmer says that Trevino's stance, slightly open, with the left foot pulled back approximately one inch, is just the thing for Mr. Average. Besides, it may produce better scores. Bert Buller called, too, to say that when some of the highlights of Bernie Schwengers athletic career were being recounted, rugby was omitted. "Bernie's picture," says Bert, "is in the officer's mess at the Armories." Bert admits that Bernie was a great all-rounder, but gives his first vote in that category to Doug Peden, along with the significant observation that both achieved fame on the rugger field with the same team — Fifth Regiment.

In the post was a note and a clipping from a Boston paper, regarding coach Tom Johnson of the Boston Bruins, and the rigid control he excercises over the Bruins. It was in Boston, and two of the Bruins were late in reporting to the bus for transportation to the airport. Johnson held the bus, for the miscreants, for exactly one minute. Then left. The late arrivals had to grab a cab in order to make the plane connection. If they hadn't, they would have had to pay their own fare to the next town. Which illustrates, the writer suggests, where fun ends, and firmness begins. Even of a super team!

There is a suspicion too that Victoria Cougar players, who threw a pair of rebellions at management during the course of the B.C. Junior Hockey League campaign, were not always well-advised. They lost a great deal of support and public respect as a result of their adamant ways.

It is unfortunate for some of the younger players that the lack of wisdom on the part of some of the older players reflected on all.

There was one example that came to light during Cougars' unfortunate playoff series against Chilliwack.

If you remember back to the great February revolt, one of the conditions of settlement was that general manager Eric Bishop remain out of the players' dressing room.

He did, except once.

Bishop, who was made to be more of an ogre than he seems, violated the condition in order to present each player with a team picture.

Bishop did not have to do it. The cost of the pictures was $35.

Did he get thanks?

Several of the younger players welcomed the picture and thanked Bishop.

But the immediate reaction of the clubhouse lawyers: What right did he have coming into the dressing room?

G'nite all, and you, too, Eric.

Rangers Squeeze by Leafs As Goalies Become Sieves

By The Canadian Press

The goals were supposed to come in bunches at Boston Wednesday night while the battle of the goaltenders was to take place in New York.

But Boston Bruins, who bombed Montreal in their last two National Hockey League regular-season meetings, had trouble finding the trigger Wednesday as they nipped the Canadiens 3-1 in the opening game of their East Division semi-final series.

And New York's Ed Giacomin and Toronto's Jacques Plante failed to live up to their regular-season goaltending feats as the Rangers edged the Maple Leafs 5-4 in their East Division opening game.

The Bruins, defending Stanley Cup champions and East Division title-holders, had beaten the Canadiens 6-3 and 7-2 in the closing week of the regular schedule.

"We didn't play as well tonight as in those games," said Bruin coach Tom Johnson. "But then again, they didn't let us."

Johnson, who played with the Canadiens for 13 seasons before joining the Bruins in 1963, said Wednesday's game was "the most physical" he had seen the Canadiens play in two years.

"Maybe if they think they have to hit us to beat us, they will hit," Johnson said. "We don't care. . . . We're a pretty good hitting club ourselves."

Habs Hurt by Early Penalties

Despite the new-found agressiveness of the Canadiens, Boston held a 1-0 lead before four minutes had elapsed in the game when Boston superstar defenceman Bobby Orr scored with Montreal's Pete Mahovlich and Terry Harper in the penalty box serving minors. Pete's brother, Frank, was also off with a misconduct.

The Canadiens evened the score early in the second period when John Ferguson scored with the Bruins a man short.

Wayne Cashman put the Bruins out in front 2-1 midway through the period and Fred Stanfield notched the insurance marker at 8:47 of the final period.

Referee John Ashely hit the Bruins with nine minors and the Canadiens with seven minors. Each team was tagged with two misconducts.

Montreal coach Al MacNeil was particularly upset at Ashely's failure to give Orr a game misconduct in the third period after the Bruin defenceman left the penalty box to argue an Ashley ruling that put him there.

Orr had been given a minor for holding Montreal right winger Yvan Cournoyer, then penalized further with a misconduct for arguing the call.

Orr Restrained by Teammates

Orr entered the penalty box, then stormed out after Ashley, finally being physically restrained by his team-mates before leaving the ice.

Orr said in the Bruin dressing room that Ashley "could have called a lot more penalties before that. I just asked him about the call and he gave me 10 minutes."

The two goalies with the best individual NHL goals-against average—Jacques Plante of Toronto with 1.88 and New York's Ed Giacomin with 2.15—became human sieves in the hard-hitting game at New York.

The Maple Leafs held two-goal leads twice then watched as the Rangers got untangled in the final period to sew up the game.

Vic Hadfield scored twice for the Rangers but Bob Nevin's goal with three seconds left in the second period that brought New York to within one goal of Toronto proved to be the deciding factor.

"Nevin's goal was the turning point," said Emile Francise, New York's general manager-coach. "We never lost our momentum after that.

Toronto coach John McLellan agreed.

"Nevin's goal did us in. They really turned it on in the third period although we expected that."

But McLellan reserved judgment on the goaltending of the veteran Plante.

"I've seen Jacques Plante sharper," he said, "but I won't criticize him after the way he played for us."

The Bruins play host to the Canadiens tonight in the second game of their series while Toronto has another crack at the Rangers in New York.

Hawks, North Stars Lean on Power Play

By The Canadian Press

Chicago Black Hawks and Minnesota North Stars capitalized on manpower advantages Wednesday night for opening-game victories in the National Hockey League's West Division semi-finals.

The Black Hawks scored three power-play goals, two by Bobby Hull, to crush Philadelphia 5-2 and maintain their home-ice mastery over the Flyers. Philadelphia has not won a game in Chicago since joining the NHL in the 1967 expansion.

And Danny Grant scored once on the power play and engineered another as the visiting North Stars snapped a 1-1 tie in the third period for a 3-2 upset win over St. Louis Blues.

Both best-of-seven series resume tonight at Chicago and St. Louis.

In East Division playoff action, Boston Bruins defeated Montreal Canadiens 3-1 and New York Rangers edged Toronto Maple Leafs 5-4.

Hull scored the first of his power-play efforts at 2:50 of the opening period with Flyers' defenceman Larry Hale in the penalty box as the Black Hawks held a 2-1 scoring margin in each of the first two periods.

The Golden Jet scored what proved to be the eventual winner at 6:24 of the second with Philadelphia captain Ed Van Impe off.

Defenceman Doug Jarrett fired Chicago's third power-play goal later in the second period to make it 4-2 after Flyers' rookie Bob Kelly had cut the Black Hawks lead in half.

HELD SHOOTING EDGE

The Flyers held a wide shooting advantage in the final 40 minutes of the game, testing Chicago goaltender Tony Esposito with 27 shots while all the Hawks could muster at Doug Favell in the Philadelphia goal was 17.

With Grant supplying the late-game scoring thrust, the North Stars were held together by goaltender Ceasar Maniago's heroics.

The lanky Trail, B.C., native stopped 42 St. Louis shots in helping Minnesota upset the Blues and the oddsmakers who had labelled St. Louis victors in their opening game.

Maniago faced 34 shots in the last two periods, including 18 in the second when he held St. Louis scoreless.

Rookies Jude Drouin of Minnesota and Fran Huck of St. Louis exchanged first-period goals which stood up until Grant went to work in the final period.

The former junior star with Peterborough Petes set up linemate Jean-Paul Parise with the go-ahead goal at 3:57 of the third period then notched the winner less than four minutes later.

The Blues continued to press and Garry Unger brought them close with just six seconds left in the game. St. Louis still had an opportunity for the tie, but Christian Bordeleau's rising shot just missed as the game ended.

Hit by 'Reserve' Spells L.A. Loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jesus Alou, Houston outfielder who's in an unaccustomed reserve role this season, came off the bench in the third inning and ripped three singles, including the game-winning hit in the eighth, as the Astros topped Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 in National League action Wednesday.

Elsewhere, St. Louis Cardinals crushed Chicago Cubs 14-3, Atlanta Braves topped Cincinnati Reds 2-1 and San Francisco Giants dumped San Diego Padres 7-3. Wet grounds postponed the Montreal Expos-New York Mets contest.

Alou broke into the lineup after Jim Wynn sprained his back while at bat. He got three singles off Dodger ace Don Sutton, including the go-ahead run that scored Cesar Cedeno.

The Dodgers had trouble from the start. First catcher Bill Sudakis lost his contact lens. Then infielder Bill Russell lost Cedeno's pop fly that set up the unearned, winning run.

Joe Morgan's sacrifice fly moved Cedeno to third base and Cedeno scurried home on Alou's safety to right.

George Culver saved the victory for Wade Blasingame, getting pinch-hitter Richie Allen to hit into a game-ending double play.

Jose Cardenal and Joe Hague each drove in four runs as the Cardinals capitalized on five Cub errors. The losers gave up nine unearned runs as third baseman Ron Santo and first baseman Joe Pepitone committed two errors each.

Southpaw Steve Carlton, a 19-game loser last year, checked the Cubs on three hits.

St. Louis, aided by three errors, scored five unearned runs in the third, and Hague delivered two of the runs with a single in a six-run sixth for the Cardinals.

AARON CONNECTS

Hank Aaron struck his first home run of the season and 593rd of his career and Clete Boyer knocked in another run in a two-run seventh that carried Atlanta over Cincinnati. Until the Braves' rally, they had been able to reach Reds' starter Jim McGlothlin for only one hit.

Dick Dietz, Ken Henerson and Willie Mays unloaded homers and Gaylord Perry pitched a four-hitter for San Francisco.

Nate Colbert was the whole San Diego offence; knocking in all the runs with two homers.

Nineteen White Sox passed home plate Wednesday night as Chicago swept an American League doubleheader from Oakland Athletics but only 18 remembered to touch it.

Carlos May, whose long ball into the seats with two mates aboard in the first inning of the nightcap touched off a 12-4 Chicago win, stepped over the plate and saw a two-run homer dissolve into a two-run triple after a ruling by umpire Jim Odom.

The White Sox won the first game 6-5.

In other games, Baltimore Orioles edged Washington Senators 3-2, Minnesota Twins blanked Milwaukee Braves 4-0 and California Angels dumped Kansas City Royals 7-3.

GLENLYON LOSES, 6-5

Glenlyon School rugby team, on tour of the United Kingdom, suffered a heartbreaking 6-5 loss today to Ferndale Grammar School after holding a 5-3 lead at the half.

Maurice Wiart scored a try for Glenlyon which was converted by Angus Izzard but Ferndale scored near the start of the second half and held on for the victory.

Harry Carter, scoring standout with Glenlyon, suffered a cracked rib in the game.

The game was the fourth of the tour for Glenlyon, but the fifth and final game has been cancelled. The boys will stay in Britain for another week sightseeing before returning home.

CELTIC EARNS SCOTTISH CUP SOCCER BERTH

GLASGOW (CP) — Celtic qualified to meet Glasgow Rangers in the Scottish Football Association Cup final May 8 when they beat Airdrieonians 2-0 in a semi-final replay here Wednesday night.

Celtic, winner of the cup on 20 occasions, made hard work of winning. The home team went in the 51st minute when Jimmy Johnstone netted.

Harry Hood scored the clincher six minutes from time after Airdrieonians just missed on numerous shots.

Broncos Win Again

Penticton Broncos defeated Red Deer Rustlers 6-4 Wednesday night in Penticton to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven Centennial Cup playoff series.

The game between the British Columbia Junior Hockey League Broncos and the Alberta Junior Hockey League Rustlers was disrupted by several fights, with Red Deer coach Alf Cadman at one point pulling his team off the ice to protest what he thought was unfair assessment of penalties by referee Dale Kassell.

Wayne Saville and Terry Wedderburn of the Rustlers and Tom Gawryletz of Penticton were ejected from the game after a second-period fight sparked a melee involving all but one of the players on the ice at the time.

Cadman brought his players back on the ice after Kassell gave the team a two-minute deadline and play was resumed.

Bruce Affleck led Penticton with three goals, with singles going to Fred Parent, Vic Mercredi and Gary Donaldson.

Wyn Dempster, with two, Doug Stumpf and Mickey Girard scored for Red Deer.

Two more players, Mercredi of Broncos and Brent Going of Red Deer, were ejected for third-period fighting.

Third game of the series will be played in Red Deer Friday.

In Ottawa, Ottawa Rangers made it two in a row Wednesday over Detroit Junior Red Wings, winning 4-2 in the Eastern Canada junior hockey semi-final.

Rangers lead that series 2-0, with more games scheduled in Detroit Friday, Sunday, and Monday if necessary.

Victoria Loses Canadian Final

The hopes of the Victoria Centennials, Canada's representative senior amateur baseball team, of playing for their country in the Pan-American Games this summer were dashed Wednesday by the president of the Canadian Baseball Federation.

Not only that, but Bob Lacousere of Saskatoon has advised Gar Taylor, president of the B.C. Amateur Baseball Association that this year's Canadian senior amateur team championships will not be held in Victoria as had been planned.

Lacousere informed Taylor by wire that he had appointed a manager and coach for the national team from Saskatchewan and Manitoba and that the team would be made up of players from all Canada and not just from one city.

The wire also said the federation would sponsor only junior championships and that these would be held in Saskatchewan.

The moves by Lacousere overturn previous decisions by the Canadian federation. Taylor, who had earlier named Jerry Parker as manager and Ian Gray as coach of the national team, says he expects more details of Lacousere's decisions in a letter.

Taylor, who is baseball's representative on the Pan-Am Games committee, said he had already completed stadium arrangements for the championships and had booked accommodation at the University of Victoria.

He said he was not sure the moves by Lacousere would be accepted by the federation membership or by Pan-Am Games planners.

Deadline Near In Island Open

Vancouver Island golfers hoping to vie for prizes and glory in the 22nd annual Times Island Open tournament have less than five days in which to submit their entry.

Entries must be in the hands of tournament secretary Leo Derman By Monday.

The official entry form is printed on the left.

The 18-hole qualifying round will be played April 18 at Victoria Golf Club and will be limited to 160 starters, with preference given to low handicaps.

The Island's only major match-play tournament, the Open is always one of the most popular events for the competition-minded. There's prestige and, of course, prizes.

TOUGHEST TEST

Prestige goes to the winner because in claiming The Daily Times Trophy, the winner will have mastered the cream of the Island's shotmakers as well as the five major 18-hole courses in the Greater Victoria area.

After qualifying, 32 low scorers make the grade into open competition and a similar number move into competition for the Hugh Francis (handicap) Trophy.

Match play gets under way April 25 at Colwood, then moves to Glen Meadows (may 2), Gorge Vale (may 9) and Uplands (may 16) before winding up with the 36-hole finals at Oak Bay on May 23.

Defending champion is Gorge Vale professional Earl Davies, who defeated driving range pro Laurie Carroll in last year's finals.

And Davies will be back to defend the trophy. His entry was one of the earliest received by Derman.

OUTDOOR SCENE

By Barry Thornton

Many items in the creel this week.

A release from the fish and wildlife branch notes no open season for elk on Vancouver Island during the 1971 hunting season. Last season approximately thirty bull elk were taken by hunters during the short nine day season. This total was well within the safety limits of the huntable surplus available.

For most Island hunters who regard elk hunting as one of the major quality outdoor experiences, this closure, particularly when there is a huntable surplus, eliminates one more of the opportunities which make up our quality outdoors.

If some form of restriction is necessary let it be in the form of a permit system alloting a restrictive number of tags and permitting hunters in only specific areas. Vancouver Island elk hunting provides an ideal situation for this forward and imaginative form of management. However, once again we see the blanket management policy adopted and in this case it has very effectively eliminated one of the few remaining quality experiences for the consumptive outdoorsman.

How much did that salmon cost? A questionnaire circulated to Washington State salmon anglers posed a series of hypothetical questions designed to measure the net benefits from sports salmon fishing. Returns from the questionnaire showed a direct out-of pocket fishing cost for the average sports fisherman to catch a salmon at $20. In 1970 the state recorded a total of 880,000 salmon taken by sports anglers.

The recent passage of legislation in Montana and Idaho reclassifying cougar as a game animal now gives the cougar the long-fought-for game status in all areas of the Pacific Northwest including B.C. and Alberta. Game status effectively eliminates bounties and bounty killing.

Vancouver Island regional game biologist, Ian Smith, recently announced the beginning of a study of cougar on Vancouver Island. He estimated that the Island population of mature males numbers near 500. Having a home range of from 5 to 25 square miles, he also stated that these animals were in no immediate danger particularly as its chief prey, the Blacktail deer is now estimated at 300,000 animals on the Island.

As regional game biologist for the Island, Smith has requested observation reports from all Island citizens of Vancouver Island's rare wildlife. The reports when tabulated will form a basis for management of these rare and in many cases endangered species. Specifically he would like authentic reports of sightings of the following animals within the past ten years. The Island marmot, the Roosevelt Elk, Island wolf, the ptarmigan, Island wolverine as well as Falcon, hawk and eagle nests and heronries. Reports should be sent to Ian Smith, Fish and Wildlife Branch, Court House, Nanaimo, B.C.

Pesticides carried by the Japanese current off the coast of the Queen Charlotte Islands have placed the falcon not only on the list of Canada's rare wildlife but, also on the extreme endangered list. Smith states that food animals in the area are now averaging nine parts per million of DDT while in the same area falcons have been recorded with 59 parts per million. Physiological damage begins when the count reaches 2 parts per million.

A record 33 pound coho salmon has been reported by the U.S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife. The catch, taken in October, 1970, from the Manistee River in Michigan, surpasses the previous record of 31 pounds taken in 1947 from Cowichan Bay.

A table of brant kill checks by fish and wildlife branch staff on Vancouver Island shows a phenomenon of the past decade which has seen the decline of pre-March migrants.

Week	1964	1965	1966	1967	1968	1969	1970	1971
Feb. 18 - Feb. 24	0	3	17	4	10	5	9	1
Feb. 25 - Mar. 3	7	26	14	97	52	21	76	13
Mar. 4 - Mar. 10	43	389	326	635	334	67	413	45

The report states that "until 1961, the brant season ended prior to March and there were always birds taken. In 1957 there was an estimated 800-1000 brant taken on Vancouver Island near the end of February."

In the early sixties the hunting season continued to be advanced to March 10, the deadline date set by the international migratory bird treaty to provide birds for the hunter.

However, to quote the report, ". . . it is considered probable that hunting seasons have tended to place higher hunting pressure on early migrants, and that this pressure may have resulted in destruction of much of the early migrating segment of the brant season. As a result the Branch is proposing that the brant season be closed on Vancouver Isalnd except during March in an effort to encourage brant to winter in this area.

Dawson Blasts Idea For College Stars

RIVERS, Man. (CP) — Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Wednesday discounted as "utterly ridiculous" the suggestion that a university all-star hockey team might represent Canada in world tournaments.

Dawson was commenting from his home here on statements by Clarke Drake, University of Alberta hockey coach, who has been selected coach for an all-star college team to compete at the World Student Games at Lake Placid, N.Y., next spring.

Drake said there is a "possibility that the college players might represent Canada in international competition."

Dawson said "tell him to go back to bed and wake up properly."

He said the CAHA has made no decisions regarding college international play, but it will be discussed at the annual meeting in May in Thunder Bay, Ont.

"We're still saying the best hockey players will play for us in world tournaments," he said.

Dawson indicated the annual meeting's decision may or may not allow participation in the Lake Placid tournament.

If the CAHA disallows participation and the college coaches "don't like it, they'll have to withdraw from CAHA membership, that's all."

Canada withdrew from world hockey competition before the 1970 world championships, to have been played in Canada, over a disagreement on the use of professionals.

Vikings, Velox Play For Titles

Championship teams of the Victoria Rugby Union's first and second divisions will travel to Vancouver Saturday to compete for British Columbia championships.

University of Victoria Vikings will tangle with Vancouver's Kats for the first division crown while Velox of the second division, undefeated in league and playoff competition, will meet Kats' second team.

Games are scheduled for 1:00 and 2:30 p.m. at Vancouver's Brockton Oval.

B.C. Swimmers Edge French

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia swimmers took seven of 12 events Wednesday to win a dual meet with the French national team, currently touring Canada. The final score was B.C. 53, France 48.

Karen James of Vancouver, a member of Canada's Pan-American Games team, won two of the races, the 100-metre freestyle and the 100-metre butterfly with times of 1:01.9 and 1:09.7 respectively.

Gil Vigne of Paris set a Canadian open record for the 100-metre men's freestyle which he won in 53.9. Bob Jamieson of the United States held the previous record of 54.2 set in 1969.

French swimmers won four of the six men's events, although the visiting girls failed to win a single race.

Alain Mosconi of Marseille won the 100-metre butterfly in 58.7, Bernard Combet, also of Marseille, won the 100-metre breaststroke in 1:10.3 and Jean Paul Berjeau won the 200-metre backstroke in 2:13.5.

Ian Mackenzie of Ocean Falls, B.C., won the 200-metre men's freestyle in 2:00.7 and Ron Jacks of Vancouver won the 400-metre freestyle in 4:17.6.

Shirley Roulston of Burnaby won the women's 100-metre backstroke in 1:09.9 and Sylvia Dockerill of Vancouver won the 100-metre breaststroke in 1:18.5.

A B.C. team won the women's 400-metre medley relay in 4:42.5 while the French won the corresponding men's event in 4:06.6.

Manitoba NDP to Test Guaranteed Annual Income System

WINNIPEG (CP) — Pilot programs for an integrated income security system topped an extensive list of economic and social measures proposed Wednesday in the speech from the throne opening the Manitoba legislature.

Few details of the system were given in the speech, outlining legislative plans for the third session under premier Ed Schreyer's 21-month-old New Democratic Party government.

The premier told reporters outside the house an integrated security system "takes us into the whole question of guaranteed annual income."

Social welfare programs have got into "a kind of administrative thicket" in Canada and North America, he said. "We feel that perhaps it's time now to really go at it in a concerted way to come up with income supplement programs of a kind that will not reduce but enhance incentive to work.

"This takes us into the whole question of the guaranteed annual income—negative income tax.

"We're suggesting that since the federal and provincial governments are beginning to talk about it we should . . . see if we can set up pilot programs in Manitoba, and hopefully other provinces will do the same thing."

REQUIRE RENEGOTIATION

The premier had earlier indicated that about 5,000 Manitobans would be involved in the experimental plan.

The speech, read by Lt.-Gov. W. J. McKeag, said transfer of the "existing piecemeal social welfare programs" into an integrated security system "will require a vigorous renegotiation of federal-provincial arrangements, including cost-sharing formulae."

The remainder of the speech contained several proposals earlier outlined by the premier, along with a number of new items. New proposals included establishment of an economic development fund for poor communities, setting up of a department of co-operative development, a study of the establishment of community health centres and a "significant initiation" of day care facilities.

The speech received a mild reception from opposition critics.

Conservative Leader Sidney Spivak said the proposals appeared well-intentioned "but at the same time it indicates increased government spending . . . and in general greater government involvement and greater government control over the individual."

What is needed, he said, is a reform of the apparatus of government to cut down on spending.

Liberal Leader I. H. Asper said a full judgment cannot be made until the proposals are presented as legislation, but from what he had seen the speech was "acceptable" to him.

When two NDP members returned in byelections Monday take their seats April 22, the government will have 30 seats in the 57-member legislature. There are 21 Conservatives, three Liberals, one Social Crediter and two Independents.

TO INCREASE INCOME

The speech says the primary thrust of economic development policies will be programs "which will not only increase average per-capita income, but will also improve the distribution of that income among the population."

In this vein it proposed creation of a provincial mineral exploration company, to operate on its own or in joint ventures with private firms, and predicted other resources development programs "designed to provide persons living in the proximity of our natural resources with greater opportunity of realizing some of the benefits thereof."

The speech also confirmed the premier's pledge to reduce the share of education costs borne by the municipal taxpayer through a five-per-cent increase in the province's share of the cost of basic education and a system of tax credits on residential units.

A previously-announced $4 million program of acreage payments to farmers and a federal-provincial program to provide water and sewage facilities to rural residents were outlined in the speech, as well as legislation on the sale and condition of farm machinery.

As expected, the speech proposes legislation to reorganize the municipal boundaries of Greater Winnipeg, and to set up a commission to conduct provincial lotteries.

Machinists Hit Big One

LEEDS, England (Reuter) — Fourteen machinists from a factory in Leeds won a record £406,339 ($975,213.60) on the football pools Tuesday.

The men, whose company folded 14 months ago then started up again under new ownership, formed a syndicate shortly after getting their jobs back.

Although the machines were idle Tuesday when the men travelled to London to collect their winnings, some of them at least intend to go on making instrument panels in this northern England city.

Meanwhile, 10 workers at a factory in Newport Pagnell, northwest of London, won £145,189 ($348,453.60) on another pool.

Ringneck Chickens?

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A rooster born of a ringneck pheasant and a chicken is the father of three chicks, after mating with a bantam chicken, Dr. Kurt Benirschke of the University of California at San Diego reports. The three chicks were born in olive green eggs. They look like chickens but eat pheasant food.

Opposition Backs Tough Line on Sea Fishing

By JOHN HAY

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill to toughen enforcement of an international agreement on fishing on the high seas got support from Conservative MPs in the Commons Wednesday before the House adjourned for an 11-day Easter recess.

The Commons will sit again Monday, April 19.

The bill—an amendment to the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries Convention Act—received second reading and was sent to the Commons fisheries committee for detailed study.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said the bill would permit Canadian government inspectors to board foreign fishing vessels outside territorial wters to inspect gear and catches. Foreign inspectors could do the same with Canadian ships.

John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate), James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) and Louis Comeau (PC—South Western Nova) vouched Conservative support for the bill.

Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) also welcomed the measure.

Shortly before the Commons adjourned Treasury Board President C. M. Drury offered a government compromise in a key section of the reorganization bill, which has been under heavy opposition fire for 21 days of debate.

Mr. Drury suggested an amendment to the clauses authorizing the prime minister to appoint up to five new ministers of state. The chance would permit the House to debate the appointments after they are made.

A negative House vote would kill a new ministry, even if it already had been established.

The section has been one of th most contentious in the bill, which would also create a new environment department.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin (Peace River) prdicted better co-operation and goodwill in the Commons following the government move to soften the section.

Mr. Drury said the government was also prepared to change the title if the proposed environment department to department of environment and fisheries, as strenuously demanded by Atlantic-area Conservatives.

Sources said the Conservatives will likely agree to limit the length of debates on new ministries in return for a firm government commitment to bring the proposals into the Commons for approval.

In the Senate Wednesday, legislation increasing the disability pensions and allowances of veterans was given royal assent by Chief Justice Gerald Fauteux, acting as deputy to Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener.

Pensions increase by 10 per cent and allowances by 15 per cent retroactive to April 1.

Assent was also given to a bill making the metric system a legal measuring system in Canada—thus paving the way for eventual conversion from inches and pounds—and a measure requiring federally-incorporated investment companies to report more fully on their operations.

In the debate on the Atlantic fisheries bill, Mr. Lundrigan said overfishing by foreign vessels had left catches by Newfoundland fishermen a totally disastrous failure in the last three years.

Mr. McGrath called Denmark the real culprit, saying that without immediate changes in Danish fishing practices, the Atlantic salmon would be extinct in 10 years.

The salmon spawn and hatch under Canadian protection, then swim into the Atlantic to be "scooped up by the thousands of tons by the Danes."

Since past efforts to limit the Danish catch had been unsuccessful, economic sanctions should be considered. "That is the only language they understand."

Mr. Barnett said that without adequate management of marine resources, the human race was doomed.

Mr. Comeau said stocks of many species had been dangerously depleted by extravagant fishing by foreign vessels on the high seas.

He called the bill a step in the right direction.

Ecology Protection Groups Score Victory on Skagit

OTTAWA (CP) — Protest groups won at least a temporary victory Wednesday when the government announced in the Commons it has asked the International Joint Commission to inquire into proposed flooding of the Skagit River valley in southwestern British Columbia.

The commission was asked by both the Canadian and U.S. governments to inquire into the environmental effects of the flooding.

Seattle City Light Co., under a 1942 agreement with the British Columbia government, wants to raise the level of the Ross Dam, 30 miles south of the U.S.-Canada border. This would extend the dam's backwater into B.C. and result in the flooding of another 6,000 acres of the Skagit Valley.

A fisheries department news release says the valley is home to at least 20 species of recreationally important wildlife, including black bear, bobcat cougar and some waterfowl. It also provides some of the best stream fishing in the lower B.C. mainland.

The proposed flooding has drawn a flood of protests from many B.C. groups and from MPs.

The commission is expected to hold a number of public meetings before bringing in its recommendations by October.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield told the House the terms of reference seem to wipe out the possibility of the commission recommending against the flooding.

It could only recommend measures to reduce the environmental consequences, he said.

"The only recommendation that the commission is asked, or is authorized to make under this reference, concerns the protection and enhancement of the environment consistent with the authorization (to flood) granted in 1942," he said.

Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West) said the government approach at best will mean a six-month delay to the flooding.

* * *

He said Mr. Stanfield had pinpointed the true meaning of the announcement.

Later New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas asked External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp to comment on Mr. Stanfield's interpretation of the reference.

Mr. Sharp replied he was being asked for a legal opinion and that wasn't allowed under House rules.

The government decision was interpreted by officials in Washington as a simple request to the IJC to investigate the "environmental and ecological consequences in Canada" and to make recommendations.

The commission's deliberations would not in any way undermine the original IJC-based agreement under which flooding of part of the Skagit Valley, behind a dam built on the U.S. side of the border, was approved.

Some observers in the U.S. capital suggested Canada hesitates to wriggle out of any IJC-based agreement because such action could set a dangerous precedent in other mutual problems, such as cleaning up the Great Lakes where the U.S. is expected to shoulder the largest share of the burden and expense.

FULL CONFIDENCE in his French-speaking generals was expressed today by Defence Minister Donald MacDonald. The minister rejected a charge by Parti Quebecois leader Rene Levesque that some of the generals are separatists. Levesque said on April 2 that the army is a breeding ground for separatists.

Queen's Color Rehearsal Just Like Real Thing

One of the most impressive ceremonies in its 30-year-old history took place at Royal Roads Military College this afternoon when the Queen's new Color was presented with pomp and ceremony perfected over centuries.

The solemnity of the occasion was apparent Wednesday afternoon when officials, officer cadets, the cadet and Naden bands had a final dress rehearsal of the two-hour ceremony.

Standing in for Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson, who reviewed the cadets and presented the new maple leaf color today, was his secretary Cmdr. Garfield Dixon.

LIKE REAL THING

But there was no substitute for the precision and efficiency that goes with such a ceremony. There was no hint that this was not the real thing.

Even working service personnel putting the hundreds of chairs in place for today's ceremony stood silent as the cadets solemnly paid tribute to the old color as it was troooped through the ranks for the last time.

DECADE OLD

The old color was presented to the college May 25, 1962 and had been proudly borne for almost a decade.

To the strains of Auld Lang Syne it was marched off the parade ground in a solemn finale.

The new color, which replaces it today, signifies the growing stature of Canada's national design.

Reminiscent of the days of the 'thin red line,' the scarlet-jacketed cadets formed a hollow square prior to the moment of the new color's consecration.

PILED DRUMS

Focal point of this part of the ceremony were the piled drums of the college band. It was here, in the centre of the square, that Chaplains Donald Hatfield and Gerard Veilleux conducted a drumhead service that also has its roots stepped deep in history.

The came the moment when the new color, centred with its distinctive maple leaf, was to be presented. That done, it was trooped for the first time past the four guards of cadets and along the impressive parade ground, the waters of Royal Roads forming an awesome backdrop.

Many of the guests attending today's ceremony started their military career at the college, which from 1941 until August 1942 trained RCNVR candidates.

PERSPECTIVES AND PREJUDICES

That's Exactly It, Mr. Shaw: The Easter Story Has No End

By Rev. J. A. DAVIDSON

Bernard Shaw, in the preface to his play, Androcles and the Lion, discussed in some detail, and with much provocativeness, the New Testament gospels.

Here is part of what he wrote about Matthew's Gospel; "Matthew then tells how after three days an angel opened the family vault of Joseph, a rich man of Arimathea, who had buried Jesus in it; whereupon Jesus rose and returned from Jerusalem to Galilee and resumed his preaching with his disciples, assuring them that he would now be with them to the end of the world."

●

Then Shaw added; "At that point the narrative abruptly stops. The story has no ending."

"The story has no ending" Shaw said there, or at least suggested, more than he intended. He was highly critical of the traditional interpretations of Easter, but in that short sentence he pointed, perhaps inadvertently, to what easter has meant for Christians through the centuries: for the Christian believer the crucifixion marks not an ending but a new beginning.

Basic here is the resurrection-experience of the first Christians, the awareness of men and women that Jesus was not dead but had been raised by God and was for them the living Lord — an awareness on which they staked their lives.

The Gospels do not account for the resurrection; the resurrection alone accounts for the Gospels. Without the resurrection and an intense awareness of its reality there should have been no New Testament, no Church, no Christian faith.

The resurrection-experience in the keystone of the Christian arch. As Paul put it in his first letter to the Christians in Corinth, "If Christ was not raised, then our gospel is null and void, and so is your faith . . . If Christ was not raised, your faith has nothing in it." (15:14, 17. New English Bible)

Those first Christians did not face intimidating odds, danger, persecution, death, merely to keep alive the memory of a good man now dead and to propagate his teachings. They did the impossible — and the early Christian mission was indeed a Mission Impossible — only because they had experienced the presence and the power of the living Christ and were motivated and energized and directed by that experience.

The people who stood around the Cross on that black Friday thought that it marked the end of Jesus. Religious and political officials, including Pontius Pilate, saw it as the end of an awkward and disconcerting story.

Even for the Jesus' disciples the Cross did seem the end of his story. For them it was a great disillusionment, the violent and tragic end of a glorious hope.

But something happened on the third day. The followers of Jesus gradually came to an awareness that somehow he had been raised from the dead, that he had continuing reality in their hearts and in the community of faith. "The story has no ending." The story is still being told — and that is what Easter is really all about.

Wondrous Web of Sound

By AUDREY JOHNSON

There is a tendency when listening to new music, to retreat within one's conservative shell; to think wistfully of the modes of at least the early 20th century. To wish to be there where the listening is easy.

Confronted with the unfamiliar we are forced to make the effort of full attention — either that or we reject the whole thing out of hand.

Wednesday, the last of the University of Victoria music department's evening concert series was devoted to the highly individual and vivid music of Derek Healey, a young English composer of obviously brilliant gifts, who unfortunately is another teacher who is leaving the university at the end of this semester.

It was an evening in which the effort of full attention was rewarded opulently. It was, in fact, an evening to cling to the memory.

Healey's music is evocative, shimmering with a rare quality of imagination — the Six Greek Fragments for soprano and piano for example were exquisite morsels.

Lorraine Gorrell, a singer with a pure, limpid voice and fine vocal skill performed this small suite with the composer at the piano.

RARE QUALITY

Both the Maschere, op. 29, played with insight and charm by violinist Jack Kessler and pianist Robert Rogers, and Stinging (completed three days before the concert) for recorder, cello, harpsichord and magnetic tape, were works in which invention was constant and fresh, and that rarest of qualities — humor — was present.

Stinging created a wondrous web of sound — glistening, darting through episodes of light and shade, mounting into fury, subsiding into the delicate needling of a pattering rain.

The contrast of textures between the old instruments and the new electronic sounds was extraordinarily effective and revealed the rich quality of Healeys imagination.

Paul Palmer, recorder, James Hunter, cello and Healey at the harpsichord, were the performers.

Ending the concert came a second performance of Butterflies, a work for soprano and chamber orchestra which was first presented last summer as a work specially commissioned for Victoria Fair.

In it, Healey has used the Japanese poetic form, the Haiku, as text. Japanese scales and ornaments and instrumental characteristics.

The composition has a unique charm, a certain delicacy and melodic flow without in any sense becoming facile or reiterative.

Its performance under George Corwin's baton, by a skilled ensemble with Catherine Young's rich and superbly controlled voice, paid the music full honor.

The concert was recorded by CBC for later broadcast.

Before the Judge

Glenn Elder, 17, of Port Alberni, was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty to shoplifting a pair of slacks from a mens' shop at University Heights shopping centre April 6.

A Saanich police officer testified that the accused had the slacks, worth $9.99, in his possession about 2:30 p.m. when he was questioned about something else.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

A while ago a man came into my office with his old mother of 85. They had come to me to have me settle a hot argument they were having. The mother had recently had a little stroke which had shaken her up and had given her a good deal of abdominal pain and distress. For several years, since the death of her husband, the woman had been living alone in the great big old family home in a suburb. In recent years, she hardly had the strength or the desire to keep the house neat and clean as she used to do. Because of this, her son was demanding that she go either into a nursing home or into a family hotel where she would have maid service, and if necessary, she could have her meals served to her in her room.

The old lady objected strenuously to this; she said that she loved her old home and that was where she wanted to stay. To be sure, she was very lonely there, and much bored. Often she would not see anyone for several days at a time, and she had lost touch with most of her old friends, or they had died. Much of her illness — the aches and pains, the inability to sleep comfortably through the night, the feelings of fatigue and "not feeling like herself," and the lack of appetite — came really from her great loneliness, grief over the loss of her husband, and much guilt about certain unkindesses she had shown him when he lived. She had no one to talk to, no one to eat with, no one to go places with, and no one to keep her company.

It was so typical of women of this type that when her son, a wealthy man, said, "Mother, I'll get you a cook, a maid, a companion, or a practical nurse, to keep you from being so lonely and to take care of you," she said, "Absolutely not; I won't have a woman around." She did not care to make the effort to adjust to something or someone new. Often when her son invited her to come to dinner or to go for a ride with his family, she would refuse his offer saying that she did not feel "up to it". The son felt frustrated in his efforts to make his mother's life more pleasant and less lonely.

What the son feared, also, was that his mother might have another little stroke which could leave her lying for a day or two on the cold floor before someone would know that something had happened. I have seen this happen to some old people. But the mother said that she was willing to take that chance and she was not afraid of it.

Whenever I see a situation like this, where the son is making strong efforts to get his aged mother out of her old family home, I think of a cat that belonged to a relative of mine. It was an old female that had lived with the family for 14 years. When they sold their home and moved to a smaller place, they naturally took the cat with them, but the next day she was gone. Later, they discovered her sitting on the porch of her old home. They loved her enough to allow her to stay where she was happy, and they went back each evening to make sure she was fed.

I remember an old Dalmatian dog who behaved in this same way when her family moved out to the country. She came back to the city and insisted on staying in her old home with the new family that had bought it. I always think of some old ladies as behaving much like old cats and dogs that so love their home that they will not leave it, even to go with their families.

In the cases of old mothers, the physician may have to side with the son when the woman becomes so forgetful and senile that she leaves burners on or does other things dangerous to herself, or is so crippled that she cannot get about comfortably, or so unable to care for herself that she should have constant care. Even then she may object strenuously to going into a nursing home, but often that is where she has to go.

This is a particularly nice home, only 7 years old, very spacious and in one of the better areas of Victoria — ROCKLAND-ST. CHARLES AREA! An overall floor area of nearly 1700 square feet with full high basement allows for large rooms. You have to view the above average quality of construction and the many extras that are free when you buy this home. It would be my privilege to set up an appointment for you to view. Please phone B. Strike Continues At St. FX

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — Classes remained suspended at St. Francis Xavier University today as a strike by students protesting decisions of the university disciplinary committee entered its fourth day.

Many of the university's 2,400 students had apparently left campus today for the Easter weekend, but picket lines remained around all academic and laboratory buildings.

A spokesman for the strikers said two of about 20 students taking part in a hunger strike since last Friday have received medical treatment.

However, the university infirmary said it had admitted only one student. A spokesman declined to identify the student or release any details on his condition.

The committee found three students guilty of contravening university regulations banning female visitors in men's residences. Two senior students have been told they will be permitted to write final examinations, but will graduate in absentia. A junior student will be permitted to write his examinations but will not be re-admitted to the university next fall.

The students say the strike will coninue until the penalties are lifted.

Pipeline Warning

LONDON (CP) — David Brower, an American conservationist, says that development of Arctic petroleum involving a pipeline across Alaska would put coastal residents of British Columbia in the position of expecting oil pollution "from the normal and sometimes abnormal operations of a tanker route."

Writing in the weekly magazine New Scientist, Brower attacks any evaluation of the pipeline plan which "leaves out earthquakes, the network of feeder and collector lines on the North Slope (and) threats to Prince William and Puget Sound."

Such an evaluation "seems to make no ecological sense at all," he maintains.

The tanker passage south from Valdez "would be one of the most heavily travelled routes in the world and its attendant problems are not going to disappear if we just don't mention them."

Dog-Lover Killed

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Charlie Chaffin, a 12-year-old boy who loved animals, was returning home from a movie with his mother and older brother when he saw a car hit a dog in the street. He made his mother stop their car. Charlie was in the street helping the dog when another car struck the lad. He died Monday.

VICTORIA'S DAILY NEWSPAPERS

FROM POLLUTION TO POOR

Labor Starting Social Action

The Canadian labor movement is starting to use it resources to give impetus to various forms of social action, a Canadian Labor Congress representative said here Wednesday.

Jim MacDonald, director of the CLC's newly-formed social and community programs department, was in Victoria to visit a day-care centre just opened by the B.C. Government Employees' Union.

FORM OF SUPPORT

He said involvement of local unions could be in the form of support for low-income and tenants' organizations, or groups concerned with the rights of minorities and consumers or to fighting pollution problems.

In the area of urban affairs, the CLC supports ideas like establishment of community information centres, public transit to supplant the automobile and co-operative housing.

MacDonald said unions have been involved in social change to a certain extent since they were first formed, but in ways that are not very visible.

Questionnaires have been sent out to the 10 provincial federations and 120 labor councils to find out the kinds of community activities they have been into.

Community health centres started by unions may become an important form of supplementary care to hospitals across Canada, MacDonald said. In Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., a health centre started by the Steelworkers' Union has reduced hospital bed utilization by 45 per cent.

With an emphasis on preventive medicine, the health centre often makes a stay in hospital unnecessary. Operating costs come out of health co-op membership fees which are no higher than $150 for life.

About a dozen similar co-ops are now in various stages of planning across the country, MacDonald said, and some 6,000 members are being recruited for an Ottawa co-op.

Hospital Rally Planned

Union members and the general public will be urged to join a march and rally April 18 in support of the Sandringham Private Hospital strike.

Bulletins announcing the march were distributed Wednesday to delegates at the Victoria Labor Council meeting. The march will be organized by the citizens action committee of local 1311 (representing private hospital workers) of the Canadian Union Public Employees.

The march will leave Centennial Square at 2 p.m., head south along Douglas, east on Fort past the Sandringham, and end at Stadacona Park where a rally will be addressed by church, labor and political leaders.

Hospital workers are being urged to attend in uniform as demonstration of their support.

During a discussion of the strike, Ray Mercer, assistant director of CUPE's western region, challenged National Nursing Homes Ltd., the firm which manages the Sandringham, to open its books in the presence of Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Mercer was referring to an advertisement placed in local newspapers by the firm last weekend which said the hospital is losing money and therefore can't afford to pay wage rates sought by the union.

Mercer noted Simon Fraser Private Hospital in Prince George last week signed a similar contract with its workers.

The labor council passed a resolution calling on members of its affiliated unions to boycott Standard Oil products, mainly by returning credit cards to the company.

Standard sent a fuel truck across the Sandringham picket line last month, foiling an attempt by labor to shut the hospital down.

Jumbo Treat

TORONTO (CP) — More than 150 Air Canada passengers bound for Vancouver received a pleasant surprise today at Toronto International Airport when the airline put them aboard a Boeing 747 jumbo jet instead of the scheduled stretched DC-8.

They got movies and personal stereo music at no extra charge in addition to extra space.

An Air Canada spokesman said the plane was being flown out to the West Coast as part of a familiarization routine for pilots and crew and it was decided to give Flight 801 passengers a "sneak preview."

The 747, which seats 365, goes into regular service April 25.

Week's Toll —88 GIs

SAIGON (Reuter) — A total of 88 Americans and 523 South Vietnamese were killed last week in the Indochina war in the highest weekly death toll since last June, it was announced today.

Another 347 Americans and 1,178 South Vietnamese were wounded during the week that ended last Saturday.

North Vietnamese casualties during the same week were given as 3,687 dead.

The American fatality toll last week was the highest since the week ending June 27 last year, when 104 Americans were reported killed in battle.

Before the Judge

A 15-year-old juvenile was transferred to adult court before Judge William Ostler Wednesday and pleaded guilty to 22 counts of breaking, entering and theft and two counts of breaking and entering with entent, all offenses ocurring in the Greater Victoria area since August of last year.

The charges involved police departments of Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich and the Colwood RCMP. The goods and cash in the thefts totalled more than $8,000.

Ostler remanded the youth to today for sentence. The accused had earlier pleaded to the March 22 break-in of Individual Dry Cleaners, 1602 Fort, in which a safe containing over $4,000 was taken and broken into at a beach area in Sidney.

Police recovered $2,236 still inside the safe when it was located and a police officer in another case testified that most of the rest of the money had been recovered.

The new charges read against the youth Wednesday involved mostly homes although there were some businesses. In some, other persons were with the accused when the offences were committed.

Money, stereo sets, watches, coin collections, revolvers, liquor and jewelry were among items taken.

★ ★ ★

Stanley McCausland was sentenced a year in prison when he pleaded guilty to two counts of theft over $50, the offenses being waived to Victoria from Winnipeg.

Court was told that the accused rented a portable stereo set and a television set from a Winnipeg rental shop last April, and July, left the city with the items and later sold them to an unknown person in Vancouver.

Ostler said the sentence would start Wednesday. McCausland is serving a year for 15 counts of false pretenses imposed in Victoria in January.

★ ★ ★

Pierre Lucier, alias Johnson, was sentenced to a year to start Wednesday when he pleaded guilty to two counts of theft over $50 waived from Calgary.

Court was told that Lucier rented a television set, a sewing machine and a freezer in Calgary in February, 1970, and left the city.

The accused told Ostler that he was sentenced to a year in prison in Duncan, March 16, for a four-count fraud conviction.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Strike Continues At St. FX

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — Classes remained suspended at St. Francis Xavier University today as a strike by students protesting decisions of the university disciplinary committee entered its fourth day.

Many of the university's 2,400 students had apparently left campus today for the Easter weekend, but picket lines remained around all academic and laboratory buildings.

A spokesman for the strikers said two of about 20 students taking part in a hunger strike since last Friday have received medical treatment.

However, the university infirmary said it had admitted only one student. A spokesman declined to identify the student or release any details on his condition.

The committee found three students guilty of contravening university regulations banning female visitors in men's residences. Two senior students have been told they will be permitted to write final examinations, but will graduate in absentia. A junior student will be permitted to write his examinations but will not be re-admitted to the university next fall.

The students say the strike will coninue until the penalties are lifted.

Pipeline Warning

LONDON (CP) — David Brower, an American conservationist, says that development of Arctic petroleum involving a pipeline across Alaska would put coastal residents of British Columbia in the position of expecting oil pollution "from the normal and sometimes abnormal operations of a tanker route."

Writing in the weekly magazine New Scientist, Brower attacks any evaluation of the pipeline plan which "leaves out earthquakes, the network of feeder and collector lines on the North Slope (and) threats to Prince William and Puget Sound."

Such an evaluation "seems to make no ecological sense at all," he maintains.

The tanker passage south from Valdez "would be one of the most heavily travelled routes in the world and its attendant problems are not going to disappear if we just don't mention them."

Dog-Lover Killed

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Charlie Chaffin, a 12-year-old boy who loved animals, was returning home from a movie with his mother and older brother when he saw a car hit a dog in the street. He made his mother stop their car. Charlie was in the street helping the dog when another car struck the lad. He died Monday.

FROM POLLUTION TO POOR

Labor Starting Social Action

The Canadian labor movement is starting to use it resources to give impetus to various forms of social action, a Canadian Labor Congress representative said here Wednesday.

Jim MacDonald, director of the CLC's newly-formed social and community programs department, was in Victoria to visit a day-care centre just opened by the B.C. Government Employees' Union.

FORM OF SUPPORT

He said involvement of local unions could be in the form of support for low-income and tenants' organizations, or groups concerned with the rights of minorities and consumers or to fighting pollution problems.

In the area of urban affairs, the CLC supports ideas like establishment of community information centres, public transit to supplant the automobile and co-operative housing.

MacDonald said unions have been involved in social change to a certain extent since they were first formed, but in ways that are not very visible.

Questionnaires have been sent out to the 10 provincial federations and 120 labor councils to find out the kinds of community activities they have been into.

Community health centres started by unions may become an important form of supplementary care to hospitals across Canada, MacDonald said. In Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., a health centre started by the Steelworkers' Union has reduced hospital bed utilization by 45 per cent.

With an emphasis on preventive medicine, the health centre often makes a stay in hospital unnecessary. Operating costs come out of health co-op membership fees which are no higher than $150 for life.

About a dozen similar co-ops are now in various stages of planning across the country, MacDonald said, and some 6,000 members are being recruited for an Ottawa co-op.

Hospital Rally Planned

Union members and the general public will be urged to join a march and rally April 18 in support of the Sandringham Private Hospital strike.

Bulletins announcing the march were distributed Wednesday to delegates at the Victoria Labor Council meeting. The march will be organized by the citizens action committee of local 1311 (representing private hospital workers) of the Canadian Union Public Employees.

The march will leave Centennial Square at 2 p.m., head south along Douglas, east on Fort past the Sandringham, and end at Stadacona Park where a rally will be addressed by church, labor and political leaders.

Hospital workers are being urged to attend in uniform as demonstration of their support.

During a discussion of the strike, Ray Mercer, assistant director of CUPE's western region, challenged National Nursing Homes Ltd., the firm which manages the Sandringham, to open its books in the presence of Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Mercer was referring to an advertisement placed in local newspapers by the firm last weekend which said the hospital is losing money and therefore can't afford to pay wage rates sought by the union.

Mercer noted Simon Fraser Private Hospital in Prince George last week signed a similar contract with its workers.

The labor council passed a resolution calling on members of its affiliated unions to boycott Standard Oil products, mainly by returning credit cards to the company.

Standard sent a fuel truck across the Sandringham picket line last month, foiling an attempt by labor to shut the hospital down.

Jumbo Treat

TORONTO (CP) — More than 150 Air Canada passengers bound for Vancouver received a pleasant surprise today at Toronto International Airport when the airline put them aboard a Boeing 747 jumbo jet instead of the scheduled stretched DC-8.

They got movies and personal stereo music at no extra charge in addition to extra space.

An Air Canada spokesman said the plane was being flown out to the West Coast as part of a familiarization routine for pilots and crew and it was decided to give Flight 801 passengers a "sneak preview."

The 747, which seats 365, goes into regular service April 25.

Week's Toll —88 GIs

SAIGON (Reuter) — A total of 88 Americans and 523 South Vietnamese were killed last week in the Indochina war in the highest weekly death toll since last June, it was announced today.

Another 347 Americans and 2,178 South Vietnamese were wounded during the week that ended last Saturday.

North Vietnamese casualties during the same week were given as 3,687 dead.

The American fatality toll last week was the highest since the week ending June 27 last year, when 104 Americans were reported killed in battle.

Before the Judge

A 15-year-old juvenile was transferred to adult court before Judge William Ostler Wednesday and pleaded guilty to 22 counts of breaking, entering and theft and two counts of breaking and entering with entent, all offenses ocurring in the Greater Victoria area since August of last year.

The charges involved police departments of Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich and the Colwood RCMP. The goods and cash in the thefts totalled more than $8,000.

Ostler remanded the youth to today for sentence. The accused had earlier pleaded to the March 22 break-in of Individual Dry Cleaners, 1602 Fort, in which a safe containing over $4,000 was taken and broken into at a beach area in Sidney.

Police recovered $2,236 still inside the safe when it was located and a police officer in another case testified that most of the rest of the money had been recovered.

The new charges read against the youth Wednesday involved mostly homes although there were some businesses. In some other persons were with the accused when the offences were committed.

Money, stereo sets, watches, coin collections, revolvers, liquor and jewelry were among items taken.

★ ★ ★

Stanley McCausland was sentenced a year in prison when he pleaded guilty to two counts of theft over $50, the offenses being waived to Victoria from Winnipeg.

Court wax told that the accused rented a portable stereo set and a television set from a Winnipeg rental shop last April, and July, left the city with the items and later sold them to an unknown person in Vancouver.

Ostler said the sentence would start Wednesday. McCausland is serving a year for 15 counts of false pretenses imposed in Victoria in January.

★ ★ ★

Pierre Lucier, alias Johnson, was sentenced to a year to start Wednesday when he pleaded guilty to two counts of theft over $50 waived from Calgary.

Court was told that Lucier rented a television set, a sewing machine and a freezer in Calgary in February, 1970, and left the city.

The accused told Ostler that he was sentenced to a year in prison in Duncan, March 16, for a four-count fraud conviction.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

French Veto Highlights ECM Negotiations

PARIS (Reuter) — As negotiations on enlarging the European Common Market near a climax, a long drawn-out rivalry between France and Britain looms as one of the most intriguing and puzzling factors in the bargaining.

It is underlined by two previous French vetoes of British entry into the prospering Market.

The question is whether France has a third veto in mind —a move that would carry considerably more dramatic weight than the first two rejections of its influential neighbor across the channel.

It is certain that France has changed a lot since the rule of the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who said "non" to Britain in 1963 and 1967.

President de Gaulle enjoyed being the odd man out. He liked to give the impression that he did not care whether international reaction to his edicts was favorable or bitter.

WATCH IMAGE

France now is becoming sensitive to its image—particularly of its reputation as a spoiler on the British entry issue. The present French government of President Georges Pompidou does not enjoy being accused of engaging in wrecking tactics.

In a news conference in January, Pompidou surpassed all previous overtures to Britain by quoting, with an apparent mixture of fun and sincerity, 19th century French poet Arthur Rombaud's sentimental line:

"Oh, for the time when two hearts might entwine."

On the other hand, Pompidou has presumably been giving far less sentimental instructions to his Brussels negotiating team.

Observers believe that despite the passing of de Gaulle, France's conception of its vital interests remains the same in the Common Market controversy.

Not only do the French uphold their own interests, they are also passionate defenders of the Market's basic principles — financial silidarity, community preference and the idea of a single, unified market.

SMOOTH WAY

The suggestion is sometimes heard here that the other five Market members—West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg—have their own political reasons for wanting to smooth Britain's path into the community.

France's predominant, and sometimes isolated, position in the Market stems from the community's formation as a customs union in 1959.

Apart from having the towering personality of de Gaulle as its leader, France provided an extremely high-level team of officials to run the Common Market commission, the community's executive body.

Many experts see the Market as a French-inspired machine, and so the French are insisting more than anyone that Britain must comply meticulously with every rule and not seek to bend them.

France is not alone in dismissing as inadequate Britain's current proposal to make an initial contribution of three per cent of the total Market budget, the fund that finances all Market activities.

EXPECT FIGHT

Nor is a complete breakdown in negotiations likely to arise from complex bargaining over British imports of dairy products and sugar from New Zealand and the West Indies although Britain can be expected to fight hard to retain some of the benefits of Commonwealth trade preference.

But the confrontation could be more unyielding on the question of sterling and its international role as a reserve currency. France has proposed that Britain start dismantling the system of sterling balances under which reserves of sterling area countries are deposited in London.

This system, the French feel, is incompatible with British Market membership because of the risk involved.

If the sterling area countries all withdrew their London-based reserves at the same time, the French argue, the British currency would suffer a shock that could cripple all other Market currencies.

Despite differences among the six, and the opposing British and French viewpoints on sterling, there is a growing conviction here that the negotiations could succeed by the end of this summer.

Christophers Shoulder Community Problems

By PAUL GESSELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"Young people have always dreamed of better worlds. We must hope that they always will. The day we lose our dreams, all social progress will cease."

That thought is the opening paragraph in a handbook for Project Christopher — groups of teen-agers becoming socially involved in destitute areas.

No big publicity campaign will herald the arrival of the teen-agers at their summer destinations, whether it be a shack town in New Brunswick, a northern Indian reserve or a ghetto in the slums of Montreal or Chicago.

The youths, with a $1-a-day allowance, are dropped into a community to fend for themselves. Contacts are soon made with inhabitants, who might first encounter them rising from a night's sleep in a ball diamond.

The next six weeks are spent working with the townspeople in return for assistance in finding a place to live and meeting daily needs.

The teen-agers enter a community with no definite purpose. Once they are there, needs become evident and assistance on a construction project, establishment of a drop-in or day care centre or some other form of help becomes the goal.

Project Christopher was founded in Montreal in 1960 by a Roman Catholic priest, Rev. John Brayley. His purpose was to apply youth's ideas of social reform to their environment.

The Christophers now have expended throughout Canada, the United States and Mexico.

This summer more than 300 teen-agers will be sent to communities throughout the continent.

"We are like a Peace Corps," said 17-year-old Fred Bell, a member of the Edmonton chapter, preparing for his third summer with the group.

Youths do all the organizing and training of group leaders, he said. Father Brayley is the only adult in the unorganized organization.

Members of the project are far apart and communication and financing become problems.

A Canada Council grant of $15,000, along with about $250 raised by each participant, forms the summer budget.

"We had $5 left over last fall," Bell said.

Before being sent to a community the Christophers are given a training session at Waupoos Island in Lake Ontario. It is here they learn of their destination, only a day before they depart.

After the six-week project a reunion is held, the summer evaluated and mistakes discussed.

What do they accomplish?

"Maybe we just make a bunch of kids laugh for awhile, or spend time with an old lady or a war veteran," Bell said. "But maybe those kids have never laughed like that before, or those old people don't get to talk to anyone. They have a story and deserve to tell it."

"People usually think we're a bunch of hippies when we move into the community, but they begin to like us once they get to know us," he said.

Royal Roads Ball

Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson will attend a presentation ball this evening at Royal Roads Military College.

The receiving line will form on the Quarter Deck at 8:30 p.m. Host of the affair is the Commandant, Col. R. C. K. Peers.

Plants will be available at a plant stall, and refreshments will be served. The meeting is open to the public. For further information call Mrs. G. Powers, 478-4602.

Women Ring Warning Bell On Unfair Promotion Practices

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of the National Ad Hoc Action Committee on the Status of Women has given Bell Canada a year to eliminate alleged discrimination against promoting women.

Laura Sabia of St. Catharines, Ont., said a possible means of backing up her ultimatum would be a campaign to ask women not to invest in the company.

She was speaking at the company's annual meeting and noted that a major portion of the approximately 1,800 shareholders present were women.

"Father Bell is still using the quota system," she said and told Marcel Vincent, Bell chairman, she was referring to a statement by the company's vice-president for personnel.

The statement by W. C. Macpherson, in answer to a question from an employee, was made in the April 20, 1970, edition of Bell News, a company publication.

Macpherson said the "organization structure, which has evolved over a long period of years, included the concept of separate hierarchies of management jobs identified as male and female. The salary level for the jobs identified as male were somewhat higher."

He said some of the reasons for that development "are still with us, although probably, to a somewhat lesser degree."

"A large proportion of women entering the labor force are not seeking a career. Women, as a group, offer an employer less tenure and less mobility than men."

Mrs. Sabia's reaction to the reasons was: "Don't give me that garbage." She said 30 per cent of Bell's employees with more than 20 years service are women.

Macpherson said in the newsletter that the company began in 1970 the process of eliminating the dual system and set a goal of five years for completion.

"What the hell stops you from implementing it equal pay for equal work tomorrow morning," Mrs. Sabia asked Vincent.

Vincent said the company had adopted a policy of equal pay for equal work. He said the situation at Bell is no worse than in other companies.

Mrs. Sabia, who is also public affairs director for a St. Catharines radio station, said she had investigated the situation at Bell with the aid of Bell employees and found that 53 per cent of the employees were women.

"Out of that 53 per cent less than one per cent — and I defy you to change those figures — less than one per cent are in the upper echelons of management."

She said 24 per cent of the women employees were in management positions, but at the lowest levels. Vincent said it was 27 per cent.

She repeated a proposal made at the 1970 annual meeting that the board appoint a woman vice-president. She also suggested that Macpherson be fired.

Mrs. Sabia said the figures suggest Bell Canada management either hires stupid women or does not believe them capable of performing at higher levels.

"It's high time that Father Bell did something about this."

Maiden Name Not Accepted

BOSTON (UPI) — A bill to allow married women to use their maiden names after filing a notice of intent was killed by the state house of representatives recently.

"If my wife ever used her maiden name I'd throw her out of the house," said one lawmaker during debate.

Easter Eggs Turned Into Custard Desserts

Eggs have been associated with springtime and Easter for longer than man can remember. Even before Easter became a holy day the egg was a symbol of fertility and new life, thus playing a real part in pagan spring festivals.

Many young children today look forward to coloring eggs, decorating them and filling baskets. The eggs are often hardcooked before coloring, and if they are returned to the refrigerator when not on display at mealtime they may be used for eating within a day or so. A fairly concentrated solution of food coloring and water will color the shells and a little vinegar speeds up the absorption of the color. To further decorate the eggs, faces or designs may be made with crayons, gummed seals or beads, ribbon, etc., and attached with glue.

Some people prefer to blow the eggs before decorating them. This is more difficult, as the empty shells are very fragile, but its also more rewarding as the results can be kept for years.

To blow an egg, make a hole at each end with a large needle. Care must be taken not to shatter the shell. It is easier to blow the egg if the needle is used to break the membrance surrounding the yolk. Shaking the egg will also help make the contents flow more easily.

With your lips, make a tight seal around one of the holes and begin to blow. Make sure the egg is over a bowl. It takes quite an effort to force the contents of the egg through the other end, and the holes may have to be enlarged slightly.

The left-over egg can be used in cakes, custards, omelettes or scrambled eggs. It can be kept a short while in a covered, refrigerated container. It is advisable to plan a use ahead, and limit the number of eggs in each container accordingly.

As the albumen of the egg dries inside the shell, the shell will become tougher. A coat of shellac will also add strength to the shell.

Here are some recipes using eggs. Needless to say, a blown egg cannot be used where the white and yolk must be separated.

CARAMEL FLOATING ISLAND

Custard Base

1½ cups milk
1½ cup light cream
3 eggs
2 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Scald milk and cream. Beat eggs, egg yolks and sugar. Gradually stir in hot milk. Return to heat; stir and cook until slightly thick. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Pour into shallow serving dish and chill.

Meringues

2 egg whites
Dash salt
¼ cup sugar

Beat egg whites and salt until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in sugar until stiff peaks form. Divide in six parts and drop meringues on simmering water. Simmer uncovered until set (about five minutes). Drain on paper towels. Meringues may be chilled. Arrange on top of chilled custard.

Caramel

½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons water

Heat sugar over low heat until melted and amber in color. Immediately add water, remove from heat and stir until caramel is melted. Drizzle hot caramel over top of custard and meringues just before serving. (Makes six servings.)

FRENCH CHOCOLATE MOUSSE

¼ cup sugar
5 tablespoons water
½ pound semi-sweet chocolate
5 egg yolks
½ teaspoon rum flavoring
5 egg whites
Whipped cream

Combine sugar and water and bring to boil. Add chocolate and stir until melted. Beat in egg yolks, one at a time. Chill and add flavoring. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold egg whites into chocolate mixture. Pile into sherbet glasses and chill 24 hours. Decorate with whipped cream. Makes six to eight servings.

PINEAPPLE CUSTARD

1 (20-ounce) can crushed pineapple.
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon butter
3 eggs
1 tablespoon sugar

Heat pineapple, lemon juice and butter in top of double boiler just to boiling point. Meanwhile, beat eggs and sugar just until yolks and white are blended but not frothy. Pour most of hot pineapple liquid into eggs, stirring constantly.

Return mixture to remaining pineapple and combine well. Cover and set pan at once over very hot but not boiling water and cook slowly over very low heat for 30 to 40 minutes or until custard is thick. Stir with wooden spoon at end of 20 minutes to scrape down sides and bottom of pan. Stir only enough to evenly mix custard. When cooked pour into serving bowl or into six individual dishes and garnish with bits of maraschino cherries. Serve plain or with pouring or shipped cream.

If preferred, custard may be baked like an ordinary custard in a moderate (350 deg. F.) oven about 50 minutes, or until a silver knife inserted one inch from centre comes out clean. To ensure even cooking, set baking dish in pan of hot water.

Poll Planned On Abortion

TORONTO (CP) — National women's organizations have been asked to decide by April 30 whether they want references to abortion deleted from the Criminal Code.

The decision to poll the organizations came out of a meeting of the National Ad Hoc Action Committee on the Status of Women in Canada, attended by 60 representatives of national organizations.

Margaret Hyndman, representing the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women, suggested that a clause be retained in the Criminal Code to deal with abortions performed by unauthorized practitioners. But other delegates said the unauthorized practice of medicine is dealt with elsewhere in the code.

The session was called to discuss which of the 167 recommendations in the report of the royal commission on the status of women should be given legislative priority. Most of the debate concerned the recommendation that all sections on abortion be removed from the code.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Out for Trouble

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is 18. She is marrying the boy she went steady with all through high school. He is 19. We are managing the wedding but must limit the number of guests to 125 because my husband has been out of work and we are not in very good shape financially.

I told the groom's mother that she could invite 63 people and we were inviting 62. She said that wasn't nearly enough for her as she is presently separated from her husband and she wants to invite her boyfriend and his family, which is very large. I told her in a nice way that she could invite whomever she wanted but not more than 63 people as we had to hold down the expense.

Guess what she said? "Either I have as many people as I want or I'll refuse to sign for my son!"

Abby, he is only 19 and he can't get married unless she signs for him. So what do I do now?—Sad Mom.

DEAR MOM: Don't let her blackmail you. In some states the signature of only one parent (or guardian) is sufficient. Look into it. Also tell the lady (?) that if she wants to pay for her own guests she may have as many as she wants.

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago my husband died, and right after the funeral my children insisted that I go visit my sister in another town to get away for a while.

Today I came home to an immaculate, but very empty house. I have two wonderful daughters and I love them dearly, but sometimes I wish they wouldn't be so helpful.

They came in and cleaned my house from top to bottom. Every closet, every cupboard, every shelf had been scrubbed. My house shines from one end to another.

But what bothers me most is that they disposed of all their father's belongings. There is not a trace of him in this house. It's as though he never lived here. There are no socks to darn, no buttons to sew. My sons-in-law even divided up his tools. I suppose they did this so I wouldn't feel so bad sorting through his things and doing it myself.

I could say something, but the deed is done, however well-meaning it was. But now I have nothing to do except dust and wash my own few dishes.

Thanks for listening, Abby. I feel a little better now. — Lost and Lonely.

DEAR LOST: I understand your feeling of uselessness, but I assure you your daughters meant well. They spared you what is usually the most painfully heart-breaking task a widow must face.

DEAR ABBY: These days any couple who celebrates fifty years of marriage deserve a medal with a combat ribbon!

My parents recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, and they received one of the cleverest gifts imaginable. It was a gold-plated 1921 silver dollar, suspended on a W. W. I medal, attached to a combat ribbon. It was ceremoniously presented to them in a velvet-lined box by their daughter, who was a three-time loser. —Laguna Beach.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

New York Fashion Followers Shiver in Spring Hot Pants

By Florence de Santis

In the New York fashion world, spring isn't a season it's a state of mind. Late March is usually anything but springlike (it's 29 degrees as I write this), but you can't stop the fashion buffs from breaking out in whatever is considered to be the absolutely must thing. Right now, that means shorts. In a cold wind, the models and junior fashion editors whisk down Seventh Avenue, their long coats flying open to show that they've got on "hotpants" underneath.

Oh yes, they call shorts "hotpants" in New York. Using raunchy terms for perfectly innocuous styles like shorts is considered a mark of true big-city sophistication.

Other pneumonia-catchers are wearing no coats at all, to show off their battle jackets and pants. The battle jacket has suddenly leaped into favor as a replacement for the long jackets and tunics which are standard wisdom for all women who know that the rear is the least attractive feminine view. Ponchose, too, although not new, are still riding high, despite the cold that gets under them, and so are capes, an equally chilly idea.

Your true New York fashion follower has to be a hardy type. It's always possible, of course, that some are wearing their woolies underneath, and one notes that they all tend to talk very fast. The rest of us cowards are still waiting for somewhat warmer weather to break out our chill-catchers.

Inside the showrooms the story is somewhat different. There the talk is all about dresses. Designers can hardly make a season on a few shorts, and they've been working mightily to come up with dress looks that will revive the wearing of skirts.

Lengths are no longer in question. Everyone is covering the knee, but except for houses with high-fashion customers, not dropping them lower then reflex length. Most designers shrug off the shorts thing as a fast fad that has already spread so far and so thin it will die by fall, except possibly as a kicky evening look.

So the streets look "savage," while the fashion business looks "civilized." Is it a conflict? Not really. The lesson of variety is being learned, albeit slowly and sometimes painfully. Many stores still hang back, looking for a single trend, but lots of others have split their fashion buying into many more pieces than used to be the case.

At least this spring isn't as gloomy as last year's, when fashion firm doors closing resounded louder than the chink of money. The shakeout seems finished, the howling over the longer trend is gone, and everyone is trying to find his special niche in the newly fragmented fashion world where the young wear their shorts and the rest of us happily wear convenient, comfortable clothes that are pretty.

Bachelor Adopts Niece and Nephew

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — A 19-year-old bachelor who has four years of service remaining in the United States Navy Submarine Corps has adopted two children.

Robert Sturdevant Jr. of Vancouver received court approval to adopt Stephen Donald, 3, and Betty Ann, 5. They are Sturdevant's nephew and niece.

"This has been the happiest day of my life," the tall seaman said when he learned of the approval Thursday by Clark County Superior Court.

Until last year, the legal minimum age for adoption in the state of Washington was 21.

Sturdevant began looking after the children when their parents' marriage broke up. He visited them regularly and took them on outings.

KIDS CONFUSED

"I loved those kids, and I was tired of seeing them so confused," he said. "They never really had a home.

"My friends told me I was crazy and everyone said it couldn't be done."

Sturdevant's friends and relatives describe him as compassionate, responsible and determined "almost to the point of being stubborn." His mother adds:

"He's always got a pocketful of dimes in case a child might want an ice cream cone and usually ends up buying for five or 10."

His parents will take care of the children while he completes his four years with the navy. Then, Sturdevant says, he plans to become a state patrolman.

Marriage?

"I think I'd like at least two more children when I marry. Right now, I couldn't be any happier."

New Chanel Team Will Continue To Follow Coco's Simple Style

PARIS (AP) — The new man at Chanel says "nothing will deter me from Coco's style."

"Women want simple, comfortable and chic clothes and less fancy tra-la-la," said Gaston Berthelot, who has taken over at the House of Chanel as "artistic director and co-ordinator" 2½ months after Coco's death.

Berthelot, 40, who worked for Dior both in Paris and New York, said "now that I am here and so deeply involved, I feel I understand Mademoiselle's approach to elegance and her thinking a. . Her style is easy to wear, and strangely enough I think it is more suited to our time than it was even 10 years ago."

Jacqueline Citroen, head of Chanel's public relations department, stressed the "continuity" aim of the new Chanel team.

"We are determined to continue the same spirit. We do not believe customers will expect to pay less because Chanel is no longer living. The style will be her own."

Union Says 'Hire Men'

MONTREAL (CP) — Glass and ceramic workers at Dominion Glass Ltd. are trying to prevent the company from hiring women for night shifts on grounds that the jobs should go to men.

Negotiations between the company and the United Glass and Ceramic Workers have broken off, the union said, and one of the reasons is the company's insistence on hiring women for night work.

Jean Gariepy, union representative, said the hiring of additional women workers is unacceptable.

"We will continue to protect our women employees," he said. "However, with the very high unemployment rate in the Montreal region, we can't accept the company hiring female personnel when there is at its disposal a strong supply of male personnel."

Ready to carry out the family's wishes quietly, sympathetically, with efficiency and dignity.

Munro Pushes Use of Doctors' Aides

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro told the provinces Wednesday night to get moving, at least with trials, on a new kind of health care worker who will see most of the cases that now go to the doctor.

He told a national conference on assistance to the doctor that the federal government has achieved a surprising success in the north by using nurses with four months of special training.

They handle 95 per cent of all the cases that come to them in remote, northern areas.

"A province could well test this thesis in the south," he said.

Mr. Munro said it is time that many specific procedures were turned over by doctors to other health care workers.

He specified them, including case histories, screening out of minor ailments, well-baby care, stitching, simple fractures, preliminary identification of cavities and gum disorders, large-scale public health programs and school health checkups.

The objective would be to see that "in all instances when a problem is presented to the professional (medical doctor) it is appropriate to his training."

SAVE DOCTOR'S TIME

It would save up to half a doctor's time if these duties were handled by a nurse.

The department was prepared through the existing grants structure to help finance institutions to train special paramedical personnel. The provinces should take advantages of various grants programs to develop new methods of providing health care.

He asked the conference, sponsored by his department and attended by about 130 government, health-care association, university and professional representatives, to set up a committee to write training standards and functions for a program which could be discussed with the provinces and medical, nursing and hospital associations.

Mr. Munro warned that variations in availability of health services to rich and poor must not be perpetuated by relegating to lower income groups the paramedical care while the rich use the physician-specialists.

In reviewing the problems of the present system, Mr. Munro conceded that by removing financial barriers to health care through medical care insurance demand has outstripped capacity to meet the need.

In effect, he was acknowledging the truth of warnings issued years ago by the medical profession that this would happen.

Big UNICEF Gift

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Actor Danny Kaye presented a cheque for $7.8 million to UN Secretary-General U Thant as a contribution to the UN children fund from the U.S. Committee for UNICEF. It was the committee's biggest annual contribution in its 2 years. The money came from public donations, the sale of UNICEF greeting cards and Halloween trick or treat collections by 3.5 million children.

CBC WRITERS SIGN PACT

TORONTO (CP) — Editorial workers at the CBC will receive a pay increase of about 20 per cent over the next three years under an agreement reached by the corporation with the Canadian Wire Service Guild Wednesday night.

The agreement reached in Ottawa is the last of three major labor disputes involving the CBC to be settled.

The corporation reached an agreement with the Association of Radio and Television employees of Canada last month and an agreement with the Canadian Union of Public Employees is in the ratification stage.

Copy clerks and editorial assistants will get retroactive pay raises of 10 per cent, while employees in all other job classifications will receive increases of 6% per cent.

Pay raises for the 206 editorial workers involved are retroactive to June 1, 1970.

The three-year contract provides for another six-per-cent increase June 1, 1971, and a 5½-per-cent raise June 1, 1972.

Average salary under the old contract was $10,682.

Exercise Set

EDMONTON (CP) — More than 750 persons are scheduled to participate next week in the parachuting of troops, jeeps, guns and trucks that the government describes as the largest airborne exercise ever conducted in this area.

The air drops are to be conducted primarily from 12-plane formations of Hercules aircraft from the 435 Transport Squadron, Edmonton, and 436 Transport Squadron, Ottawa, on April 13 and 14, the department of national defence announced today.

PWA Faces Red

EDMONTON (CP) — The bagpipes skirled and cameras were held at the ready here Wednesday to welcome Pacific Western Airlines one millionth passenger on the Calgary - Edmonton air-bus service. Then the door of the Boeing 737 jammed, delaying the welcome for Mikey Doherty, a Calgary oilman. PWA officials, somewhat embarrassed, smiled apologetically to reporters and curious onlookers until the door was released. The service started in May, 1965.

Growth Hindered

REGINA (CP) — Provincial Treasurer D. G. Steuart told a service club meeting that economic nationalism and excessive fear of pollution are hindering development of Canada.

Mediation Accepted

CALGARY (CP) — The Calgary public school board will agree to government mediation "on working conditions only" to settle a dispute with 3,900 teachers, Chairman A. M. Burden said Wednesday.

Working conditions were listed by the teachers as their largest grievance against a conciliation board report which proposed a two-year contract.

The teachers, members of Local 38 of the Alberta Teachers' Association, rejected the report in February, voted last week to go on strike and Monday set April 21 as the walkout deadline.

Lawsuit Filed

EDMONTON (CP) — James Kirby, husband of an Ottawa actress killed last year on a downtown street, has launched a lawsuit in Alberta Supreme Court claiming damages.

Kirby, husband of Josephine Fitzgerald Kirby, has filed a statement of claim on behalf of his wife's estate against Clarence Demers, 49, of Beaumont, Alta.

THE WEATHER

Southeasterly gales with gusts over 60 lashed the Queen Charlottes and the outer coast of Vancouver Island overnight as a very deep low-pressure centre moved slowly northward offshore. The associated Pacific cold front will cross the mountains near noon today and reach Alberta overnight. Cool showery weather will follow in the wake of the front with even some snow showers over the north coast and central Interior through Friday.

BALTIMORE — An 85-year-old Maryland man, convicted of assault with intent to rape at the age of 80 and sentenced to life imprisonment stepped out of the Maryland penitentiary a free man Wednesday. Winfield Scott Waters, almost blind but not bitter after more than four years behind bars, was ordered released after a federal judge ruled there was no evidence that the gaunt, stoop-shouldered defendant could have attempted a sexual assault. Said Waters: "It was the police's fault . . . Everybody was in an uproar down there. They had to have somebody."

OTTAWA — "Jesus, where's my script?" James Jerome, parliamentary secretary to Privy Council President Allan MacEachen said Wednesday in the Commons. He made the remark while searching on his desk for some papers containing formal replies to written questions and without knowing his desk microphone had been switched into the Commons' public address system. T. C. Douglas, New Democrat leader and a Baptist minister, said with a grin that prayers should be said at the start of the daily sitting.

JOLIET, Ill. — "It's like being born again — it's like coming back from the dead," said James P. Fioramonti following his release from prison after serving 3½ years for two robberies he says he didn't commit. Fioramoti's early release from Stateville penitentiary came after another man confessed in court last month to one of the robberies.

SURREY — Homeowners in a portion of this lower mainland municipality are plagued by stray and wild cats. Mrs. Marilyn Garcia said she'd been fighting off the feline invasion for almost a year. She said appeals to the municipality, the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and the municipal pound to get rid of the cats all failed. The municipality has no regulation controlling cats. The Garcias are more hopeful of success from their latest action. They've bought a dog.

VANCOUVER — Magdaline Oystreck, 69, was given a suspended sentence and put on probation for nine months on a conviction of shoplifting. Court was told Mrs. Oystreck took items worth $1.10 from a downtown department store while she had $2,370 in her purse.

SEATTLE — Three-quarters of a ton of California honeybees has been dispatched to fruit growing areas of Oregon, Washington and Idaho following an emergency airlift from San Francisco. "We can't get along without the bees," said Sid Morrison, a state representative whose family owns orchards in the Yakima Valley. "We have tried other means of pollination, including helicopters to spray pollen, but nothing worked."

VANCOUVER (CP) — Davie Archibald, 26, who obtained $224 by filing a phoney T-4 slip with an income tax discounter, was sentenced to four months in jail Wednesday in provincial court. Archibald will serve the term concurrent with a two-year jail sentence he received March 31 for trafficking in heroin.

Pole Planted

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — The B.C. Telephone Co. planted a telphone pole Wednesday and re-established good relations with the city of Port Coquitlam. Council voted Monday to withhold payment of its telephone bill until a broken pole in the downtown area had been replaced.

Zanuck Resigns As Studio Head

NEW YORK (AP) — Darryl F. Zanuck, the last of the tycoons from Hollywood's golden years, has resigned as chief executive officer of the 20th Century-Fox Flim Corp.

Zanuck, 68, will retain his title as chairman of the company and concentrate on film production.

The company's board of directors said Wednesday that Dennis C. Stanfill, who was elected president March 18, would have responsibility for all phases of corporate activity except film production.

On Honor Roll

Lorraine M. Stallwood has been named to the Eastern Washington State College winter quarter honor roll. Miss Stallwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Stallwood, 518 Dunsmuir Road, is in her fourth year, majoring in physical education.

Exile Drying Theodorakis Up

PARIS (AP) — A year after his release from Greek prison, composer Mikis Theodorakis is writing less and less music. Most of his time, he says, is "given over to the problem of the resistance," working against the regime of colonels that jailed him as a subversive.

"Understand this," he says, "my music had two protagonists, me and the Greek people."

"Now that I'm far away it is very hard to get my half of the dialogue back. It is very difficult for me. Here, I am a musician in search of an audience."

"Here," is a big apartment in the Latin Quarter where Theodorakis's children play at the top of their lungs. The father, his hair a mess, an old sweater over his shoulder, sits behind a battered desk. It is full of blue and red dossiers and not a sheet of music, as far as a visitor can see.

Theodorakis explains that he's correcting proofs on a book to come out in the fall, a two-volume mea culpa called The Debt.

Theodorakis, give or take an occasional moment of panic, says royalties from film scores, like those of Zorba the Greek and Z, pay his way.

Theodorakis says his health, poor when he was released last April 13, is good now.

His freedom was engineered by Jean-Jacques Servan Schreiber, the French assembly deputy and magazine publisher.

Theodorakis's view of Greece is not a happy one. He contends that the United States is in effective control of the Athens regime and has no intention to let go.

Barbra, Mae, Peggy . . . They're All Jim

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Take Barbra Steisand, Mae West, Phyllis Diller, Peggy Lee and the late Judy Garland, add them all together and what do you have?

An impressionist named James Bailey.

For several years Bailey attempted to make good as a male vocalist. But inasmuch as everyone except Andy Devine is a male vocalist, Bailey couldn't get arrested singing straight.

Less than two years ago he was told by his agent to find a gimmick.

Bailey employed one of the wildest gimmicks of them all. He bought dresses, wigs, makeup and exercised his talent for mimicry to imitate the singing voices of the above feminine stars.

Not only has he copied their voices, but their gestures, mannerisms and facial expressions to an uncanny degree.

But don't call Bailey a female impersonator or you're liable to come away with loose dentures.

"I do impressions," Bailey said forcefully. "So does Frank Gorshin. Would you call Flip Wilson a female impersonator because he does Geraldine? I just happen to do impressions of female vocalists."

Bailey is so adept at his impressions that frequently inebriated patrons mistakenly think they are watching a parade of female vocal stars.

Bailey has a youthful face, wears no sideburns and shaves so closely there isn't a whisker in sight when he goes on stage.

"At first I thought of imitating male stars," Bailey said. "But I'm a tenor to begin with. And everybody imitates Gable, Stewart, Bogart, Cagney, Peter Lorre and Edward G. Robinson. I had to have something new."

HOME GARDEN

Early Perennials Already Showing

By HILDA BEASTALL

The garden which depends on perennials for color need not wait until June to get the first display from delphiniums, peonies and the rest, for a number of worthy plants will bloom every year in April as forerunners of his class of herbaceous plans.

Hilda

Already we see ground or rock-covering perennials such as the white arabis, mauve aubrieta, and the lovely Vinca minor.

In a few more days we shall see the tiny blue flowers of houstonia and the strange bright yellow bracts that we call flowers, of Euphorbia myrsinites. This latter is a relative of the Christmas pot plant Poinsettia, Euphorbia pulcherrima, but in place of dark green leaves this low growing spring beauty has rather dry, grey papery foliage attached closely to sprawling stems.

The luscious pink of Bergenia cordifolia (formerly classed as a saxafrage) has been blooming for a full month, its large firm leaves no less ornamental than the ample flower heads.

The familiar perennial called Bleeding-heart, Dicentra spectabilis blooms every year in April.

Arching sprays of jewel-like hearts are carried high among the dainty grey-green ferny foliage. If planted in a corner warmed by early spring sun, Bleeding-heart will aways bloom by Easter.

We have only to look at the tapestry bed of polyanthus blooms by the McPherson Playhouse on Government Street to know how impervious to rain and wind these early primulas can be in the garden.

The plants need to be moved to a shadier spot after flowering, to recover and be divided for the following year's show.

Another perennial as old as the Bleeding-heart is Pulmonaria angustfolia. This has been variously called Lungwort (hence its name of Pulmonaria), Lords-and-Ladies, Soldiers-and-Sailors.

Low-growing, this perennial has hairy mottled dark green and silver leaves, topped with little blue and pink flowers like anchusa.

Hellebores, hybrids of the species orientalis, have been in flower for the past two months, and are still as lovely as ever. Some have strangely beautiful colors of old rose, green, or greenish white. These all like to be left alone to become well established in large clumps seedlings will appear in the vicinity and will vary considerably from the parent plants.

Liking a surface mulcing of leafmould in late spring, the shade of deciduous trees or shrubs for the hot summer months and protection from strong winds for their foliage, these are one of the easiest perennials to grow.

With a few flowering and foliage shrubs for background, herbaceous perennials assure color in April even without bulbs.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

If there is any one prime quest in bidding, it is to find the suit in which the partnership possesses eight cards, and to select that suit as the trump suit. And if the suit is divided 4-4 (rather than 5-3) it is even better in terms of trick-taking potential. As a matter of fact, from the expert point of view, when a partner knows that his partnership possesses one suit divided 5-4 and another suit divided 4-4, he will frequently select the eight-card suit as the trump suit, rather than the nine-card suit.

This theme is illustrated in today's deal.

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	6 ◇	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

When North raised South in diamonds, South knew that North possessed five spades, for with four diamonds and four spades North would have opened the bidding with one diamond (with two non-adjacent four-card suits, the lower-ranking is bid first). And North rated to have a very strong hand, since he had jumped to four diamonds.

South, having just about the equivalent of an opening bid, felt that a slam existed. So after checking for aces, he contracted for the small slam in diamonds.

After dummy's ace of hearts had captured the opening lead, South cashed three top trumps, gathering in the outstanding pieces. Next came five spades, South discarding his losing heart on the fifth spade lead. He then ruffed dummy's remaining heart. At the end, he conceded a club. And so he made 12 tricks: five spades, the ace of hearts, the ace of clubs, and five trump tricks (three outright, one by ruffing a heart, and the board's remaining trump).

The reader will note that at a spade contract (a nine-card trump suit), all that could be made would be 11 tricks: five spades, four diamonds, one heart, and one club Thus a slam contract in spades would have been defeated.

The reason why a 4-4 trump suit will usually produce a trick more than a 5-4 trump suit is this. In the 4-4 trump suit, three rounds of trumps will gather in the adversely held pieces (assuming a 3-2 division, which will occur 68 per cent of the time). The two remaining trumps — one in each hand — can now win two tricks separately and independently, for a total of five trump winners. If the 4-4 suit were not the trump suit (i.e., if it were the "side" suit), all declarer could win in this suit would be four tricks. Hence, he tends to gain a trick by making it the trump suit.

Detroit and Windsor: A Tale of Two Cities

By DICK BROWN

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — In the first three months of 1971, Detroit averaged two homicides a day for a record total of 181. Just across the Detroit River, Windsor counted only two over the entire three-month period.

Detroiters visiting Windsor often express wonder at a city where they can safely walk the streets at night. They say they would never do it in Detroit, a city with an arms race that goes deeper than the mere presence of guns.

The shocks of urban violence are reflected on the police blotters of satellite centres in Michigan like Mount Clemens, Flint and Ann Arbor, many miles from Detroit's metropolitan core. Yet Windsor, an easy five-minute drive by bridge or tunnel, remains quiet.

A survey conducted by Market Opinion Research Co. showed two out of every three Detroiters believe it unsafe to walk around their own neighborhoods after dark.

CRIME MAJOR PROBLEM

The same survey, released last week, reported 45.3 per cent of the city's residents listed crime as the major problem facing the city, and the researchers commented:

"This preoccupation with the crime issue is potentially explosive," and unless solutions to the crime on the street problem are found, "some less desirable approach may be adopted by a concerned populace in its frustration."

Detroit has 500,000 handguns, police estimate, and two-thirds of them are unregistered. It adds up to one handgun for every third person, legally or illegally, man, woman or child.

A Detroit gun dealer says: "I don't ask people why they buy guns but I take it that it must be for protection. It wouldn't be for target practice."

And police report that of 550 homicides in 1970, at least 419 were committed with guns.

In Windsor, police report gun registrations down to 322 in 1970 compared with 408 on 1969 and 30 in 1968. Windsor Police Chief Gordon Preston says the difference is simply that the two cities represent two societies, each with its own set of values.

NO GUNS OFF DUTY

Chief Preston's men are not allowed to carry guns off duty and about 95 per cent of them, he says, never have fired their guns in the course of duty. He makes it clear any constable who does had better have a good reason.

In Detroit, so many police carry guns off duty that an allowance for off-duty gun toting is part of police contract negotiations.

Last week, a Detroit patrolman accidentally shot and wounded a fellow officer as the two scuffled with a car-theft suspect who was trying to escape. A nun in a convent getting ready for bed was shot and killed by a sniper. Six police officers have been killed on duty in a year.

Urban crime in Detroit breeds in the city's decaying core. In 1970 there were 23,000 robberies, up from 13,000 in 1968. In the downtown 10th precinct alone, an area of 6.5 square miles and 150,000 people, 1970 brought 70 murders and 3,500 robberies.

Meanwhile in Windsor, a city of about 197,000 persons living in 54.7 square miles, there were seven murders and 162 robberies in 1970.

Detroit faces two main urban problems: acute racial friction and crime related to drug addiction.

A city of about 2.5 million, Detroit is roughly half white and half black. It is the only United States city to twice call in federal army troops to quell urban riots. Troops were needed in 1943 and 1967.

In Windsor, about one per cent of the population is Negro but there are no clear-cut black or white neighborhoods.

Car Doors Stolen

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The young woman left a bowling alley, looked at her sports car and discovered both doors missing. Police said she told them, she received a telephone call at the alley from a man who said: "I want to thank you personally. I'm out of a job and I really needed them." Police estimated the doors were worth $400.

'Living High Off Hog' Charges Don't Fit This Welfare Case

By BOB MITCHELL

Publish a story of a family on welfare and their plight and one thing is certain — you'll get the "they're living high off the hog" charges.

Last Friday the Times published a story which described some of the financial difficulties of Ken and Joyce McDiarmid, 1317 Vimy, and their six children.

The same day an anonymous caller requested that a reporter check out a report that the McDiarmids have unpaid bills with several oil companies, including one of $500.

BILLS APLENTY

Bills the family has. But when it comes to choosing between paying a grocery bill and a fuel bill, Joyce McDiarmid said, the grocer gets priority.

Keeping enough food in the house is a constant worry with six children ranging in age from 10 to 20 and a disabled husband who must have a special diet including liver, cottage cheese and eggs, as well as brandy for medicinal purposes.

It should be mentioned the fuel bill would not be so high if a regulation last fall from the department of rehabilitation and social improvement had not wiped out fuel overages for welfare families during the four-month period October-January.

COLOR TV

Another anonymous phone call to the Times suggested the McDiarmids are living high off the hog, with color TV and a houseful of food.

A visit to the McDiarmid home Wednesday showed what the family is getting on social assistance isn't anything special.

There is a color TV — and a stereo — but they belong to the oldest son, David, 20, who, until he was laid off three weeks ago, was helping to support the family with his paycheque from a janitor's job at the Victoria Curling Club. He'll continue to help when he becomes eligible for unemployment insurance benefits.

He bought the TV, incidentally, for his father who, until recently, was confined to a wheelchair with multiple sclerosis.

While we're on the subject of appliances, it may as well be mentioned that the McDiarmids have a deep-freeze which was given to them by Ken's brother. On Wednesday it was empty, except for a few donated loaves of bread.

Then there's the new electric range in the kitchen, something else David is helping to pay for. When the old range broke down last year Ken McDiarmid, by trade an electrician, decided it would be wiser in the long run to invest in a new range rather than pay $50 to repair the old one.

"They want us to buy all second-hand stuff and live in dumps, but I won't do it," Joyce said.

RISING RENTS

Long-range considerations went into a decision to buy the $21,900 house they now live in, rather than have the headaches of future moves and rising rents. Monthly mortgage payments of $188 are covered by the department of rehabilitation and social improvement. David expects to pay this year's taxes on the property with a cheque he will get back from the department of national revenue.

The family is actually receiving just over $400 a month. Take away the $188 mentioned above and what's left goes toward food, utilities, clothing (mostly from goodwill) and sundries. For eight people.

The difference includes Ken's disabled veteran's allowance cheque for $177, another $30 from the rehabilitation department, and family allowance payments.

DEADBEAT

Ken McDiarmid never knew what it was like to be called a deadbeat until after he suffered two heart attacks in 1969 and was confined to bed for months with multiple sclerosis and more months in a wheelchair. The ramp from the sidewalk to the front porch is still in place and the wheelchair still sits in the bedroom because without warning the disease could make him blind or paralyse him again.

Now he's angry; angry that in the country he fought for in the Second World War people could say he and his family are getting a free ride.

LIKE A JOB

He'd like to get a job, even a part-time job, something to keep him active and ease the financial pains. On Wednesday he was waiting for his eldest son to drive him to Emmanual Baptist Church's new location at 2121 Cedar Hill Cross Road where they are helping with renovations.

"I don't mind working for $1.50 an hour, but they won't let me," he said.

Joyce would also like to work, as kitchen help if possible.

"We don't want to be on welfare," she said. "Why don't they give us a chance to start earning money?"

Welfare Role For Poor

Low income groups involved mainly in casework for individual welfare recipients could be the provincial welfare departments' best friends.

The groups play an important role in ensuring welfare recipients get as much of the assistance as possible that they are entitled to under the Canada Assistance Act.

But if there are numerous abuses a low income group's volunteers could spend most of their time doing advocate work.

In the process they are helping what is considered an antiquated welfare system continue functioning, when in fact the original aim of low income groups was to eliminate the stigma of welfare, bring about increased amounts of assistance and even push for a guaranteed annual wage.

CHANGE SYSTEM

"We don't want to keep doing advocate work for the rest of our lives, we want to change the system we've got now," said Terry English of the Victoria Low Income Group.

"The only thing that's going to change the welfare rut is more money."

She and Dennis Totterham represented the Victoria group at what they felt was a disappointing conference of poor people's groups at Squamish on the weekend.

The conference was called to set up a B.C. Federation of Citizens' Associations, but ended with the Victoria Low Income group opting to join a separate organization along with two Vancouver groups, the Unemployed Citizens Welfare Council and the Militant Mothers.

MILITANT

The move earned the labels "militant" and "radical" for the Victoria group and its president Walter Olszewski.

English and Tottenham agreed the conference could not be described as "moderate" in tone because it was a schmozzle organizationally.

The proposed federation was to take in the whole gamut of citizens' organizations, including tenants' associations, lone-parent groups, non-status Indians, and homemakers, as well as low income groups.

Some of the organizations represented had only been in existence for a few months, not long enough to define the kind of role they would play, Tottenham said.

At least two had been organized by former social workers, he said, and others used their local welfare office as a mailing address.

Few of the delegates were under 25, and English said she felt uncomfortable because she was one of the few who wore jeans.

For Tottenham the conference demonstrated that a province-wide organization of citizens' groups is out of the question at this time.

He said a centralized organization would tend to hinder spontaneous action by individual groups trying to rectify problems in their particular community.

DEATHS BLAMED ON SEVERE FLU

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Three persons have died at the Royal Columbian Hospital from complications arising from a severe type of influenza.

Dr. Alan Grant, a hospital pathologist, said the flu is "unexpectedly vicious, unlike the usual 'flu bug."

He said the virus is seriously affecting the lungs of older persons already weakened by other illnesses.

"This type of flu is endemic in the area, not like the Asian flu which comes in waves every few years."

A Vancouver city health official, A. D. Mackie, described the outbreak as "powerful" but not widespread.

Spokesmen at Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals in Victoria said today they knew of no recent deaths in which influenza was a factor.

Oil Spill Prompts Hard Line

LONDON (UPI) — Parliament today passed legislation giving the government sweeping powers to seize or sink foreign ships, even outside British territorial waters, that threaten to pollute this country's beaches with oil.

The new legislation was given royal assent and became law just before parliament recessed for Easter.

Parliament acted as the navy and local government authorities worked feverishly to break up massive oil slicks in the English Channel that threatened to pollute south coast vacation beaches.

Anthony Grant, undersecretary for trade and industry, told Parliament hundreds of tons of oil caused the slicks. He said they may have seeped from the crippled Liberian tanker Panther which grounded for five days last week on the Goodwin Sands off the south east coast of England, spewing out parts of a cargo of 25,000 tons of crude oil.

British authorities had to stand idly by while tug captains from several countries wrangled over salvage

MEN PAID $250,000 FOR NOT WORKING

HALIFAX — The Michelin Tire Corp. has agreed to pay millwrights a total of $250,000 for not working in the construction of two tire manufacturing plants in Nova Scotia.

The payment, clearing the way for Michelin employees to do the work, was agreed upon by the company to eliminate the possibility of strikes which would mean opening dates for the plants could be "pushed back many months." Details on Page 2.

Further Pollution Will Shut Coal Mine

Mines Minister Frank Richter said today that Kaiser Resources Ltd. has agreed to shut down its Natal-Michel hydraulic coal mining operation if there are any more discharges of coal slurry.

Richter said the company is co-operating well with the government and is taking steps to overcome the problems which led to discharges in recent days.

Richter said reports from inspectors of the mines and conservation departments indicated that publicity about the discharges has been "expanded" far out of proportion.

FREEZING WEATHER

But he indicated there is a problem at the hydraulic coal operation where freezing weather forced the company to put slurry coal into ponds constructed without mines department permission.

These proved unable to hold all the material and there was some leakage into a nearby gravel pit and from there into watercourses, but by this time the coal had been filtered out by natural process, Richter suggested.

The freezing problem will have to be solved before next winter, Richter said.

Meanwhile, Liberal leader Pat McGeer said in Vancouver Wednesday that it isn't correct to say that the Pollution Control Act doesn't provide the power to take action against Kaiser.

He said Section 5, Subsection 1 makes it an offence to discharge effluent without a permit and fines of up to $500 a day are provided.

TURNED DOWN

Pollution control branch officials earlier had explained that Kaiser had applied for permits but had been turned down for technical and legal reasons. In the meantime, they said, the act did not permit prosecution.

The act as amended in 1970 required all existing polluters of land and water to register by the first of this year and to apply for a permit within 60 days of being ordered to do so.

This requirement appears to exempt from prosecution all pollution in existence prior to Jan. 1, 1970 when the section referred to by McGeer took effect.

Nixon Avoids War Deadline

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon refused to bow to mounting pressure to set a date for complete U.S. withdrawal from the Vietnam war, but did announce Wednesday night the pullback of another 100,000 servicemen by Dec. 1.

In rejecting demands from the peace movement to call a halt to American troop involvement in the war, the president said such a move would mean surrender to the Communists.

Speaking in an earnest, sometimes emotional manner, he told a television audience that he was disengaging in a way which would lead to a generation of peace, avoid a precipitious retreat and would leave the South vietnamese strong enough to defend themselves.

The speech was widely viewed in the United States as a display of political courage as it contained no dramatic measures to offset his falling popularity in public opinion polls.

The speed-up in the troop withdrawal schedule, however, fell short of predictions that he would increase the average rate of withdrawal up to perhaps 20,000 men a month.

NEW RATE HIGHER

The new rate will average almost 14,300 men a month, compared with the 12,500 a month during the last year or so. Under the new program, the number of American servicemen in Vietnam will drop to 184,000 by Dec. 1, compared with the high point of 535,000 in mid-1969.

This would leave the president free to order a significant acceleration in the withdrawal rate in the spring of 1972, just before the presidential election campaign starts to gather steam, observers said.

The president again put his political future on the line, telling the American people "you should hold me accountable if I fail."

North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris peace talks said Nixon once again showed he had not ceased lying to the American people.

"That is why he has changed black into white, defeats into victories, and talked of peace while making war instead," a delegation statement said.

DOVES ATTACK SPEECH

Democratic doves were quick to attack the speech as not going anywhere near enough to meet the national yearning for peace.

Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, the only announced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, dismissed the speech as "more of the same."

Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, who might be the president's opponent in 1972, expressed disappointment that Nixon had refused to set a date for ending American involvement in the war.

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts also expressed deep disappointment and said the South Vietnamese and American people could no longer bear the war.

But Senator Robert Byrd of West Virginia, assistant Democratic leader in the Senate, said the speech gave him the distinct impression that Nixon has a definite date in mind for a complete withdrawal from Vietnam.

Senator Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, Republican party leader in the Senate, also commented: "I know he has a timetable, but for obvious

Indian Forces Poised For Attack—Pakistan

From Reuter—Ap

Pakistan charged today that Indian armed forces were poised for possible intervention in East Pakistan after announcing that air force planes went into action in four areas of East Pakistan.

Radio Pakistan said information reaching Rawalpindi, the central government capital in the Western province, indicated Indian air force bases around the western and northern borders of East Pakistan had been issued combat readiness orders. It said Indian border security force battalions around East Pakistan had been deployed for infiltration operations and charged that four other such units already were engaged in East Pakistan.

There was no confirmation of the report.

East Pakistan is bounded on three sides by Indian territory and the other by the Bay of Bengal.

Official Indian sources had no comment on the latest Pakistan allegations.

However, a senior Indian official on Tuesday categorically denied at a news briefing that India was massing troops along the border with East Pakistan.

The radio, in what was believed to be the first Pakistani confirmation of other reports, said Pakistan air force planes had gone into action in Sylhet, Rajshahi, Mymensingh and Rangpur.

Previous reports by the radio said the situation in East Pakistan was "calm" and "under control."

NEW ORDERS ENFORED

Today, the central government broadcast fresh martial law orders prohibiting East Pakistanis from carrying any weapons, including iron rods and staves, Indian monitors reported.

"According to these orders, all firearms are required to be deposited at the nearest police station, and no person is allowed to keep in his possession even an iron rod or lathi," the Indian government radio said, quoting the Radio Pakistan broadcast.

The Indian radio said that East Pakistanis also were barred from joining any paramilitary organization or volunteer corps.

The Pakistan reports came as Indian news media said the Pakistan air force had carried out heavy retaliatory bombing strikes after a string of successes by the rebellious Bengalis of the east.

B.C. Man Gets Tip Of $5.5 Million

Special to The Times

VANCOUVER — The head of a tiny Vancouver air charter company was told today he has inherited $5.5 million.

Leonard Wilson, president of Wilson Air Company Ltd., a two-man, two-aircraft company operating out of Vancouver, received a telegram from the British Honduras Wednesday. It said "You have inherited $5.5 million. Money in trust Royal Bank of Canada, Belize City, British Honduras. Contact Courtenay and Company, Belize City."

After six hours of vain effort to phone the bank, Wilson went home to suburban Richmond, convinced it was a hoax.

Today an associate said Wilson had received confirmation that the report was correct. The associate said Wilson had spoken to a Mr. Courtenay, whom he identified as the speaker of the British Honduras legislature and a lawyer.

Wilson could not be reached for comment today. He had said earlier that he was in British Honduras two years ago flying charter flights for wealthy clients.

"I got along with people and I knew plenty of them but no one well enough to tip me $5.5 million."

Winds Pummel City, Ferries Turn Back

Another storm pummelled the Greater Victoria area this morning reaching its highest fury at 6:30 a.m. when southeasterlies were registered at 40 miles an hour, gusting to 63.

Because of the gale-force winds the B.C. ferry Queen of Esquimalt on her 8 a.m. run across the Gulf of Georgia from Swartz Bay, instead of docking at Tsawwassen, turned back with her passenger load to Swartz Bay.

The brisk winds also caused ferry officials to cancel the morning run to Otter Bay on North Pender.

WINDS VEER

The winds veered to the west this afternoon, bringing drenching rain. Friday's outlook is sombre — generally cloudy, showers and cooler temperatures.

At least nine Victoria boats are entered in the annual Strait of Georgia race, due to get the start gun off West Vancouver Friday at 10:30 a.m.

RACE ABANDONED

Several of them left Tsehum Haven early this morning, facing conditions similar to those last year when more than half the fleet were forced to abandon the race because of gale-force winds.

Winds are expected to ease to between 15 and 20 miles an hour Friday.

Skies should begin clearing Saturday and by Sunday provide weather suitable for an Easter Parade.

Laos Coup Foiled

VIENTIANE (Reuter) — Eight persons, including several former high-ranking military officers, are under arrest for their part in a proposed coup against the Laotian government that was apparently called off at the last minute.

Informed sources said today the plot against the government of Prince Souvanna Phouma was masterminded by a former friend, Amphon Souvannabon, who now lives in Thailand after spending a number of years in Peking.

They said the plan had been for a number of commando troops to infiltrate Vientiane from Thailand across the Mekong River Tuesday night. But they said the coup was apparently called off at the last minute because the plotters spotted police checkpoints being set up in the city and on the road leading to the cross-river ferry.

EX-SOLDIERS SAFE FROM CHARGES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department announced today the government has found no legal way to prosecute former United States soldiers involved in the alleged 1968 massacre of civilians at My Lai, South Vietnam.

Defence department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said lawyers for the U.S. Army and the justice department gave the problem exhaustive study and were unable to resolve it.

This apparently means that Paul Meadlo and other former soldiers at My Lai on March 16, 1968, will not be prosecuted now that they have returned to civilian life.

Rebels Bombed

COLOMBO (AP) — Ceylon air force planes bombed insurgent groups holed up in a school and a factory, the government announced today.

A government bulletin said the school and factory were 40 miles from Colombo, the capital.

Government troop reinforcements were being deployed in southern Ceylon, where regular police were reported hanging on grimly against heavy insurgent activity.

The government had claimed that the insurgents were incapable of launching group attacks and an army spokesman maintained the insurgents' attacks were "scattered and sporadic."

The radio said today that armored units were busy flushing out insurgents on the main trunk road connecting the capital with central Ceylon.

Colombo remained under heavy guard.

The city was still gripped in a 3 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew.

Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike announced the rebellion Tuesday and blamed it on an organization of young leftist militants known as Che Guevarists after the Latin-American revolutionary.

Jet Overhaul Contract Ends

OTTAWA (CP) — CAE Aircraft Ltd. said today it has been advised by government that a contract to overhaul T-39 Sabreliner jet transports for the United States Air Force has been terminated.

Loss of the contract would mean gradual reduction of some 300 jobs connected with the T-39 program in Winnipeg during the next three or four months.

Exact number of layoffs couldn't immediately be determined, CAE said.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, APRIL 8, 1971 —PAGE 13

THIS IS HYDRO'S ATTITUDE

Rights of Some Must Be Secondary For the Good of People at Large

B.C. Hydro is forced to make the rights of some residents a secondary consideration in some cases for the good of the people at large, a Hydro official said Wednesday night.

"In certain cases, the rights of some people must be subjected for the good of the community," Charles W. Nash, manager of Hydro's corporate services, told Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce.

"The people create the demand for electricity, and B.C. Hydro, as a utility, supplies that demand. It makes no demands itself."

The utility has come under repeated fire for its methods of acquiring land and rights-of-way in the Munn and Glen Lake Road areas. Leading residents in these battles are Pat Codyre and Malcolm McSorley of Munn Road and Aubrey Jenkins of Glen Lake Road.

Nash also told the meeting the Island will be using existing electrical supply to capacity before 1975, and said Hydro is considering a thermal power plant using coal or oil.

He said a nuclear plant is a future possibility, but that Hydro wanted to "buy time" until nuclear power development is perfected.

In regard to the Munn and Glen Lake properties, Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan has promised to investigate charges that personal and private property has been violated by Hydro.

* * *

Kiernan, as a director of hydro, conferred Wednesday with Jenkins and Robert Brotherson, spokesmen for nine landowners who have complained about land acquisition policies in their area.

The complaints submitted to Kiernan were that Hydro violated the privacy of one member by using his driveway for their trucks instead of going through their own easement.

It abused its authority when it cut down trees in the path of a survey line without first contacting the landowner.

'Proof' of Funding Attacked by Pollen

The federal government is giving Victoria a "damned good deal" with its offer to finance Cool Aid's proposed youth resources centre, city council was told today.

The remark was made by a Cool Aid spokesman, lawyer Alan Donaldson, who went before an informal meeting of council to defend the proposal to convert Emmanuel Baptist Church, 1900 Fernwood, into a youth hostel.

The required rezoning public hearing was scheduled for 2 p.m. today.

The method of planning the centre came under heavy criticism from four aldermen, who concentreated on the federal promise to grant a low-interest, long term mortgage and grant Cool Aid $1,600 a month.

Ald. Peter Pollen ridiculed the "two silly little telexes" that had been offered as proof of the federal funding.

The telegrams came from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and an officer of the citizenship branch of the Secretary of State Department.

Terms of the mortgage were a $61,000 purchase, paid at 7½ per cent over 50 years.

'INCONSISTENT'

Ald. Harold Olafson called the federal agreement "absolutely inconsistent" and said the property was worth no more than $25,000.

However, Donaldson said council should not lose sight of the fact the Pacific Community Self Development Society would own the building, and if the federal funding was cut off, the mortgage would be foreclosed.

For the federal government to provide a $1,600 a month grant and a 7½ per cent mortgage for a social facility mormally within the city's responsibility, he said, is a "damned good deal."

Funding of the proposal is conditional on council's decision to rezone the property for a youth hostel use.

Pollen said that an information sheet provided today was the first indication that the youth hostel was not to include space for the Pacific Drug Dependency Centre. He had earlier questioned the compatibility of a youth hostel with a drug counselling centre.

WIND-SWEPT LOOK was common today as a southeasterly gale brought rain and gusts to over 60 miles an hour. But Sandra Taylor, 11, of 1083 Joan Crescent didn't mind a bit. She's a Grade 5 student at Sir James Douglas School. Forecast is for more clouds Friday but the weather is expected to clear for Easter Sunday and all those new bonnets. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Teacher Association Votes Against Blacklisting 110

An attempt to blacklist 110 teachers who either reported for work or reported sick March 19 was foiled when the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association met behind closed doors Wednesday afternoon.

The number of teachers not observing the strike represented eight per cent of the district.

Resolutions calling for the blacklisting were submitted by the teaching staffs of five schools — S. J. Willis junior high, Lansdowne junior high, Oak Bay junior high, Monterey elementary and McKenzie elementary.

Although the resolutions were defeated a warning was issued that no such leniency can be expected if a strike is called in the future after membership in the B.C. Teachers' Federation becomes voluntary.

Non-observance of strike action will be one of the topics discussed at the BCTF's convention, to be held at the Hotel Vancouver April 12 to 15.

The March 19 strike was called to back up demands for higher pensions for teachers who have already retired.

GVTA president Les Isaacson, reported after the meeting that delegates had approved by a four-to-one majority that no action be taken to list names of those who did or did not protest March 19. The meeting also decided that any GVTA official who had such a list should destroy it.

'OWN CONSCIENCE'

"Greater Victoria teachers decided this was a question of individual conscience," said Isaacson, "and we don't feel any action should be taken against those who didn't go on strike that day."

Two other resolutions were defeated during the meeting. One called for the resignation of any executive member or persons holding representative positions that did not strike March 19. The other sought a vote of none-confidence in such individuals.

The only person who would have been affected, had the resolutions been passed, would have been a past president, Kory Reagan, who did not strike because she felt the strike action constituted a breach of contract.

Uvic Faculty Ballots Ordered Destroyed

Ballots cast in a faculty vote on the question of confidence of non-confidence in University of Victoria President Bruce Partridge have been ordered destroyed unopened because of "impossible conditions" imposed by registrar Ron Ferry, said Faculty Association president Don Harvey.

Harvey said Thursday, that after ballots had been collected, Ferry suddenly imposed a set of regulations the faculty had never heard of before.

The regulations called for the presence during the ballot-count of those who voted, and there was a stipulation that names of all who voted be "announced one at a time."

The ballots were distributed Monday and were to be counted Wednesday in a vote similar to that conducted by students. The students voted overwhelmingly for a non-confidence motion in Partridge.

"The constraint placed on the counting of votes by the regulations makes if virtually impossible to consider having that vote counted now," Harvey said.

NO COMMENT

Ferry, who informed the faculty of the regulations governing the vote in a confidential letter, said he had no comment on the situation.

"I'm not conducting the vote, that's all I am saying."

A statement from the majority of the Faculty Association executive released this morning said Ferry threatened to return ballots to voting faculty members if challenged in writing.

This was done, said the statement, "on the grounds that he had not known the nature of the issue to be voted upon and that some faculty members had expressed concern about the authority under which the ballots were being circulated."

'... IN GOOD FAITH'

"This was unacceptable to the executive."

The statement said that while the 10 stipulations by Ferry were "individually innocuous" their ad hoc basis was also unacceptable.

"The executive acted in good faith ... and in the belief that the issue of confidence in the president was one which should be settled by the faculty at this time in the best interests of the university."

The vote was called on the basis of a 37-name petition to the Faculty Association executive.

The blocking of the faculty vote was expected to have effects on a joint faculties meeting scheduled today for 3:30, and at least one faculty member said "feelings of indignation" were being expressed.

A meeting of students in the graduating class was scheduled for today at noon, and main item on the agenda was to be a discussion of whether graduating students want Partridge's signature on their degrees.

Hospital Union Wants Loffmark To Check Books

A union official Wednesday night challenged the operators of the struck Sandringham Private Hospital to permit an "impartial observer," perhaps Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, to examine the company books.

Ray Mercer, assistant western regional director of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, issued the challenge at a meeting of the Victoria Labor Council.

The hospital administrators, National Nursing Homes of Vancouver, have said the hospital is losing money and can't afford the demands of 28 employees, on strike at the hospital six months for a first CUPE contract.

Mercer also said the hospital is paying a higher hourly rate to guard dogs used on the grounds since the strike began than was being paid the 28 strikers. The employees were being paid the minimum $1.50 hourly wage before they struck Sept. 30.

Transfer Program Affects 12 Principals

About a dozen principals and vice-principals will move to different schools within the Greater Victoria school district this fall, superintendent A. J. Longmore said today.

He said it was a continuation of an accelerated transfer program begun last year. There are 57 schools in the district.

Asked the reasoning behind more transfers, Longmore said the school board believes there are some education benefits to be gathered from periodic changes.

Principals and vice-principals, like anyone else moved in industry, are challenged by a new environment which often moves them to reassess their approaches and the approach of the school they move to.

Gunman Gets $302

City police are looking for a lone gunman who escaped with $302 from the Pay-N-Save gas station, 212 Esquimalt Road, late Wednesday evening.

A police spokesman said the man appeared in the office about 11:15 p.m. wearing a stocking over his head and holding a small gun in his right hand.

He told attendant, Danny Allen, "don't move," grabbed a green canvas bag with the money from a desk and fled on foot west through Victoria West park.

VMD AWARDED EAST CONTRACT

Victoria Machinery Depot has been awarded a contract worth about $300,000 to build a pressure vessel for Petrofina Canada Ltd. refinery at Point-aux-Trembles, near Montreal.

The unit, called a high pressure separator for the refinery's hydrocracking plant, will separate liquids from gasses and is expected to be delivered in the fall.

VMD said it will have walls 7¼ inches thick and its engineered design is of a category more critical than any previously built by the Victoria plant.

Arthur Mayse...

ABOUT THIS TIME IN the burgeoning year, an editor I worked with in other pastures would look out from our shared cubicle at swelling bud and greening grass. He would then take a bottle of Ireland's best from his disorderly desk and pour three-finger libations in paper cups filched from the office water cooler.

Thus primed, he would salute the vernal explosion in verse of Elizabethan courtliness and flavor.

"Our lady spring hath burst her bodice," he would declaim. "The season's ripe, and so's the goddess!"

I never did get to hear more of this rhyme, because the editor would then rise from his chair, shrug into his jacket, and amble off for a beer chaser.

Another spring has burst her bodice; and though our office rules prevent me from celebrating the fact with the juice of the barley, there are other ways of observing it.

One is to sit at this desk in a state of blissful idleness while thoughts that have nothing to do with the workday take shape.

Right now, I'm thinking about two boats. One of them is overdue for the rites of spring. The other lacks what every honest craft deserves. This is a formal christening.

Our big boat — a term I apply only to distinguish it from its peewee fleet-mate — is now so old that I can't remember which year in the early 1950's it entered our lives. We bought it second-hand from the carpenter who built it of marine plywood and yellow cedar. If he's still in these parts, I'd like him to know that it remains sturdy and sea-kind.

My wife insists that it's 13 feet long. By centre-line measurement, with the tape permitted to sag a little, I make it a few inches shorter than that ill-omened figure. Our first launching, a wet and back-straining struggle, was on a morning of flat calm that deteriorated into the sort of afternoon that shouldn't happen in summer.

We got a snootful of weather, but our boat behaved like a lady when the swells became cresters, and brought us in with bailing can still dry.

It was a performance that inspired trust: It also taught us that these are tricky waters, and that weather forecasts should be heeded.

There are plenty of jobs that could stand doing, this first long weekend of spring. Digging and raking. Cutting grass and sweeping blacktop. But April is the month when a wooden hull needs painting, and there's also the matter of a christening for our new little boat.

No wood in that one except for the rowlock blocks! Its chubby seven feet are moulded of tough plastic that requires no maintenance beyond an occasional sluicing with a garden hose. We chose it for the coves and the trout lakes because of its lightness coupled with stability, and a-trouting it will take us before the weekend's done.

I should report that its twin keels have already taken a trial dousing in the Gorge, but that was done on impulse and doesn't really count. We merely happened to be passing by, with bathtub-shaped junior perched virgin on the cartop bars, when temptation beckoned.

We unloaded, with dubious glances at the "Water Polluted, No Bathing" sign handy-by. Then we shoved off, my dear one grasshoppered in the bow and me rowing longshore style from the stern.

Our fears were groundless. Junior rode like a swan. As a matter of fact, her plump little white hull attracted the attention of several Gorge swans paddling in the vicinity.

The noble but outsized birds kept edging closer, and we had business elsewhere. So we left them in possession.

But tomorrow, rain or shine, we'll launch her on other waters well christened in a manner that the spring-hailing editor at the start of this ramble would approve!

'EASTER SURPRISE' FOR CITY

Bunnies, Bunnies Everywhere

The Easter bunny came to life today as he and six assistants hopped around the city tossing easter eggs from an old paint pail to smiling Victorians.

Members of Victoria Senior Secondary's cabinet (the elected student body) decided to give their classmates an "Easter surprise" at this morning's assembly. It went over so well, principal J. D. Lorimer allowed them to spread their good cheer elsewhere in the city.

Before they bounded into the Times newsroom, with their shiny little eggs, they had been to the children's ward at Royal Jubilee Hospital and to Glenwarren Private Hospital. They said they had stopped men working on the road and given them eggs.

"We're off to hit an elementary school, to see what that's like," said one as they skedaddled out the door.

Dragster To Compete

A slick dragster from Sidney which holds the record in quarter mile drag racing at Cobble Hill and Mission will go to Seattle this weekend to compete in U.S. National Hot Rod Association Dragster Races.

Built by owners Billy Egeland and Brian Roberts, the machine won a trophy for best engineered dragster in the car show at Esquimalt Sport Centre last weekend. It also was judged best competition dragster and best competition sweepstake.

Egeland and Roberts are members Torquemasters Car Club in Sidney which won first prize at Esquimalt with car club display including the dragster and wooden racing car called "Little Daddy's Woody."

The Sidney Car Club won first place in the special award class.

EXPLOSION VICTIM NOW 'FAIRLY GOOD'

A 25-year-old Saanich workman injured in a Mill Bay gravel pit oxygen tank explosion Tuesday afternoon is now in fairly good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Reginald Oliver, 1931 San Rafael, suffered multiple burns.

He is employed by Oliver Trucking at Mill Bay.

NANAIMO (CP) — Nanaimo Regional District has allocated $15,000 for distribution among four organizations helping transient and resident youth.

The money, intended to tide them over until they get more funds from senior governments, will be disbursed by the board's finance committee.

The board made the following allocations Tuesday night:

Nanaimo Crisis Centre, $6,000;

Samaritan House, which operated a hostel for young travellers last summer and intends to do so again this year, $3,000;

A youth drop-in centre, $3,000;

Parksville's Society of Organized Services, including a youth drop-in centre, $3,000.

Zanuck Resigns As Studio Head

NEW YORK (AP) — Darryl F. Zanuck, the last of the tycoons from Hollywood's golden years, has resigned as chief executive officer of the 20th Century-Fox Flim Corp.

Zanuck, 68, will retain his title as chairman of the company and concentrate on film production.

The company's board of directors said Wednesday that Dennis C. Stanfill, who was elected president March 18, would have responsibility for all phases of corporate activity except film production.

THE WEATHER

Southeasterly gales with gusts over 60 lashed the Queen Charlottes and the outer coast of Vancouver Island overnight as a very deep low-pressure centre moved slowly northward offshore. The associated Pacific cold front will cross the mountains near noon today and reach Alberta overnight. Modern Cantata

A modern cantata, The Saviour, will be performed as part of a special Good Friday service at Centennial United Church at 7:30 p.m.

The work will be performed by the Centennial Church choir conducted by organist and choirmaster, Ian Westmacott. Guest soloists are tenor Donald Twine and bass John Bray.

Soprano and alto duet will be sung by Gladys Shvetz and Terry Kerr.

Lloyd Webber, the composer, had previously composed Joseph, the rock oratorio successfully performed last year at First United Church.

LANGUAGE OPPOSITION TO BE LISTED

The outspoken supporter of the Single Canada League will speak in Victoria April 21 at the Empress Hotel.

Hon. J. T. Thorson, former president of the Exchequer Court of Canada, will outline his reasons for attacking the validity of the federal government's Official Languages Act in the Ontario supreme court.

He will tour Western Canada, speaking at Vancouver, Kelowna, Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg.

Time of the Victoria speech has not been set.

Highway Deaths Increase 3% During 1970

There was a 3 per cent increase in fatalities and a 7 per cent increase in property damage caused by motor vehicle accidents in B.C. in 1970 compared with 1969.

Figures released today by the attorney-general's department show a 13 per cent decrease in numbers of reportable accidents, but this is partly attributed to an increase in the level of reportable accidents from $100 to $200.

The 1970 figures show 60,778 accidents, involving 104,272 vehicles, killing 559 people and causing property damage of $44.4 million.

Pipeline Okay Seen

The controversial trans-Alaska pipeline will be built, despite heavy opposition, believes the managing director of the Canadian Petroleum Association visiting Victoria today.

The proposed line for which materials have been assembled for the last 18 months, awaits U.S. government approval and will not proceed this year, thinks David B. Furlong, of Ottawa, who is here to address the Victoria Rotary Club.

"If you talk to the people involved in the trans-Alaska pipeline, they are convinced the line will be built," Furlong said in an interview.

Asked if the forthcoming U.S. congressional elections are a factor, he said, "I suppose there is always a connection between political decisions and large economic decisions."

Pressure from both American and Canadian opponents of the line is based largely on the environmental hazards, such as the risk of oil pollution from tankers delivering crude to Pacific coast refineries.

CAPITAL SCENE

On Saturday members will go to Francis Park to finish making bird houses and to change all the displays in the Nature House for the Easter weekend.

The intermediate section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will go to Jordon River on Tuesday, leaving Mayfair parking lot a 9:15 a.m.

An outstanding American authority on the disease of alcoholism, Dr. John L. Norris, will be a key speaker at the annual Alcoholics Anonymous rally at the Empress Hotel on the weekend.

Workshops will be held all day Friday and a public meeting has been scheduled from 8 to 10 p.m. that day.

A closed meeting for agency representatives and other specialists will be held Saturday from 9 to 11 a.m.

Deadwood Dick Auditions Set

Auditions for the Victorian Days production of Deadwood Dick, or The Game of Gold, will be held April 13 and 19 at 7:30 p.m. at Phoenix Theatre, University of Victoria.

The play is based on the exploits of a sort of Robin Hood of the Black Hills as portrayed in the 19th-century dime novels of Edward L. Wheeler. The production will run at McPherson Playhouse May 26-29.

U.K. Gets Tough on Pollution

DEATHS BLAMED ON SEVERE FLU

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Three persons have died at the Royal Columbian Hospital from complications arising from a severe type of influenza.

Dr. Alan Grant, a hospital pathologist, said the flu is "unexpectedly vicious, unlike the usual flu bug."

He said the virus is seriously affecting the lungs of older persons already weakened by other illnesses.

"This type of flu is endemic in the area, not like the Asian flu which comes in waves every few years."

A Vancouver city health official, A. D. Mackie, described the outbreak as "powerful" but not widespread.

Spokesmen at Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals in Victoria said today they knew of no recent deaths in which influenza was a factor.

Oil Spill Prompts Hard Line

LONDON (UPI) — Parliament today passed legislation giving the government sweeping powers to seize or sink foreign ships, even outside British territorial waters, that threaten to pollute this country's beaches with oil.

The new legislation was given royal assent and became law just before parliament recessed for Easter.

Parliament acted as the navy and local government authorities worked feverishly to break up massive oil slicks in the English Channel that threatened to pollute south coast vacation beaches.

Anthony Grant, undersecretary for trade and industry, told Parliament hundreds of tons of oil caused the slicks. He said they may have seeped from the crippled Liberian tanker Panther which grounded for five days last week on the Goodwin Sands off the south east coast of England, spewing out parts of a cargo of 25,000 tons of crude oil.

British authorities had to stand idly by while tug captains from several countries wrangled over salvage

MEN PAID $250,000 FOR NOT WORKING

HALIFAX — The Michelin Tire Corp. has agreed to pay millwrights a total of $250,000 for not working in the construction of two tire manufacturing plants in Nova Scotia.

The payment, clearing the way for Michelin employees to do the work, was agreed upon by the company to eliminate the possibility of strikes which would mean opening dates for the plants could be "pushed back many months." Details on Page 2.

Further Pollution Will Shut Coal Mine

Mines Minister Frank Richter said today that Kaiser Resources Ltd. has agreed to shut down its Natal-Michel hydraulic coal mining operation if there are any more discharges of coal slurry.

Richter said the company is co-operating well with the government and is taking steps to overcome the problems which led to discharges in recent days.

Richter said reports from inspectors of the mines and conservation departments indicated that publicity about the discharges has been "expanded" far out of proportion.

FREEZING WEATHER

But he indicated there is a problem at the hydraulic coal operation where freezing weather forced the company to put slurry coal into ponds constructed without mines department permission.

These proved unable to hold all the material and there was some leakage into a nearby gravel pit and from there into watercourses, but by this time the coal had been filtered out by natural process, Richter suggested.

The freezing problem will have to be solved before next winter, Richter said.

Meanwhile, Liberal leader Pat McGeer said in Vancouver Wednesday that it isn't correct to say that the Pollution Control Act doesn't provide the power to take action against Kaiser.

He said Section 5, Subsection 1 makes it an offence to discharge effluent without a permit and fines of up to $500 a day are provided.

TURNED DOWN

Pollution control branch officials earlier had explained that Kaiser had applied for permits but had been turned down for technical and legal reasons. In the meantime, they said, the act did not permit prosecution.

Nixon Avoids War Deadline

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon refused to bow to mounting pressure to set a date for complete U.S. withdrawal from the Vietnam war, but did announce Wednesday night the pullback of another 100,000 servicemen by Dec. 1.

In rejecting demands from the peace movement to call a halt to American troop involvement in the war, the president said such a move would mean surrender to the Communists.

Speaking in an earnest, sometimes emotional manner, he told a television audience that he was disengaging in a way which would lead to a generation of peace, avoid a precipitious retreat and would leave the South vietnamese strong enough to defend themselves.

The speech was widely viewed in the United States as a display of political courage as it contained no dramatic measures to offset his falling popularity in public opinion polls.

The speed-up in the troop withdrawal schedule, however, fell short of predictions that he would increase the average rate of withdrawal up to perhaps 20,000 men a month.

NEW RATE HIGHER

The new rate will average almost 14,300 men a month, compared with the 12,500 a month during the last year or so. Under the new program, the number of American servicemen in Vietnam will drop to 184,000 by Dec. 1, compared with the high point of 535,000 in mid-1969.

This would leave the president free to order a significant acceleration in the withdrawal rate in the spring of 1972, just before the presidential election campaign starts to gather steam, observers said.

The president again put his political future on the line, telling the American people "you should hold me accountable if I fail."

DOVES ATTACK SPEECH

Democratic doves were quick to attack the speech as not going anywhere near enough to meet the national yearning for peace.

Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, the only announced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, dismissed the speech as "more of the same."

Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, who might be the president's opponent in 1972, expressed disappointment that Nixon had refused to set a date for ending American involvement in the war.

But Senator Robert Byrd of West Virginia, assistant Democratic leader in the Senate, said the speech gave him the distinct impression that Nixon has a definite date in mind for a complete withdrawal from Vietnam.

Senator Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, Republican party leader in the Senate, also commented: "I know he has a timetable, but for obvious

Indian Forces Poised For Attack—Pakistan

From Reuter—AP

Pakistan charged today that Indian armed forces were poised for possible intervention in East Pakistan after announcing that air force planes went into action in four areas of East Pakistan.

Radio Pakistan said information reaching Rawalpindi, the central government capital in the western province, indicated Indian air force bases around the western and northern borders of East Pakistan had been issued combat readiness orders. It said Indian border security force battalions around East Pakistan had been deployed for infiltration operations and charged that four other such units already were engaged in East Pakistan.

There was no confirmation of the report.

East Pakistan is bounded on three sides by Indian territory and the other by the Bay of Bengal.

Official Indian sources had no comment on the latest Pakistani allegations.

However, a senior Indian official on Tuesday categorically denied at a news briefing that India was massing troops along the border with East Pakistan.

The radio, in what was believed to be the first Pakistani confirmation of other reports, said Pakistani air force planes had gone into action in Sylhet, Rajshahi, Mymensingh and Rangpur.

Previous reports by the radio said the situation in East Pakistan was "calm" and "under control."

NEW ORDERS ENFORCED

Today, the central government broadcast fresh martial law orders prohibiting East Pakistanis from carrying any weapons, including iron rods and staves, Indian monitors reported.

"According to these orders, all firearms are required to be deposited at the nearest police station, and no person is allowed to keep in his possession even an iron rod or lathi," the Indian government radio said, quoting the Radio Pakistan broadcast.

The Indian radio said that East Pakistanis also were barred from joining any paramilitary organization or volunteer corps.

The Pakistan reports came as Indian news media said the Pakistan air force had carried out heavy retaliatory bombing strikes after a string of successes by the rebellious Bengalis of the east.

B.C. Man Gets Tip Of $5.5 Million

Special to The Times

VANCOUVER — The head of a tiny Vancouver air charter company was told today he has inherited $5.5 million.

Leonard Wilson, president of Wilson Air Company Ltd., a two-man, two-aircraft company operating out of Vancouver, received a telegram from the British Honduras Wednesday. It said "You have inherited $5.5 million. Money in trust Royal Bank of Canada, Belize City, British Honduras. Contact Courtenay and Company, Belize City."

After six hours of vain effort to phone the bank, Wilson went home to suburban Richmond, convinced it was a hoax.

Today an associate said Wilson had received confirmation that the report was correct. The associate said Wilson had spoken to a Mr. Courtenay, whom he identified as the speaker of the British Honduras legislature and a lawyer.

Wilson could not be reached for comment today. He had said earlier that he was in British Honduras two years ago flying charter flights for wealthy clients.

"I got along with people and I knew plenty of them but no one well enough to tip me $5.5 million."

Winds Pummel City, Ferries Turn Back

Another storm pummelled the Greater Victoria area this morning reaching its highest fury at 6:30 a.m. when southeasterlies were registered at 40 miles an hour, gusting to 63.

Because of the gale-force winds the B.C. ferry Queen of Esquimalt on her 8 a.m. run across the Gulf of Georgia from Swartz Bay, instead of docking at Tsawwassen, turned back with her passenger load to Swartz Bay.

The brisk winds also caused ferry officials to cancel the morning run to Otter Bay on North Pender.

WINDS VEER

The winds veered to the west this afternoon, bringing drenching rain. Friday's outlook is sombre generally cloudy, showers and cooler temperatures.

At least nine Victoria boats are entered in the annual Strait of Georgia race, due to get the start gun off West Vancouver Friday at 10:30 a.m.

RACE ABANDONED

Several of them left Tsehum Haven early this morning, facing conditions similar to those last year when more than half the fleet were forced to abandon the race because of gale-force winds.

Winds are expected to ease to between 15 and 20 miles an hour Friday.

Skies should begin clearing Saturday and by Sunday provide weather suitable for an Easter Parade.

Laos Coup Foiled

VIENTIANE (Reuter) — Eight persons, including several former high-ranking military officers, are under arrest for their part in a proposed coup against the Laotian govenment that was apparently called off at the last minute.

Informed sources said today the plot against the government of Prince Souvannu Phouma was masterminded by a former friend, Amphon Souvannabon, who now lives in Thailand after spending a number of years in Peking.

They said the plan had been for a number of commando troops to infiltrate Vientiane from Thailand across the Mekong River Tuesday night. But they said the coup was apparently called off at the last minute because the plotters spotted police checkpoints being set up in the city and on the road leading to the cross-river ferry.

EX-SOLDIERS SAFE FROM CHARGES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department announced today the government has found no legal way to prosecute former United States soldiers involved in the alleged 1968 massacre of civilians at My Lai, South Vietnam.

Defence department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said lawyers for the U.S. Army and the justice department gave the problem exhaustive study and were unable to resolve it.

This apparently means that Paul Meadlo and other former soldiers at My Lai on March 16, 1968, will not be prosecuted now that they have returned to civilian life.

Rebels Bombed

COLOMBO (AP) — Ceylon air force planes bombed insurgent groups holed up in a school and a factory, the government announced today.

A government bulletin said the school and factory were 40 miles from Colombo, the capital.

Government troop reinforcements were being deployed in southern Ceylon, where regular police were reported hanging on grimly against heavy insurgent activity.

The government had claimed that the insurgents were incapable of launching group attacks and an army spokesman maintained the insurgents' attacks were "scattered and sporadic."

The radio said today that armored units were busy flushing out insurgents on the main trunk road connecting the capital with central Ceylon.

Jet Overhaul Contract Ends

OTTAWA (CP) — CAE Aircraft Ltd. said today it has been advised by the government that a contract to overhaul T-39 Sabreliner jet transports for the United States Air Force has been terminated.

Loss of the contract would mean gradual reduction of some 300 jobs connected with the T-39 program in Winnipeg during the next three or four months.

Exact number of layoffs couldn't immediately be determined, CAE said.
